Asleep.

Dear, tired Mother Earth has gone to sleep; Walk tiptoe through her chamber, lest she waken! Her children faithful watch above her keep, While she with slumber sweet is overtaken.

Not long ago a thousand tender ferns Spread over her their wealth of dew-spun laces, And nestled close to her warm heart, where burns The fire that kindles springtime's sylvan graces.

And when the blessed Mother longed for rest, How soothingly the little slender grasses Threw all their soft green arms across her breast; No wintry blast shall touch her as it passes!

The maples watched her with a beaming smile When proud October covered them with glory, And gladly doffed their golden robes, the while

With them they made her bed—the old sweet story! And yesterday all day the longing sky Bent lovingly and wistfully above her, While soft white kisses—oh, so tenderly! Came down and covered her—who could but love her!

COL. HUGHES SUSTAINED

EVEN BY LIBERAL PAPERS—A STRONG DEFENCE

The Hamilton Times, British Whig of Kingston, and other liberal papers besides those of his own party, have taken the side of Col. Hughes in his shabby treatment at the hands of General Hutton. The Whig says: "The liberal papers have been accused, wrongly of course, by the Brockville Times of insinuating that the conservative soldiers were cowards, and it is alleged that many ungracious things were said of Col. Hughes because he was a conservative. Col. Hughes has his friends and they are not confined to the political party with which he is affiliated. He may have been criticised for his irregular proposition to organize a regiment for foreign service, by that act having presumed to do what belonged to another. But no one has accused him of cowardice.

Col. Hughes simply erred in judgment, and as a result of acting impetuously, of giving expression to his emotions without taking their effect into account. His blunder seems to have cost him the displeasure of the commandant, Major-General Hutton, who barred the way to his appointment as an officer of the Canadian contingent. He seems to have had an intimation that he was wanted, and his name was associated with the regiment in the early announcements regarding it, and it was only when he reported for duty, after receiving a send-off which showed his personal popularity in Lindsay, his home, that he learned of his rejection.

It is well it should be known that Col. Hughes was quite acceptable to the government, and that it was anxious to give him the place he coveted and upon his merits. Col. Hughes has been long and actively identified with the Canadian militia, and has been most anxious to serve his country and his Queen. He had in view this Transvaal difficulty when parliament sat, and he had it in his mind during the interval, and seemed to divine that some action would be necessary on the part of Canadians. No one who understands the man will think for a moment that he meant to trespass on any other's duty, or usurp his function, in suggesting that troops be sent to South Africa, and in offering to raise and lead them. All this came of his intense feeling, his desire to be up and doing, and the pity is that, for any reason not seriously interfering, he has been overlooked in the honors of the hour. The commandant may have felt that he was warranted in suppressing, and in that way punishing his forwardness, but the friends of Col. Hughes will feel that he has been unfairly dealt with, that the punishment is out of all proportion to the indiscretion he has committed. Perhaps it is not yet too late to give him a commission, as an unattached officer, but ready for service in any emergency which may arise."

The Kind of Fowl to Raise

The public demand is for a yellow-meated and yellow-legged bird, in this country; hence we must breed for this demand, if we wish to make ready sales. There are just two breeds that fill the bill as all-round money making fowls. They are the Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes. The former are divided into three popular varieties, Barred, White and Buff. As to choice of these it is a matter of fancy. They are alike, according to breed. The Plymouth Rocks are a trifle better layers, in my opinion, but the difference is not material.

Both breeds are hardy, easily kept and good foragers. They require good average care, but do best with the best of care. The chicks grow rapidly and evenly; the latter is a great consideration. The pullets lay almost immediately at maturity, which cannot be said of many breeds. Their eggs hatch well in incubators or under hens of the same breed. They are good mothers; their chicks thrive wonderfully in artificial brooders. They make the best of broilers, and cannot be surpassed as roasters.

Either breeds will stand all climates. Their general popularity throughout the country is their greatest recommendation, and once their nature are understood, they prove the best two money-making breeds.

Cranberries.

For autumn and winter use the cranberry is the most wholesome of fruits, possessing medicinal qualities of rare value. In cooking cranberries always use an earthen or porcelain dish. If cooked in tin, iron or brass the acid of the fruit will dissolve some of the metal.

Cranberry Sauce.—Look over and wash one quart of berries, carefully removing all stems and defective fruit. Cook until tender in a closely-covered dish with one-half pint of water. When nearly done add a pint of white sugar, let boil five minutes and set in a cool place to harden.

Cranberry Pie.—Take an heaping cup of cranberries in halves and place in a dish. Add one cup of sugar, one-fourth cup of flour, and one-half cup of water. Mix well together and fill the crust. Dot with small pieces of butter, put on an upper crust, and bake in a quick oven.

Cranberry Roll.—Roll out rich biscuit crust, one-fourth inch in thickness, spread with stewed cranberries, roll the edges together and press them well. Sew a floured cloth around and boil for two hours. Serve with cream and sugar or any good sauce.

Cranberry Blancmange.—To one quart of berries, add one pint of water and one pound of sugar. Cook until nearly tender, then thicken with cornstarch rubbed smooth in a little water. Boil ten minutes and turn into a mold to cool. Serve with whipped cream or cream and sugar.

Cranberry Shortcake.—Make a crust of one quart of flour, one-fourth cup of butter, and two table-spoonfuls of baking powder; bake in cakes. Split open with a hot knife and butter, as soon as they are taken from the oven. Fill with well-sweetened cooked cranberries, and serve with cream and sugar or sauce.

News of the Week

—Inspector Ballard of Hamilton reports that out of 7,000 public school pupils 418 are short-sighted.

—Forty-five citizens of Napanee were before Magistrate Daly one day last week charged with having procured liquor during prohibited hours. All local hotel-keepers were summoned as witnesses against them. All the parties were fined $2 each.

—Mrs. Fred. Lingham of Belleville gave a silk flag to the Canadian contingent for the Transvaal and promised the Belleville man who placed it on the walls of Pretoria goal, where her husband was confined by the Boers during the Jameson raid, the finest gold watch purchasable in Canada.

—At 8 o'clock Thursday night the stable of Mr. John Ross, who lives two miles and a half south of Holland Landing, York county, was seen to be on fire and on arriving at the stable the sad news was revealed that Mr. Ross had perished in the flames. It appears Mr. Ross went out with the lantern to attend to his horses and cow for the night, and that in some way he upset the lantern and in trying to extinguish the fire he lost his life. His horse and cow, besides the buggy and waggon and other rigs were burned. Deceased was an elderly man and leaves a widow and daughter, Miss Ross, who teaches in the Newmarket Model school.

District Notes

—The agitation to form a pork packing establishment at Stouffville has succeeded. Nearly $70,000 has been subscribed, and buildings will be erected at once.

—The Burk's Falls Arrow of last week contained the following pathetic appeal: Lost, one black Thomas cat, middle age, respectable habits, wears whiskers and furs in summer, and is usually full of fun and merriment. Kindly return to his sorrowing owner, Mr. O. Booster."

—Peterboro town council should at once place themselves in communication with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, as they have evidently been overlooked in the distribution of favors in this "The Growing Time." Here is what the Times has to say last week: With 17 empty stores in the heart of the town and 300 vacant houses, Peterboro is in a bad way.

—Mrs. Josh Wayper, wife of the champion bird shot of Canada, accompanied her husband and a party of Hespeler sports to the Moon River district, Muskoka, on their annual deer hunting expedition. Before going Mrs. Wayper purchased a deer license, the only one issued to a woman in that section of the country, and left with the expectation of bringing back with her two deer. Mrs. Wayper shoots a rifle very well. This will be her first experience with big game.

—Mr. George Curran, son of the proprietor of the Orillia News-Letter, arrived at Dawson City on October 24, probably. Writing from White Horse Rapids on the 16th, he expected to reach Dawson in eight days. He says:—"The fare from Lake Bennett to Dawson is now $200, freight $10 a hundred pounds. Two men, Laidlaw of Seattle and Johnston of England, were drowned at White Horse to-day, their scows striking the rocks and going to pieces. There is no sleeping accommodation here so we had to bunk out, and meals cost $1 50 each—poor at that. The cold is increasing the farther north we get. Scows are selling for $1,000 each at Lake Bennett. There is going to be a great rush to Cape Nome, about 3,000 having left Dawson already for there, as there have been rumors of 'big finds. Adlin, well known, has turned out poor and hundreds of men are leaving that district daily. Wonderful changes have taken place in this country since we were here 15 months ago."

—The Peterboro Examiner gives the following particulars of a terrible mining accident on Oct. 21st at Cameron's mine, Jack's Lake, North Peterboro, and which resulted in the sudden and horrible destruction of one life and maiming for life and blinding of another. Just as the miners were getting ready to put in the last blast for the night, Peter Weese, one of the employees, was in the blacksmith shop warming some dynamite for the finishing up of the day's work, but it proved to be the finishing of his life, for the dynamite exploded, killing him instantly. His body was horribly mutilated—both hands were blown off, his eyes blown out, his right leg torn in a horrible manner, and his body fearfully lacerated. Peter Weese had been married only about ten months, and his widow, bereft of her husband, in such a shocking and sudden manner, has the sympathy of the whole community, and his afflicted parents and sisters and brothers share in the public sympathy. The foreman of the mine, Mr. Galbraith, had one eye blown out, and the other blinded. His hands were so badly injured that Dr. Kelly and Dr. Harding of Coe Hill, amputated one hand at the wrist and the other at the first joint. He has been removed from his boarding place at Mr. J. A. McCall's to Coe Hill, where he will be more convenient to his medical attendants. He expects his wife and son from Massachusetts as soon as the journey can be made. The foreman had his senses all through his terrible experience. The shock of the explosion split the building in half, hurling one side one way, and the other another. Fingers, bones and shreds of flesh lay in all directions. Weese's horse in the stable, a short distance from the shop, was blown, stable and all, a distance of 15 feet, and lay till the men were taken care of. When the horse was helped to its feet it seemed crazy for a time, and is still deaf, but is able to do light work. At the time of the explosion Mr. W. Daniels was going out of the front door, and was blown a distance of two rods without any serious injury. However he was dazed for a time, and was deaf all the evening. His brother and Peter Weese's brother David were in the shaft. Both were terribly shocked.

TO THE DEAF.—A rich lady, cured of her Deafness and Noises in the Head by Dr. Nicholson's Artificial Ear Drums, has sent £1,000 to his Institute, so that deaf people unable to procure the Ear Drums may have them free. Apply to Department A.T.E. The Institute, "Longcott," Gunnersbury, London W., England.—22-1yr.

Selection of Rams.

It is a good time now to select your ram for next season's use. A change is indispensable to keep up the stamina of the flock. Rams to be kept on should have the best attention and care from now on to the breeding time. Improvement of condition is a slow process and should be begun in good time.—American Sheep Breeder.
