The idea has got abroad that the railway conductors laid off by the G.T.R. have all resigned or taken their conge, as if it were merited.

This is not true. It is very far from the truth. The majority of the conductors have refused to resign. They demanded that the management of the G.T.R. gives reasons for their dismissal. The Grooming of Horses.

The practice of washing horses, as nioves the natural oil from the outer chill, writes a practical man in the Kentucky Stock Farm. The applica-tion of water to a horse's skin increases the heat conducting power of his coat, and lowers the temperature of the surface by evaporation being colder than that of the skin. Although in hot climates, like that of India, and in many parts with us, the horse may be washed with impunity, provided that he is quick- LEAD PACKETS ONLY ly dried, I do not ! think that such may be performed. This fact is certainly a strong argument against the practice in question. If it is imperative to wash, and there is not sufficient help to have the horse we may, after scraping and, going over him with two or three dry rubbers, take him out and exercise him at a brisk pace until he gets We should then walk him about until his circulation regains its normal condition before taking him in. If we cannot give this exercise we may, after scraping and drying him, put on him a good supply of warm clothing, bandage his legs, and leave him thus to dry under his rugs, which we will do in an hour or less. He should afterthat be exercised and well rubbed down, so as to prevent his getting chilled. A good plan for getting a horse to dry quickly and safely under clothing is to cover the animal's back and loins with straw before putting on a rug, so as to utilize the low heat conducting power of air and to give as little impediment. as possible for the escape of mois-Water has no power to remove the
