A. HIGINBOTHAM

Dispensing Druggist Lindsay

WRECK NEAR CAMPBELLFORD. Several cars of a double-header freight on the Midland division of the Grand Trunk ran off the track near Campbellford Saturday night and were badly wrecked, some plunging down an embankment. No person was injured.

FREE FROM DEBT.

The fowl supper held at Fenelon Falls on Monday in connection with the opening of the new Methodist church was a big success, there being a large attendance of villagers and outsiders. The receipts amounted to over $250. It is stated that the new church is now entirely free from debt, which must be exceedingly gratifying to the members of the congregation and to the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bedford.

Industrial Training and Technical Education Study--Report of Summer Work of the Royal Commission

After spending six months in Europe, Dr. J. W. Robertson, chairman of the Royal Commission on Industrial Training and Technical Education, which visited Lindsay, has returned to Ottawa. The other commissioners returned to Canada several weeks ago, and are at work upon the many reports, records and documents obtained abroad.

The credentials of the commission, the helpfulness of Lord Strathcona, the co-operation of the educational authorities in England, Scotland and Ireland, and the generous assistance of the British Embassies in the foreign countries, opened every desirable door.

The commissioners regard themselves as exceedingly lucky in the opportunities which came to them; and the pleasures of their experiences in seeing and learning were increased by the belief and hope that the work they were doing would prove beneficial to Canada. For example, in the city of Halifax, 60 per cent. of all the boys and girls who leave the elementary day schools continue their education at evening vocational classes and technical day courses. In the city of Edinburgh the schemes to secure educational effort and opportunity for the boys and girls who have left the elementary schools have also not been successful. The earnestness of the pupils, their interest in their work, and the regularity of their attendance were evidence of their own recognition of the value of the education they are receiving. In the United Kingdom and attendances at these technical and evening classes is voluntary, whereas in twenty-one of the German Empire states of the German Empire attendance for a number of hours per week (from four to eight) is compulsory for boys from fourteen to seventeen. In a few of the states it is compulsory also for girls. The employers are required to provide opportunities for their employees to attend such classes, to be over before seven o'clock in the evening. Notwithstanding the immense progress and the manifold evidences of progress in this new field of educational effort in England, Scotland and Ireland, one seldom hears any laudation by the people themselves of what they are doing. The refrain of nearly every comment on the educational work of England, by an Englishman, is lamentation at its backwardness, compared with that of Germany. I could not fully share that feeling after being over Germany and other European countries. Whatever of backwardness, due to neglect or indifference in the past may still exist in the United Kingdom—and it still stares at you out of the factory workers and their living quarters in the big cities—it appeared to me that a most resolute and well directed effort has been continued during the last seven or ten years, and that it is only a question of time when the spirit and fruits of the present movement will have reached all classes as fully as in Germany. Education did not seem to be planned or cherished as a means whereby the individual got ahead of other individuals. It looks like a great national service whereby all the individuals are being trained towards ability for their respective occupations in the interest of the State. Elsewhere more emphasis was laid on the development of individualism with its tendency to exploit the uneducated for profit. The spirit of sociability and the evidence of "feeling at home" by the children in their classes and playgrounds impressed me. There was not the shadow of an indication that the military or any other system of organization to excess had curbed the natural spirits and manners of the children. The demeanor was that of well-bred, gentlemanly children at ease, interested and enthusiastic regarding their work. Everywhere thoroughness was not proclaimed, but was revealed by what was being done. I never remarked upon the excellence of the specimens of hand-writing in the schools, but I would mention the legibility, beauty and neatness of the hand-writing.

SINGING AND CULTURE. Singing was taught, not merely as a means of voice production or voice culture. It impressed me as being rather the culture of the whole child—body, mind and spirit, trained towards controlled expression. I had not thought it possible that singing could be made such an instrument for physical and spirit development.

I found the same thing in the Danish schools. One of the main aims of the system of education in most of the German states seems to be to make for the efficiency of the individual as a citizen as well as for effectiveness as a worker. Attendance at educational classes of some sort between four and seven years of age is compulsory for the sake of technical improvement and industrial efficiency no doubt, but also for the development of power and a sense of responsibility on the citizen as such. Comparing a German city with one in England or Canada, one is struck by the absence from the streets in the evening of the youth of both sexes, standing on street corners or wandering aimlessly about. In Denmark I was impressed by the fine appearance of the cultivated fields, by the spirit of contentment, but not of apathy—that one found among the rural population, by the persuasiveness of their patriotism, and the intensity by which they pursue co-operation methods in connection with rural life, particularly in the production of butter, in the production of bacon, in the collection of eggs and in the improvement of their cattle and pigs. While in Denmark is chiefly an agricultural country, we found technical schools in the comparatively small towns. Physical culture is made much of. The people's high schools, which are peculiar to Denmark, are in a class by themselves. They consist of a one-year course of 5 months in the winter for young men between 18 and 25 years of age, and a three-months' course in summer for young women of the same age. They are cultural schools, devoting much time to history, Danish literature, physical culture and singing, and they are one of the prime forces in the training of the workers as in Ireland and Scotland respectively. Perhaps from so other countries were we able to learn as much concerning efficiency in organization and in the carrying out of methods for the training of the workers as in Ireland and Scotland respectively. The Municipal Technical College at Belfast is a beautiful building, and a model of well considered suitability for instruction in the principles that Switzerland, we found real apprentice trade schools. The young men served their apprenticeship under shop conditions in those schools, were taught a trade thoroughly, and were able to pass the State examination for the completed apprenticeship at the end of their course. The course in the engineering trade was four years. Such workmen were esteemed as being so well trained that they were in greater demand than apprentices who had served in the usual way in shops only. The output is sold at a higher price than the output of similar factories where the work is done by journeymen.

BEAUTY IS IMPRESSIVE. In all these old lands one is impressed with the beauty of the countryside. The excellence of the roads is wherein perhaps they are most in advance of us in Canada.

WILBERFORCE. Wilberforce, Nov. 14.—Miss Bella Graham returned home last week after an extended visit with friends and relatives in Galt and Toronto. Mr. J. J. Tonkin left for a short visit to his home in New York. Mr. Chapman Holmes left here on Saturday to visit his sister in Millbrook. Before leaving he complained of a very sore throat, and we now hear that he is very ill in the hospital at Peterboro. Mr. George Webber, sr., got lost in the bush during Monday's big snow storm. However, he was met by another hunting party and reached home safely. Mr. George Miller paid a flying visit to Lindsay last week. Last week's bad weather accounts for the small number of deer reported shot this fall.

ZION, FENELON. Zion, Fenelon, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Wm. Wilson also Miss M. Naylor, left for Toronto on Monday morning, where they will attend the Women's Institute for a few days. Mr. Amos Worsley is wearing a very pleasant smile just now. A young housekeeper arrived on Monday last. Mr. E. Oliver, of Islay, was at Zion on Sunday. A few of our young people attended the social evening at the home of Mrs. M. Maboe, of Cameron, on Thursday evening last. Mr. Wilbert Worsley spent the week end at the home of his parents here. Mr. L. Worsley was in Lindsay on Friday, also Mr. and Mrs. D. McNeven. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilson, Mrs. L. Morris and Mrs. T. Hill, were to town on Saturday.

PLEASANT POINT. Pleasant Point, Nov. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. George Endicott, of North Ops, called on friends in this vicinity on Sunday last. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sampson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hore. Our new school, which was completed this fall, will be much improved by the new fence which is to be erected shortly. The ratepayers made a few bees and got the fence some time ago, and the intention is to have the wire on as soon as the ground closes.

HEALTH PROTECTION. In PURE OLIVE OIL—the best blood maker, strength giver, nerve tonic and tissue-builder known. Practically all nutrition.
