About three years ago the doctor commenced sending out preparations for medical purposes, the ingredients of which he refused to make public. He advertised these preparations extensively, and printed testimonials from prominent persons who had used his medic ne and were satisfied with its results. The advertisement gave the name of diseases which he claimed the preparation would cure or benefit. In consequence of his policy the Medical Council authorized its Discipline Committee to investiggte what the doctor was doing.

The court, in allowing the appeal and directing that the appellant's name be restored, does so without prejudice to the question as to whether on a subsequent enquiry there may his name. A REVELATION OF CANADA. About 40 years' service in the cause of good farming, the Farmers' Advocate and Home Magazine, o London, Ont., has in its Christmas Number of 1906, distanced all previous records, both in the general interest and value of the articles, and the nichness and variety of its illustrative features, particularly the tricolor process work. Most imposing of the latter is the double-page panoramic view of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, which every farmer's son will certainly aspire to attend after the faithful account given af what is done at that great institution. There are eight colored pages in the number, besides eighty wash drawings and photo engravings, including six full-page and many half-page pictures. The artic-

THE GOLDEN FLEECE.

Most Highly Prized of the Surviving Orders of Chivalry. Of all the orders of mediaeval chivalry which have survived the shock of successive revolutions on the continent of Europe since the great cataclysm of 1789, that of the Golden Fleece is perhaps the most distinguished and the most highly coveted by personages of royal birth or of illustrious patrician lineage. The badge of the order is the figure of a sheep in embossed gold suspended from a heavy chain of gold. The full robes consist of a long mantle of crimson velvet, cut in the fashion of a sacerdotal cope, richly embroidered at the borders with emblematic devices of stars, half moons and fleeces in gold and lined with white satin, over a doublet and hose of crimson damask. The full robes also comprise a "chaperon," or hood, with a long flowing streamer of black satin, but this headgear has in modern times been generally dispensed with Originally the robes of the order, which was founded in 1429 by Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy, were of crimson cloth lined with white lamb's wool, and this circumstance has somewhat strengthened the theory that the golden fleece was instituted by Philip the Good in grateful recognition of the immense treasures which the Duke of Burgundy had acquired from wool of the flocks reared on his vast estates in Flanders. Be it as it may, the woolen costume was changed in 1473 at a chapter held at Valenciennes for the more costly materials of velvet, taffeta, damask and gold embroid-

From Pagan Rites. The people of Varna, on the coast of the Black sea, in Bulgaria, have a singular custom which they observe at the feast of the Epiphany, which takes place on Jan. 6. The clergy, both Greeks and Bulgarians, accompanied by an immense crowd, go to the seashore, carrying with them a wooden cross. The cross is thrown by the clergy into the sea, and thereupon the strongest swimmers jump in after it. The best swimmer gets it, of course, and brings it in triumph to shore.

The Varna people have a still more singular salt water custom on the same day. After dark at night all the newly married men in the town are conduct- | We ed, with bands of music and singing, will send to the shore and made to take three successive plunges into the icy water. They are then conducted home, where their brides, accompanied by their relatives and friends, have been awaiting them in state. After this there is feasting and merry making. These singular customs are believed to have a Pagan

Arnold's Comment.

As school inspector Matthew Arnold was examining a class in geography one day, and, holding up the poker with which he was about to stir the fire, he asked if any child could tell him where it was manufactured. There was a long silence, broken by the schoolmistress, who remarked nervously that such information was not mentioned in Cornwell's geography. "No." said Arnold; "Cornwell's an
