Six Exacting Conditions Had to be Fulfilled

Mr. Ichiba, a well-known Japanese author, has just celebrated, under remarkable conditions, his second marriage. His first wife died in April last, and the mourning spouse immediately set about finding another

He commissioned all his friends to keep their eyes open for him, and gave a standing order to the various matrimonial agencies in the capital to report immediately any likely candidate for the honors of being, the second Mrs. Ichiba. He laid down his primary conditions which th successful candidate would have to fulfil. They were:

The lady must have passed through all the various conditions of life and the various phases of society, from A to Z, as only by ripe experience can perfection be attained.

Except the clothes she should stand up in she should have no worldly oossessions whatsoever. She must be severed from her famly entirely.

She must contract to keep the kitchen and bathroom absolutely spick and span and ready for instant use. Her style of hairdressing must be a la mode Japanese - no foreign frills, pads, switches, or toupets to be permitted. She must stand five feet high in her tabi, and her limbs and body be of a proper plumpness "-as to face, features, and other points, these were not to matter.

As might be expected, Mr. Ichiba had considerable difficulty in finding his Juliet, and looked over fortyseven candidates before being satisfied with a young lady of twenty-

Priests, middlemen, and registrars all barred from the marriage ceremony, as were wedding guests, and anybody else who might be pretree. The bridegroom stole out and sought two pints of sake with which the wedding cups were filled and the ceremony celebrated. Thereafter the bridegroom appeared at the door of his house, and announced to those waiting that they were married, and there was no need to wait further, as he did not propose to spoil his wedding day by a reception.
