OPEN LETTER TO A BOOR ON WHEELS

Some day, my ill-mannered friend, you are going to go too far. Some day when you swerve around a street corner, you are going to clip the buttons off the wrong pedestrians vest, and he is going to catch up with you, haul you off your comfy upholstery and deal you the smack-down you deserve. You're a veritable Titan of self-assurance, aren't you, when you're behind an eight-cylinder engine? But how are you on your feet? Are you the same dashing, imposing, self-assertive personage for whom the rest of the world must make room? Would you dare shove another pedestrian aside; would you jostle a six-footer? You would not for you're just a grubby little inferiority complex who's been sublimated by a shot of gasoline.

And what's the reason for this breakneck rush of yours, anyway? You're in an automobile. You'll arrive at your destination 10, 15 or 20 times quicker than the pedestrian you're crowding back on the curb. The best he can do is five or six miles an hour. You are going 25 or 30, perhaps 40 miles an hour. Is your business ten times more urgent than his? My, my, what an important fellow you are! What vast designs, what momentous projects must occupy your walking hours to justify such impatience.

The automobile, it seems, is the devil's gift to the Little Man. Put him in control of a motor car and he's cock o' the cross-walks. But if you suddenly yanked that ton or two of iron and steel out from under him, you'd find him just a measly nonentity with the mental set-up of a public school bully. You may say I'm in a bad frame of mind. You're right! And I'll get over it when fellows like you begin to use a little care, caution, courtesy and common-sense when you're driving on the streets and highways of this province.

"A PEDESTRAIN"

HAVE YOU EVER SAVED A LIFE

Years of training and years of experience lie behind the deft strokes of the great surgeon's knife, as he performs a delicate operation. Life and death are in the balance. Loved ones tremble in apprehension. Finally, after anxious hours, success! The supreme audacity of one man in a million has saved another life.

Most of us can never save a life that way. The surgeon's skill is not ours. But by preventing accidents on streets and highways, every one of us, whether we are drivers or pedestrians, can just as surely save lives and safeguard our fellow men against crippling or fatal injuries.

We can teach our children the enduring principles of safe driving and safe walking—of safe living. We can correct the unsafe practices of our own driving and walking. We can uphold the authority of our public officials in impartial and effective law enforcement. We can help in organized efforts to spread the gospel of traffic safety to everyone. And most of all, we can resolve in our own minds to perform no act dangerous to others or ourselves.

Great skill and long training are not needed for this kind of life saving. What we do need—all of us—is a new realization that "I AM my brother's keeper." Will you accept your personal share of this great responsibility? Will you help to stem the tide of blood and death that promises to sweep Ontario's streets and highways? Will you SAVE A LIFE?

Lindberg's Channel Flight Described As Puzzling

Lympne Airdrome, Eng. Aug 9—Col Charles A. Lindberg continued his cross-channel commuting today in puzzling fashion.

Taking along a campers outfit he took off for the continent this afternoon in his second flight there in two days.

Lindberg flew to St. Ingbert, France, with a woman passenger Sunday, and later was reported at Calais, presumably en route to Dr. Alexis Carrel's St. Gildas Island home.

Makes Trip Alone

But today he surprised Lympne authorities by returning getting gasoline, and taking off again for France alone. He did not disclose his ultimate destination, but was reported over St. Ingbert 30 minutes later.

The airport people were puzzled. On Saturday, they said, Lindberg landed here from France and was met by a woman in an automobile—some thought it was Mrs. Lindberg. The two motored to his sevenoaks Kent, home and both returned to Lympne Sunday.

They took off together for the continent, but Lindberg was alone when he returned today and when he took off again.

SEED TREATMENT IS INEXPENSIVE

"All growers and distributors of seed have a very direct responsibility in the matter of seed-borne diseases" affirmed Dr. J. H. Craigie of the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory, Winnipeg, addressing members of the Canadian Seed Growers Association, at Saskatoon. Referring to seed-treatment as a protection against smuts and root rots, Dr. Craigie said that never in the history of agriculture have remedial measures been so effective, simple and inexpensive. He explained that when seed is treated with organic mercury dust not only are externally-borne organisms destroyed but the fungicide on the seed affords considerable protection to the germinating seed and young seedlings against soil-inhabiting parasitic organisms such as those which cause damping-off and seedling blights. Dr. Craigie commenced the growing practice by seed-houses of treating much of their seed before distributing it and believed the practice would soon be general. Something might be done, he thought, to instill into the grower a consciousness that to grow a diseased crop is an unneighborly act, just as it is to allow one's farm to become run over with weeds. In some districts central treating plants might be established in others a portable seed-treating outfit might be used. H. J. Kemp of Swift Current Experimental Station appeared on the programme of the convention and delivered a most interesting address on the principles of new automatic machine which he has produced for the purpose of treat-

HEPBURN ANNOUNCES EARLY FALL ELECTION

Platform of Liberal Party Outlined By Premier to Huge Crowd at St. Thomas Rally.

PROTECT HYDRO USERS

Collection of $50,000,000 Succession Duties Promised. With Law and Order Maintained Against C.I.O.

ST. THOMAS—Aug. 12.—Premier Hespburn tonight definitely committed Ontario to an early fall election and announced his determined anti-C.I.O. policy as the main of the three major reasons why he and his Government are seeking endorsement from the general electorate at this time instead of 1938 as originally had been planned.

With Conservative leader Rowe persistently challenging the correctness of that stand there was no other course open to him, said the Prime Minister, but to place the facts of the serious situation fairly and squarely before the public and let the public judge with its ballots.

"The people will have to decide," he told his great convention audience "Whether they want Lewis and lawlessness in this fair Province of ours or whether they want it to remain a decent, law-abiding place in which to live.

Date Not Fixed

Not the slightest indication did Mr. Hespburn give as to the actual date of the election, but it is learned on excellent authority that a decision in that connection may be expected shortly. Of the three dates which the cabinet is said to be considering, Oct 19 is the latest and possibly the likeliest.

Need for further protection of Hydro users against any adverse final decision that may arise out of the present Hydro contract courts litigation and need for unhampered authority to proceed with collections of $50,000,000 in succession duties out of which, he charges Ontario has been "defrauded" under previous Tory Administrations, were he announced his further reasons for now going to the country. Re-election would mean, he pledged that the interests of the Power Consumers would be amply safeguarded, and that the attempt of certain wealthy estates "to band together and block our succession duties drive" would once and for all time be defeated.

Over the last two years, he revealed, succession duties collections had reached the staggering total of $28,000,000 with those collections proceeding as they should proceed, said he, the Government would be liable at the Legislature session of 1938 to duplicate its "sunshine budget" of this year.

Law And Order Challenged

"Mr. Rowe," said the Premier "in dealing directly with the highly-controversial C.I.O. question, "has definitely challenged the policy of this Government in maintaining law and order, and of respecting property he

Control of Liquor Promised by Rowe

St. Thomas Aug. 11—Re-establishment of a system of liquor control in Ontario, rather than a continuance of "a policy without control," will be undertaken by the Conservative party if elected in the forthcoming provincial election.

A declaration to this effect was made by Hon. Earle Rowe party leader, at the Elgin constituency nominating convention here Tuesday night. Named as Candidate to oppose Premier Mitchell Hespburn was Norman R. Martin, 47 year-old dairy farmer North Yarmouth. Mr Hespburn will be formally nominated Thursday.

Mr. Rowe declared that under his liquor policy "all mushroom dives and children's saloons" would be closed "The vicious-patronage system where-by a man must be a supporter of the government to obtain a license" would be done away with and closing regulations would be strictly enforced.

Patronage in the civil service would also be stopped and appointments would be made on efficiency "rather than for blind allegiance to any party Smoke Screen

Contending Premier Hespburn was using labor troubles in the province as "a smoke screen," the Conservative leader, with reference to the Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization said.

"It is the duty of a government to maintain order. But never before has the right of free association been challenged. Do not let those seeking to draw a red herring across the trail confuse you on the true issues."

Under his slogan, "A square deal for the masses," he continued: "I expect Mr. Hespburn will have $10 for his campaign fund for every dollar I have. I know there are rumblings from the money barons that Hespburn has placed his stamp of approval on Lewis and his crowd and the reign of terror that is sweeping the United States at the present time."

"What sort of individual," he asked "was this man Lewis, whom Mr. Rowe was endorsing At Herrin, Illinois, some years ago, he charged, Lewis hirelings had, under a flag of truce promised some besieged miners safe conduct to their homes. But once these miners had emerged from their places of refuge, they had seized and many of them lined up against a wall and shot down in cold blood. Of those that escaped this punishment—and it was simply because, said the Premier they wanted to remain in their own union and not pay toll to the Lewis organization—some were afterward caught and hanged to trees and some some had their throats cut in public street."

Homer Martin's Threat.

Then, said Mr. Hespburn, what about Homer Martin, Lewis general organizer and chief of staff? Martin, he charged, had used the following language in addressing workers of the Douglas Aircraft Company on one occasion.

"I'd hate awful bad to lose a wing because some worker thought he was getting a bad deal from his employer."

"If Douglas expects people to ride in his planes with any real sense of safety, he must be sure of the goodwill of his employees."

"I ride a good deal, and I like to know that the one I'm riding in is built by people who are satisfied."

Was there anything more cold-blooded in the way of suggestion than that which Martin had packed into these assertions? asked Mr. Hespburn. Was it any wonder he said that good thinking people everywhere were recognizing in him and his employer, Lewis, the dire menace to peace and prosperity they were?

"But," he jibed, "If Mr. Rowe wants to align himself with this sort of men he is welcome to do so, but I don't think the laboring men, whose votes he is after now have anything in common with them. I say that Earl Rowe is entirely misjudging the intelligence and calibre of the laboring men of Ontario, if he thinks for a moment that any one of them would follow the suggestion of his friend Martin."
