DROWNING ACCIDENT, - While some boys were skating on Vanstone's pond on Monday Waiter Fogg, aged eleven, son of John Fogg of the Upper Canada Furniture Factory, broke through the ice and was drowned. Tom Fairbairn, son of Postmaster J. B. Fairbairn, rap to his assistonce, and taking off his overcoat made an | ing to the horses a flery colt kicked him on effort to reach him. The ice gave way, but he struggled heroically and had nearly reached Fogg, who hung to the ice, when the hands of the drowning lad became numb, and losing his hold he was carried by the current under the ice and drowned. After an hour's search James Nookes succeeded in recovering the body. Young Fairbairn's daring effort to rescue the drowning lad is worthy of great praise. Mr. and Mrs. Fogg are both very seriously ill, hence this blow will fall heavily on
