CORRECTION.-In the figures given in last week's issue of THE Post of the North Ontario election, I made some slight errors, which it is well to correct. Mr. Cockburn's total vote in 1891 was 1 952 instead of 1 922 I omitted the conservative loss in one township, which if counted, would have given a net loss of 15. The liberal gain in Mara was 16-act 22-and loss in Oakley 31-not 32. These mistakes do not, however, seriously affect the value of the figures for the purpose for which they were intended.

OBITUARY -Again death has visited us and taken one of the oldest and most valued members of our community. Oa Wednesday of last week Mrs. Maclean, relict of the late Mr. Malcolm Maclean, passed to her eternal rest. The funeral took place on Friday and was very largely attended. The Rev. Mucleod conducted the service and preached a most impressive sermon. Mrs. Maclean was in her eighty-sixth year and had lived many years in this place, and during those years she secured the love and esteem of a large circle of friends.

[Correspondence of THE POST.] laborers here, by Mr. and Mrs. Somerville, proprietors of the boarding hotel. A great many from far and rear were anticipating a visit to the canal on the occasior, and extensive preparations were made by the host and hostess to receive and entertain all who should come. The mild weather came, the sleighing went, and on Thursday, the day set for the tee, the rain continued and all operations at the works ceased, to that those who came early failspite the weather a goodly number assembled. Mr. Somerville had the large dining at the elbow this week, having received a ed to see the work under headway. Dehall beautifully decorated with evergreens singers and speakers. Great painstaking care was manifestly exercised by Mr. Somerville in fitting his home so tastefully to receive his guests, but no less was the attention given by Mrs. Somerville to her part of the entertainment. A table was spread the length of the hall, which accommodated fifty persons; it was well-de-signed and executed. The provisions which covered it were of a superior quality, of great variety, and of superfluous quantity. After all were satisfied, it was apparent that one hundred more might still be filled and twelve basketfuls be gathered up. It was unanimously agreed that the tea was one of the best ever served at such gatherings. The programme was varied and so long that much of it had to be omitted. The musical part was han-dled by the Victoria Road choir in their usual masterly style. The duett by Mrs. Brentnell and Mr. Brentnell, of Bexley, was much appreciated and loudly applauded; also the solo by Miss Brentnell was much enjoyed and encored. Messre. Walter Tree and Walter Harris gave instrumental duetts with good effect.
