Jottings.

An ominous article in the Toronto World a few days ago, pointing to a declaration of war against the United States has caused no little alarm in Washington, and some considerable anxiety in London and on the continent. It is understood Pauncefore at the request of McKinley cables the article verbatum to Salisbury; and the latter has instructed a high official in this country to find out what "Billy McLean" is up to now, if things are all wrong in East York, or if it would be well to mobilize the flying squadron. There is much concern in the old and new world capitals and it is clear there is a "crisis" on somewhere. Perhaps the war department may find it advisable to establish a cavalry corp in Toronto, and if so they will know where to buy some good fast horses.

The contest appears to have been quite a lively one; the editor of the Gazette received 120 promises and got 146 votes, which is better than the average experience. The campaign was marked by charges that the editor was too old; but he pointed to Gladstone, Bsmarck, John A. Sir Oliver, Sir Chas. Tupper and others older than he; and he declares that if he makes a worse councillor than some he could mention he would feel inclined to go and jump over the Falls,-which not being a "Sam Patch" he is not likely to do. As was anticipated by all who knew them, the interest which Lord and Lady Aberdeen took in such a practical way in the Dominion, while here in official residence, continues in scarcely diminished form now that they have returned home, relieved of the cares and responsibilities of office.
