From Jest to Earnest.

The suggestion which one or two humorous opposition papers made, in a vein of fine sarcasm, when the attainment of Imperial Penny Postage was first announced, viz, - that the Postmaster-General's portrait should appear on the new stamp, has been duplicated in all seriousness in London Eng. The Pall Mall Gazette on Christmas eve remarked in the course of an appreciative article, "We ought to have an Imperial Penny Postage stamp with Mr. Henniker Heaton's portrait on it. A Deficit that Wont Materialize, The terrible deficit in the post-office department, which is so energetically predicted by opposition papers, and apparently and earnestly desired, as the result of the sweeping reductions in postal rates, will not be a matter of very serious moment after all, if the unbroken experience of the past is to be any guide for the future. Similar reductions in Great Britain, the United States, and the Dominion, have in the past resulted in an immediate loss all kinds, chocolate, compressed bread, of revenue, but within two or three years at most, the balance has been recovered, and the revenue once more been equal to the cost. There is therefore no necessity for the solicitude so patriotically displayed in this regard, nothing wanting that was likely to be and the ingenuity of the pessimists is required, and experts who followed the Oil Company of Toronto, or which combeing wasted in devising new methods

A British Columbia "Old Timer" has been telling an English newspaper that the great mining rushes of the past have occurred each decade in the year ending with a "nine," and instances the historic years of forty-nine, sixtynine, seventy-nine and eighty-nine, all of which were marked by extensive and unusually widespread gold mining excitement. From this and from experiences of last year, and the immediate indications of the coming season, he predicts that this year's rush to the gold fields will place last year's experiences entirely in the shade, all of which is satisfactory as far as it goes, but it only emphasized the unfortunate condition that exists in regard to transportation. The defeat of the Stickeen Railway scheme by the irresponsible senate, while in itself an old story now, is ever new in its disastrous effects upon the development of the country.

There would appear to be a certain amount of poetic justice in the experience of the Klondike Mining, Trading and Transportation Corporation, of which Sir Charles Tupper is president, which has just held its first annual meeting in old London. The experiences of the first year have been anything but encouraging, but the blame for their troubles was princi- by $14,500,000. The increase is entirely pally upon the failure of their attempt to work up a business over the Stickeen river and Teslin lake route, where, owing to the absence of a railway or good wagon read, an exceptional season upset all the Company's calculations and immense loss was the result. Large as last year's trade was, the present year is going to surpass it. For the six months the aggregate trade of the Dominion exceeded last year's figures for the same period due to the large volume of imports, as there was a decrease of $1,700,000 in the exports. For the month of December. however, the exports were about $400,000 larger than for December, 1897, and in able that they will reach last year's figures. The duty exceeded that collected

Toronto, Jan. 21. - The Taggart murder trial was finished yesterday afternoon, and the jury found that the prisoner, Robert Frederick Taggart, was not guilty, on the ground of insanity. During the afternoon a short consultation took place between Mr. Justice Falconbridge and the counsel engaged in the case. The taial then developed a new phase. The judge told the jury that the Crown had fully proven that the prisoner had committed the deed, but the defence raised, and the evidence of the four distinguished medical men, took the case out of the ordinary course, and the one question the jury must decide was, "Was Fortunately the noise of the explosion attracted the attention of Mr. Duncan, merchant tailor, in the next building, who saw the lad lying in flames on the ground, and rushed out to his rescue, and enveloped the boy in his overcoat, smothering the flames. The boy was badly burnt about the face, head and hands, the skin coming off as the coat was removed. He suffered intensely, but it is not thought his injuries will result fatally. The premises also took fire, but it was extinguished before much damage was done.

FRANCE AND NEWFOUNDLAND

by Cable. London, Jan. 19 .- The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, speaking last evening at the banquet of the Wolverhampton Chamber of Commerce, reviewed at great length the various threatening foreign questions confronting the Government. In connection with the withdrawal of the French demand for an extension of the settlement at Shanghai, "Mr. Cham-berlain congratulated his hearers that Great Britain's opposition to the French proposal had been strenuously supported by the report of the United States. "That, I think," he said, "a magnificent and noteworthy fact. Nay, I think and hope it will become history. It shows that circumstances are bringing about the community of interests between Angle-Saxons, which, in the future, may have far-reaching and beneficial results." He welcomed the changing tone on the part of France, declaring that if the French Government desired an amicable settlement of all remaining difficulties, Great Britain would meet France more than half way.

French Shore Question. Dwelling elaborately upon the Newfoundland difficulty, the Minister said: "In spite of charges to the contrary, nobody here has the slightest desire to evade the abligations of the treaty of Utrecht; but we do desire that the rights conferred upon France by that treaty should not be extended and abused to the injury of our pocket. If, when those rights are properly defined, they are found to possess a value for France we shall be perfectly willing to observe them; or if France is willing to arrange for their extinction on fair and reasonable terms of compensation." Mr. Chamberlain described in detail how the French had been continually encroaching and striving to extend their claims on the French shore, while, at ery had been continually decreasing. "In fact," he said, "by means of alleged rights, under antiquated treation thay have strangled our colony of Newfoundland, and have done so without a penny prior to his transfer to North Bay.
