Britton Bros. SUCCESS IN SPECTACLE FITTING.

[Written for the Optician.] The optician or jeweller who expects to make a success of spectacle fitting can only succeed by dint of close attention to every case that comes to hand.

Leaving complicated work, such as astigmatism, muscular weakness and unequal eyesight, aside altogether, we find a large field of work in comparatively simple cases.

Where glasses have never been worn, the first point to be considered is the condition of the patient's eyes. In a great many instances we find that the eyes have been severely strained.

It is far less troublesome to dispose of a case by giving the patient any glasses which he will accept. But the conscientious dealer can not afford to dispose of these cases in so summary a manner.

Our advertisements of the last two weeks have caused such a demand for these Five Dollar Watches that the supply is rapidly diminishing and will soon be exhausted.
