NEWS OF THE WEEK.

HOME AND FOREIGN ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Gathered from the Telegraph and Exchanges.

—A Fredericton (N.B.) barber is charged with having personated a woman voter at the last mayoralty election there.

—Two men sentenced to 14 years' imprisonment ten years ago for a criminal assault in Montreal are believed to be innocent, and the case is being re-opened.

—The British warship Victoria, which recently went on the rocks near Greece, has been floated off, having suffered very slight injury.

—An Icelandic girl named Freda Stephenson was crushed in the elevator at the Clarendon hotel, Winnipeg, Friday night, and died on the following day.

—The western districts of Galicia are famine stricken, like the adjacent provinces of Russia. The Austro-Hungarian government is supplying food to the suffering inhabitants.

—President Harrison has issued his proclamation promulgating a reciprocity treaty with the British West India colonies, Trinidad and the Windward and Leeward islands.

—Sir Henry Wood, British commissioner for the Chicago world's fair, says the British colonies will be largely represented. A special cable says that 300,000 square feet have been allotted in the exhibition to the British empire.

—Charles McElvaine, the murderer, suffered death by electricity in Sing Sing prison Monday. There is considerable difference of opinion among the medical men who witnessed the execution as to whether death was or was not instantaneous.

—David Long, a farmer aged 29, residing on St. Vincent road, near Woodford, committed suicide last Wednesday night by taking strychnine, purchased for the ostensible purpose of poisoning foxes. Domestic troubles are alleged to be the cause of the rash act.

—Herr Bruns, the Berlin socialist agitator, for quoting in a lecture the words of the English Chartist agitator Stephens that "there is a weapon against which rifles and bayonets are powerless—blazing cotton dipped in tar!" has been sentenced to one month's imprisonment.

—The Princess Frederick Leopold of Prussia has expressed her desire to rear her infant without the aid of the bottle, and a special cable says that Emperor William has paused amid grave duties of state to announce his formal consent to this important domestic arrangement.

—A gentleman writing to Woodstock, Ont., from Washington upon the expected visit of the Canadian ministers to the American capital, states that they have "not the ghost of a show" to effect anything, as the United States authorities look upon the visit as a piece of electioneering clap-trap.

—A Toronto doctor has been fined one dollar for neglecting to notify the health authorities of a case of diphtheritic croup which he had attended. This seems a very light fine when it is considered that a neighboring school had to be closed in consequence of an outbreak of the disease.

—The Ontario college of pharmacy has recommended that the sale of "Rough on Rats" be placed under the same restrictions as the sale of other poisons. The "Rough on Rats" route to the other world has become so popular these few years back that something ought to be done to regulate its sale.

—Advices from Omduran, one of the Mahdi's strongholds in the Soudan, from which place Father Ohrwalder and two nuns who had been prisoners in the hands of the fanatical Arabs for nine years recently escaped, show that the natives are engaged in continual riots, and that the state of affairs there is serious.

—The costs in Mrs. Parnell's will suit, which will be tried early in March and involves a sum of £200 000, are enormous. The attorney-general and Sir Charles Russell receive each 800 guineas as fee and 200 guineas for reading the massive pile of papers in the case, and fees of a similar character will be given to the other counsel.

—James Bryce of Ponton went to Dundalk the other day to order a coffin for his sister, who had died the previous evening. On his return he found that his wife had during his absence given birth to twins, and that she too, had passed away. He is left with a family of seven small children, two of them the newly-born twins.

—A party were out elephant hunting at Garhwal under the charge of Major Anson, superintendent of the Bulrampur state, India, who with his wife was riding a tame elephant, which was attacked by one of the wild elephants and overthrown. Major Anson escaped unhurt, but his wife received injuries which a few hours later proved fatal.

—A baby was born in Omaha a few days ago to Mrs. Robert Mortimer that is white to the waistline, and then black from there down with the exception of the left leg and foot from below the knee. There are about fifteen spots on the face, nearly as many more on the scalp, and more are scattered over the shoulders, arms and body. The little fellow is handsome, healthy and hearty.

—Mrs. Osborne, who was arrested in London on Thursday charged with stealing Mrs. Hargreaves' jewelry and with obtaining £350 upon them, was arraigned Friday morning at the Guildhill court, but the treasury department preferring no charge against the prisoner she was discharged. On leaving the court she was rearrested for perjury and remanded without bail for a week.

—A London cable says: Ex-Empress Frederick will come to Windsor castle in the spring with Princess Margaret, when it is expected the latter's marriage with Prince George will be settled. Emperor William looks with favor on the match. .....A despatch to the Cologne Gazette from St. Petersburg says that the czar's eldest daughter has been betrothed to Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch.

—A Vienna cable says: An exciting occurrence is reported from the prison hospital at Agram, capital of Slavonia. About twenty women prisoners, suffering from influenza, seemed to be seized with an insane impulse, all at the same time, to destroy all they could lay their hands on. Shrieking hysterically they began to smash the furniture and throw beds and tables out of the windows. After clearing out the rooms they threw themselves upon the floor, howling in an unearthly manner and indulging in the most grotesque contortions. When a sister of charity, in whose charge they were, attempted to quiet them, they attacked the gentle guards and maltreated them in a shameful manner. Police officers were finally called and assisted in piecing the turbulent women in separate cells. Isolation had the effect of subduing the spirit of violence, and soon the institution was restored to its normal spirit of quietude.

—A London cable says: The queen is suffering from a more acute form of rheumatism than usual, especially in her knees. A court report adds that she is subject to long spells of depression, varied by attacks of irritability. Her physicians deny that there is any cause for alarm. Dr. Jenner's recent visits to Osborne house, which caused considerable talk, were made in accordance with his custom of seeing the queen.

—The Junction City Co-operative Club of Kansas, known as the Bellamy Club, has just entered upon its second year with a full complement of members, most of whom have been with it from the commencement of the club. This club was organized to conduct a common kitchen. There are forty-four ladies belonging to the club, all of whom express their satisfaction as to the result of their experiment. During the year that the society has been in existence the sum of $5,320 has been expended for table supplies. All bills have been paid as fast as contracted, so that no debts have been carried over. The officers of the society all serve without pay. All the cooking for the forty-four families represented has been done by a professional cook at the society's kitchen, and the prepared food delivered at the various residences. The expense is estimated to be fully one-third less than at separate kitchens.

—A London Sunday cable says: An intimate friend of the Prince of Wales states that his royal highness desires to adopt the Princess Mary as his daughter. He is much attached to the young princess, and the untimely death of the Duke of Clarence has seemed to create a strong bond of sympathy between the bereaved father and the late duke's fiancee. The princess wears the deepest possible mourning, and her grief has every mark of sincerity. Prince George is very attentive to Princess Mary, and is often in her company. The young princess reciprocates his affection by showing a sisterly solicitude for his health, which has not been good since his attack of fever. Prince George is troubled a good deal with insomnia. Princess Mary surprised him the other day by giving him a pillow of hemlock, which she had very thoughtfully obtained from America. The cover was embroidered by her own hands. The possibility of Prince George and Princess Mary being married continues to be discussed. It is believed that if they desire to wed the queen will absolve the princess from a good part of the traditional five years' period of mourning and allow an early betrothal.

—Never since the Park Place disaster of last summer has there been a fire in New York city so horrible and attended by such great loss of life as the burning of the Hotel Royal, at sixth avenue and 40th st., early Sunday morning. A large number of people were either burned to death, suffocated or crushed in the fire ruins. Shortly after three o'clock the cry of "fire" rang through the large building. Although the fire started in the basement and the alarm was raised almost immediately the flames spread so rapidly that they soon enveloped the whole building and shut off all means of escape for the guests rooming in the upper stories of the building. Although the first fire apparatus rolled up to the scene a few minutes after the alarm was sounded, it seemed an age before the firemen arrived. The desperate character of the fire became at once apparent, and the chief of the fire brigade sounded three more alarms in quick succession. By this time the inmates of the doomed building fully appreciated their danger, and this fact rendered them helpless, paralyzing them with fear or rendering them desperate. Men and women dressed only in their night robes leaped from the upper windows and fell upon the pavement beneath crushed to death or seriously injured. Others were noticed by the horrified spectators to come to the windows only to be overcome by the smoke and heat and to fall back into the flames to perish. The work of rescue was proceeded with with wonderful rapidity. Firemen, policemen and citizens alike mounted the ladders and carried women and children down to places of safety. Ambulances from all the city hospitals were soon on the scene and conveyed many of the unfortunates to comfortable quarters. Many doctors were also on hand and did all they could to relieve the injured. Before the fire companies arrived one man whose name is not known sprang from a third story window and was dashed to death on the ground below. People turned their faces away horrified at the sight. This was on sixth avenue side of the building. A moment later another man leaped from a window on the 40th-st. side and was instantly killed. Others followed and in a very few moments five mangled bodies were picked from the pavement and taken to the 30th-st station house, where they were afterwards identified and removed to the morgue. The fire raged fiercely and it was obvious that the building was doomed. The work of rescuing still went on and many were taken from the windows by firemen and policemen. Among the narrow escapes was that of H. C. Hopkins of New York city, who was a guest at the hotel. He was rudely aroused from sleep by the cry of "fire." He found, on going into the hall, that escape by the stair was impossible. He escaped, however, from a window down a rope. Others who narrowly escaped death were Mr. F. Knapp of Chicago, Mrs. Kueper and daughter of Flemington, N.J., and Mr. Mears, the proprietor of the building. After the fire had sufficiently cooled to permit a partial examination of the ruins a search was made for the dead. The searchers were at once rewarded by finding the charred body of a man almost burned to a crisp. The body is thought to be that of Henry J. Levy. Then other bodies were found in quick succession. It is not yet known how many have perished. At the time of the fire the 124 rooms of the hotel were occupied by about 150 guests.

MIDLAND DISTRICT NOTES.

—An extensive mica deposit has been found on the farm of Mr. John Gemmill, Lanark. The mine has been sold.

—Some lumber camps in Hastings county have been broken up by lagrippe. Four deaths occurred in one camp from the disease.

—Mr. John Hughes of Tamworth was fatally struck by a falling limb of a tree and his head crushed in. He lingered for one week.

—The Penetanguishene council is offering a reward for the arrest of Henry Jennings, town clerk and treasurer, who is alleged to have left the country.

—The by-law to increase the number of hotels to ten and the licenses to $350 was voted down at Orillia on Monday by a majority of 199. Only 331 votes were polled.

—Over a year ago Mr. Richard Tennant of Boyd's, Lanark county, had his feet frozen. He applied carbolic acid to them, which caused blood poisoning, from which he has died.

—The father of Judge Dartnell of Whitby died at Kingston on Thursday at the age of 84 years. He was a journalist in his earlier years, and practiced law at Ottawa for some time also.

—The retail merchants of Kingston promise to promote the agitation for the early closing of stores on Saturdays if the people will also give their assistance to make the movement successful.

—Henry Long, locked up in a Kingston police station while in a state of delirium, made two attempts to kill himself; first, by endeavoring to swallow part of the bowl of a pipe, and again by hanging himself. He was caught in the act each time.

—Two carloads of buckwheat belonging to Richardson & Son of Kingston have gone astray at New York. The grain was shipped about two months ago. They lost a carload some time ago labelled for Lyn, Ont., and which turned up a year later at Lyn, Penn.

ANY AMOUNT OF FUN.

How His Dog Licked Him for It, Coolly, But Thoroughly.

Old Sam Johnson, who lives down in a Kennebec County town, is about the soured and most straitlaced fellow you ever saw, says the Lewiston Journal.

The other day he heard an awful clatter out on a long hill near his house. He got out to the scene just in time to see his son Jed mount the ox cart, hold up the tongue and coast down the hill with a thunderous roar and a cloud of dust. The old man started on the trail down the hill, picking up a club on the way and yelling for Jed to come back and take a licking. But the nearer he got to the trembling Jed the more the real novelty and humor appealed to him. When he got to the foot of the hill he was grinning like a "chessy cat," as Jed afterward declared.

"What in timenation you doin' with that ox cart, Jed?"

"By gorry, dad, I'm a-slidin' down hill in 'er, dad; and it's more fun 'an de Injuns. Jest help me toost 'er up hill an' take a ride," said Jed, taking courage from his father's grin.

"You sassy imp," sputtered Sam; "I'm a good mind to welt you."

"Oh, dad, come on; it's slathers of fun."

"Not by a darned shot! And 'sides, some one may see me."

"Git out; they won't neither. Take holt here an' we'll run 'er up hill."

The old man couldn't resist. Chuckling, he helped push the cart up hill; chuckling still, he crawled in, and he tittered as he told Jed to "hold tight an' steer straight."

Away they went. But they had just got under headway when a team came jogging around a bend in the road at the foot of the hill. The old ox cart roared down in its headlong rush. A wicked smash-up seemed imminent. The frightened Jed bewildered by a volley of squawks and yells, yanked the tongue about, and the flying cart sheered for the fields. It careered wildly, hopped the highway gutter, crashed over a stone wall and came to a wrecked standstill, bottom upward. Jed and the old man were beneath.

It was six weeks before Johnson got the crick out of his back and recovered the use of his battered members. His first duty at the end of these six weeks was to lick Jed, not passionately or intemperately, but thoroughly, conscientiously, earnestly, according to a carefully matured plan and determination.

Increased the Fee.

A Paducah clergyman tells this: "I married a couple up in Allen County, and after I had pronounced them man and wife the groom took me to one side and asked me what the damage was. I told him that there was no fixed price. He might give me whatever he chose."

"'Parson,' said he, 'I've got five hound pups down home for which I am asking $5 apiece, and I'll let you have one for $3.'

"Of course I declined so ridiculous a fee, as I had no use for the hound pup.

"When he got home he must have found his wife better than he expected, for he sent me one of the hound pups, accompanied with a letter saying that he was so happy with Maria that he would give me a dog for nothing."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

COUNTRY JOURNALISM.

Some of the Trials and Tribulations of the One-Horse Editor.

The labors of the editor-in-chief of the little village newspaper forty-five years ago were mostly directed to maintaining its little subscription list, writes Colonel McClure in Lippincott's. Every subscriber was personally known to the editor-in-chief. He came in personal contact with them during court weeks, circuses, militia parades, etc., when they would wander into the town and occasionally drop in to pay their subscriptions or make a close barter to pay for the same in country produce, including wood, potatoes, turnips, cabbages, etc. The rural readers of that day were a frugal set, and the question of spending $1.50 for a newspaper was a matter of the gravest consideration, and frequently required the employment of all the eloquence the editor-in-chief could command to prevent subscribers from stopping their paper when they came to pay their bills. The good old rule prevailed, and was flaunted under the editorial head of the paper, that, under the decision of the Post-office Department, "no newspaper could be discontinued until all arrearages are paid." As an illustration of the important labors of the editor-in-chief of that day, I might mention one typical case of a reluctant subscriber who, after trying the paper for six months, brought in a small load of half-rotted wood in payment of the 75 cents due for his subscription and ordered his paper stopped. After much persuasion I succeeded in getting a suspension of judgment on the subject until he should come into town again. When he returned some days thereafter he said that he had consulted the women folk about the matter and they had concluded that they would continue another six months during the winter season, "as the papers were very convenient for tying up apple-butter crocks."

Open Door Fiends.

There are two occasions that are usually improved by the leave-the-door-open man. One is when he comes in with the intention of going out again; the other when he goes out intending to come right back again. It isn't because it is any particular trouble to close the door; it is the human instinct of providing the ready means of escape, of safety. The first thing a burglar does when he enters a house or a bank is to see that everything is clear for sudden exit. The wise general always plans the method of retreat and leaves an opening for getting away in case the battle goes against him. The wily savage and even wild animals have the instinct. When a man enters your office and leaves the door ajar he is doing just what any other animal would do—providing for the possible contingency of being kicked out. This contingency is a little more remote than the comfort of society would seem to warrant.—New York Herald.

The Best Combination of Farm Manure.

Hogs in a covered pen into which are thrown the cattle and horse manure, green weeds, leaves and all other sources of vegetable matter, will make a splendid compost with little effort on the farmer's part. The hen manure can be thrown in with it or applied separately. Ashes must be kept out of it, as they will set free the nitrogen. They are rich in potash, of which all crops contain much, and should be applied separately broadcast or in the hill or drill. An immense amount of manure can be made on every farm if the hogs are permitted to work up the corn stalks, straw, sods and all other refuse. If it can be run through a cutter before going into the pig-pen so much the better, as it will be much finer and will decay more rapidly. Every form of plant food, however, whether compost, manure or fertilizer, requires water to dissolve and make it available for plants.—Farm and Home.

Political Proverbs.

Most Members would rather be promoted to the Senate than to Heaven.

Celibacy the Rage.

Celibacy is coming into fashion. Modern young men and women do not fall in love so desperately as to rush into marriage regardless of consequences. With the advance of intelligence they are now more disposed than ever to give the subject careful consideration. Modern society gives no countenance to love in a cottage and takes but little stock in sentiment.

The blue book of New York shows more bachelors than married men in the ranks of blue blood and money. Marriage is decried as too expensive by the members of fashionable clubs, and when one of their number does fall in love, with a wedding as a climax, it is the proper thing, as to style, for his friends to go mourning.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Wooden Ships Still in Favor.

The arrival of two well-built clipper ships in New York, after a race from San Francisco, calls attention to the fact that wooden ships are no longer in disfavor on long voyages, but have in some instances displaced their iron rivals. This is an encouraging outlook for the United States, because in the past the fastest clippers have been built in this country, and a general return to wooden ships for long ocean voyages might result in a boom in the shipbuilding business in New England and elsewhere.—Boston Advertiser.

Wouldn't It Be a Picnic.

An Awful Tragedy!

Thousands of lives have been sacrificed, thousands of homes made desolate by the fatal mistake of the "old-school" physicians, still persisted in by some, notwithstanding the light thrown upon the subject by modern research, that Consumption is incurable. It is not. Consumption is a scrofulous disease of the lungs, and any remedy which strikes right at the seat of the complaint must and will cure it. Such a remedy is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a certain specific for all scrofulous complaints. It was never known to fail if given a fair trial, and that is why the manufacturers sell it under a positive guarantee that if it does not benefit or cure, the money paid for it will be refunded. The only lung remedy possessed of such remarkable curative properties as to warrant its makers in selling it on trial!—92-1.

Dentistry

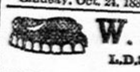
J. NEELANDS,
L. D. S.
M. R. C. D. S.
ONT.
DENTIST,
Lindsay.

By the aid of the new Hydro-Carbon Gas Furnace he can make indestructible porcelain fillings and restore broken and decayed teeth to their original shape, contour and color. By this process old roots can have porcelean crowns attached; consequently there is no plate required.

Gas, Vitalized Air, administered with great success for nearly 23 years, extracting teeth for thousands of persons without a particle of pain. He uses the latest approved appliances for administering the Gas. He studied under Dr. Colton of New York, the inventor of gas for extracting teeth, who has given it to over 100,000 persons and not a fatal case.

MR. NEELANDS uses Bell's Local Anæsthetic for extracting teeth. He is now using a new style of forceps which he had expressly manufactured while on his last visit to New York, which removes the teeth without danger of injury to the gums or jaw, the gums healing up beautifully in a few days and no consequent trouble. Artificial Teeth inserted on all the popular bases and by the most approved styles and appliances for their retention and comfort. Numbers of persons are wearing teeth made by Mr. Neelands over 20 years and never required repairs. Prices from $10 to $65 for an upper or under set

Persons from a distance will please send postal card before coming. Office, Kent-st., Lindsay, nearly opposite Congress Hall.
Lindsay, Oct. 24, 1888.—72.



W. H. GROSS,
L.D.S., M.S.C.D.S., Ont.,
DENTIST, LINDSAY
THE POPULAR
GOLD AND PORCELAIN CROWNING
(without plate), practiced by MR. GROSS, with great satisfaction to a large number of persons.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH inserted by the most approved methods and principles for securing perfection of fit, comfort, usefulness, durability and beauty, on Gold, Silver, Celluloid and the Artistic Continuous Gum. Also in all the harmless dental Rubbers, and at the lowest living prices. All sets of teeth finished fitted to the mouth by Mr. Gross himself, under his personal supervision, which will account for the satisfaction given by his work

The introduction from time to time of the latest appliances for the administration of VITELIZED AIR and GAS, enables Mr. Gross to announce constantly increasing success in the use of these anæsthetics, no pain, no accidents, no torn gums, consequently no dissatisfaction.

The best methods of preserving the natural teeth by filling with Gold and other reliable materials has been made a study for nearly THIRTY YEARS by Mr. Gross, and special attention and care is given by him to this branch of his business. No unnecessary pain in filling.

Don't fail to call on Gross, at
