DRDEAL OF A MAIDEN SPEECH.

The Dominion Artillery Association Gun Competitions-Reindeer for Transportation Work-The U. S. Relief Expedition to the Vukon-It Will Leave Portland To-morrow -Ottawa Notes.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Parliament meets this week, and the Cabinet will to-day consider the terms of the speech from the throne to be delivered by Lord Aberdeen on Thursday. Mr. Speaker Edgar is expected here this evening from Toronto. There are several new members of both Houses to be introduced, and the movers and seconders of the address in reply to the speech from the throne will be chosen from among them, according to a curious practice, under which the ordeal of a maiden speech in Parliament is intensified by having the whole House listening attentively to the debutante. If a new member speaks amid the usual noise and inattention of the House of Commons he | reared to manhood, was quoted as a county can worry through the perspiring effort | that showed amazing evidence of the much better. Mr. Mills, the new Minister of Justice, will appear in the Senate in the capacity of Government leader, a delicate and responsible task that he is fully competent to discharge. The militia orders for escorts and guards of honor are out. On Saturday evening his Execllency the Governor-General and the Countess of Aberdeen will hold a drawing room in the Senate Chamber. His Excellency detires to intimate that he will be glad of the services of as many officers of the militia and staff as can be spared for duty In the throne room on the occasion of the drawing room on Saturday.

The Ban Placed on Le Soleil by Bishop Labreque Caused All the Trouble. Montreal, Jan. 31.-Rome has censured one of the bishops of French Canada, and it is said that ecclesiastical history will be searched back a great number of years without finding a similar case of Vatican displeasure. Mgr. Labreque, Bishop of Chicoutimi, has taken very strong ground from the very first against the Laurier-Greenway school settlement, and during the early days of the discussion His Lordship forbade the reading of Mr. Pacaud's paper, Le Soleil, in the diocese of Chicoutimi. In a document just received by the Metropolitan at Quebec, Rome makes known to His Grace that Mgr. Labreque overstepped his power and jurisdiction in condemning Le Soleil, and that the desire is expresed that His Lordship shall with-

VERY GREAT INTEREST SHOWN.

Rev. Drs. Grant and Lucas Deliver Two Very Able Speeches-Was the Scott Act a Success or Failure ?- Dr. Lucas' Array of Arguments -The Principal's

Kingston, Jan. 28.-An historic debate, and one that marks the opening of the great prohibition controversy that in a few weeks must rage all over the Dominion, was held last evening in the City Hall between Rev. Principal Grant of Queen's University and Rev. Dr. Lucas of Grimsby.

The audience was representative. Many singing the National Anthem. strangers from all parts of Eastern Ontario were present. Mayor Livingston presided and introduced the debaters. The topic was: "That a law passed by Parliament, prohibiting the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor, would promote temperance and public and political morality."

Dr. Lucas Opens the Debate. Dr. Lucas, who was the first speaker, began by declaring that for centuries past the traffic in intoxicating beverages has been the fruitful source of discussion and irritation both inside and outside of legislative halls. The bitterness and wrangling respecting it have been almost endless. We never have been able to adwhen writing to this office. We cannot readily so as to quiet the public mind and please all classes. It is not so respecting any other occupation or trade. There seems to be a universal agreement that the traffic is bad, and therefore it is not wonderful that many desire to prohibit it. Touching this point the doctor held that it was the right and power of the people to prohibit that which gave a license its value.

The next position taken was that as teachers wanted, farms for sale of six or eight the principle of prohibition was applied just in that proportion have the morals of the people in the vicinity gauged and recorded in the police courts gone up or is by the year or for a shorter tims. Rates | down. The most noted illustration of the evil effects of the diminution of the prohibitory principle and the enlargement of license was seen in the English Beer Law of 1830. The unstinted sale caused the sovereign people to assume "a beastly condition," as Rev. Sydney Smith wrote two weeks after the law was effected. The demoralization was so general and continuous that both Lord Wellington and Lord Brougham frankly confessed to a change of opinion before a year had elapsed. Lord Francis Edgerton said he considered the bill as promotive of enormous evils, and that no bill had ever been more productive of drunkenness and immorality than this. In contrast to this state of affairs Dr. Lucas offered testimony as to the Forbes-McKenzie Act as applied to Scotland, and so deeply convinced were the Scotch members of Parliament that this law tended to improve the moral condition of the people, that when a similar bill was proposed for Ireland forty-three out of the forty-eight Scotch members voted for it. The way prohibition lessened crime and drunkenness in Scotland, Ireland and the United States was detailed and the doctor closed with reference to Canada, saying: "If we pass from the Atlantic to the Pacific across our Dominion we find the quantity of liquor consumed per head to tally exactly with the extent of the application of the principle of prohibtion in the several provinces, Prince Edward Island consuming the least and British Columbia the most, the latter where there is no prohibition consuming nearly twelve times as much as the former, where the Scott Act is in force. "The Scott Act in Ontario looks to me like a Lee-Metford rifle which a cowardly soldier has thrown away, and taking to his heels, has condemned the gun to excuse his cowardice. The Act is still in force in many counties in Canada and is doing much good in the hands of men who have the courage of their convictions and backbone.'

Halton County, where Dr. Lucas was benefits of prohibition. The third year after the adoption of the Act arrests for drinking in Halton compared with other counties nearby were as follows: Wentworth, 666, or one in 98; Wellington, 235, or one in 319; Halton, three, or one in 7,334. During the Scott Act regime the judges were presented with white gloves on every occasion, a thing said to be unparalleled in the history of any other county in Ontario.

Dr. Grant's Warning. Dr. Grant, in opening, said he was bound to warn his friend that prohibition may not cure, but aggravate the curse of opponents. the liquor traffic, hence he "dreaded a proposal which, if enacted into law, will do more to throw back the cause of tem perance and corrupt the country than any legislation that has ever yet been passed in Canada. The Principal said the difference between himself and Mr. Lucas was as to the best method of promoting temperance. "He believes that prohibition will make the country more temperate and improve it politically and morally. I believe the contrary.

He was a believer in temperance; he counselled all young men to be abstainers; he believed total abstinence to be the safe course for all men, and a high Christian virtue when honestly practised, with the hope and from the motive of helping weak men. But, he did not believe that it is a sin or crime to sell everything that intoxicates, and law will never make men believe that it is a sin, like murder, adultery, fornication, theft or lying. If it is a sin to sell, it must be a sin to buy, and if one party to the transaction is punished, justice demands that the other should be also.

He thanked God that drunkenness is a decaying vice in Canada, thanks to the true temperance workers and thousandfold influences of Christian civilization. Should, however, prohibition be attempted, it will assuredly revive the horrid vice, and help even to make it fashionable again. Men of British breed are apt to kick against restraint on their reason able liberty; and all men, young men especially, are apt to think that there is something very nice in carefully locked cupboards. As Beecher put it, "You can never get cows to eat buckwheat straw unless you put a fence round it." Apparently the animal has in it a trait human nature, or man has still about him a touch of the animal. Dr. Grant in his consideration of the topic of debate claimed that according to the experience of Ontario, the Maritime Provinces and the States which have tried the experiment, prohibition does not Province of Quebec. prohibit; that the consequences have been (1) Increase of drunkenness. (2) The traffic driven into the hands of a depraved class. (8) Multiplication of illicit dives. (4) Evasion of law and consequent increase among the people of contempt for law and general growth of the spirit of illegality. (5) Increase of perjury, because people will not give evidence against a man for being guilty of what the law makes a crime when they do not believe it to be a crime. (6) Opposition to law on the part of respectable citizens. the part of respectable citizens. Who are of bribery in various forms from the bribery of policemen, sheriffs, deputies or constables, up to the more subtle but more dangerous bribery of politicians, which results from the formation of a vote which is solid on one issue without regard to the general welfare. (8) Violation of the law by magistrates and judges who do not call for former convictions, but inscribe the third or tenth offense as the first, because they know that the law inflicts imprisonment for the third offence. (9) Increase of the spirit of hypocrisy. slander, smoking, and spying and unwarrantable interference with others. (10) The breeding of a low class of infamous creatures called informers, who learn to tell lies with the facilities of the father of lies. He also declared that those results would necessarily flow in larger measure from a more drastic law applied to the whole Dominion. Dr. Lucas spoke for fifteen minutes to disprove Dr. Grant's logic, which he held was very defective. The only way to restrict the traffic was to blot it out. Dr. Grant, in closing, said that to socure prohibition for Canada better arguments than Dr. Lucas had advanced would be required. The audience dispersed after

Kingston, Jan. 29 .- When the joint debate on prohibition was resumed last evening there was no abatement of the excitement shown on the opening night. -The City Hall, which is a magnificent chamber, finer than anything else of the sort in Ontario, was again crowded to the doors and with an audience composed largely of those present the evening be-

Mayor's absence. Dr. Grant took the platform first and proceeded to say that on the first evening of the debate Fredericton, N.B., had been cited by both sides in illustration of points made. In his opening speech last night Principal Grant took up the case of Fredericton in comparison with Berlin, in Ontario, which never was under prohibition. In Fredericton arrests over a long series of years averaged 20 per thousand for drunkenness, while in Berlin the Mayor and Crown Attorney swore that in a population, including Waterloo, of 10,000, there were not over ten people who drank to excess and arrests were only in the ratio of 1 to 160 in Fredericton. The sympathy for Fredericton hotelkeepers aroused by their imprisonment for liquor selling was pointed to as evidence that public sentiment could not be depended on to enforce prohibition. There was always danger of bribery of the police and corruption in one matter led to corruption in the enforcement of all laws. Law should be felt to be the voice of God to the community and no one law could be notoriously violated without injury to all law and to the people's well-being. The danger also of forcing prohibitory legislation upon unwilling provinces was commented upon and the difficulty of paying out of the Federal Treasury for the provincial revenue lost through prohibition in provinces that did not want it. Principal Grant also urged strongly that prohibition, being an interference with liberty, unknown in the countries from which the bulk of our immigrants come, would do much to check immigration and to induce violation of the law among those who are al-

that prohibition might result in an increase of perjury and maintained that the law was not responsible for this but the law breaker. If Jesus Christ, he said, could have been persuaded to remain in His carpenter shop there is some perjury recorded that never would have been. The "coercion" argument was dismissed with the remark that every man who secured the advantage of civilization by living in a city had to give up favor of continuing the law. From his own experience in Kansas, the speaker drew the conclusion that prohibition did prohibit, and could be enforced without hurt to public morals. Even the Queen not long ago was fined for allowing one of her dogs to go withabout coercion. The result of prohibition in Maine was not as Dr. Grant asserted, failure. At some length Dr. Lucas quoted from the letters of an anti-prohibitionist correspondent for the Globe, who, after travelling through that State, admitted that the people there were more thrifty, prosperous and comfortable than those of the caves.

Pays a Visit to His Friend in the Flesh in Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 25.-Dr. Brunelle is one of the leading French physicians of the city, and has had an experience that he will not forget for many a day to come. In the first place it should be related that the doctor is a particularly level-headed man, quite as free from belief in the supernatural as any of his confreres, and that is saying a great deal where French medical men are concerned. At an early hour Saturday evening, while Dr. Brunelle was sitting in his study reading a newspaper, he heard a sharp knock on the door leading to the hallway, and, thinking it was his little girl, he asked what she wanted. There came as a reply a second knock, louder than the first, and when the physician arose and opened the door he saw before him his old and intimate friend, Dr. Garceau of Boston. Dr. Brunelle's surprise, of course, was very great, and in extending him his hand of welcome he asked his friend how he got in without being heard. If, however, the Montreal doctor was surprised when he opened the door, he was still more astonished when his outstretched hand met nothing but space, and at once the form of the Boston gentleman disappeared. Dr. Brunelle returned to his library and sat for a short time lost in thought, only to be aroused by a telegraph messenger, who brought the follow- in bonds and jewelry. ing from a relative in Boston: "Dr. Gar-

Pekin, Feb. 1.-It is supposed that Great Britain's withdrawal from Port Arthur and her ceasing to exert pressure for the opening of the port of Ta-Lien-Wan, which actions are regarded as incredible and suicidal to British interests and prestige, were owing to her disbelief in the existence of a secret treaty between Russia and China.
