Great Sympathy for Mr. Doherty—150 Miles Lost Their Tools and Occupation.

CLINTON'S CALAMITY.

Clinton, Feb. 7.—The disastrous earthquake that took place here yesterday morning and totally consumed the entire Doherty Organ Company's works, and also the fine residence of Mr. William Doherty, has struck this town an awful blow. Over 100 men, besides losing all their tools, are thrown out of work and the men are at a loss to know what to do. The Doherty Company's works had been practically the mainstay of the town, and Mr. Doherty, the founder of the institution, is one of the most popular citizens of the town and the greatest sympathy goes out to him in his loss from every body here. Nothing is talked of but the fire and what the company will do to rebuild. The Town Council held a special meeting yesterday and will meet again on Monday, for 30 cents, which Mr. Doherty will likely accept.

THE YOUNG MAN SENTENCED TO BE HANGED ON MAY 20.

THE TRIAL AND THE DEFENCE.

The Charge of Judge De Lorimer to the Jury, Which, in 45 Minutes, Returns a Verdict of Guilty With a Recommendation to Mercy—The Convict's Stolid Demeror.

Joliette, Que., Feb. 5.—The Nulty murder trial was brought to a close last evening, and Tom Nulty, the slayer of his three sisters and little brother on Nov. 4 last, will expiate his crime upon the scaffold on May 20 next at 9 o'clock in the morning.

When the court opened Mr. Dugas, the Crown Attorney, resumed his address to the jury, and spoke until near 1 o'clock in the morning.

His address was a very able and exhaustive treatment of the whole evidence. The court took recess until 2.30 p.m., and on re-assembling Judge De Lorimer delivered his charge to the jury. His Honor reviewed the whole case in an impartial manner, but the latter part of his summing up was rather against the prisoner, and as the jury retired to deliberate there were few indeed among those who remained in the court room who looked for any other verdict than that of guilty. The jury were out about 45 minutes, and on taking their places again rendered a verdict of guilty without the addition of a recommendation to mercy.

His Honor then donned the black cap and pronounced the death sentence with due solemnity, condemning the prisoner to be hanged on May 20 next at 9 a.m.

During the whole of the proceedings the prisoner maintained a stolid indifference, not even when the fatal words were spoken by jury and judge did he display the least concern. His nerve is truly wonderful.

While being led from the court room a crowd naturally followed in his wake. At this Tom became angry, and addressing his custodians, said sharply: "Why does this crowd follow me? Do they take me for a bear?"

Brockville's Enthusiastic Reception—They Cheered the Premier and Greeted Him With a Mighty Shout—A Magnificent Speech—Mr. Dana Appreciated—The New Candidate—The Campaign.

Brockville, Feb. 2.—If any evidence were wanted of the enthusiasm which prevailed among the Liberals of Brockville it was afforded at the gathering from all parts of the constituency in the Opera House last evening. Notwithstanding the fact that the roads had been blocked by the storm and that the thermometer had sunk to a point at which consideration for personal comfort rendered a stay within the home a desirable one, a large number of people came from all directions and crowded the Opera House to the doors to hear the Premier of the province.

They Cheered the Premier.

An address of welcome was read to Mr. Hardy by Mr. Macdonald on behalf of the Liberal Association of Brockville. The Premier on rising to respond met with a most flattering reception. A mighty shout went up and he bowed his acknowledgments. He returned thanks for the handsome address, the language of which he commended without the least reservation, and he expressed his appreciation of the language of friendship he accepted it, although too flattering. He paid a touching tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Fraser, and referred to the eminent services of the retiring member, Mr. Dana, whose retirement had been a surprise to him.

Berlin, Feb. 7.—The Burgomasters are apparently emulating Emperor William. The Burgomaster of Schkenditz recently issued an edict requiring the townspeople to wear their best clothes on Sunday. On the following Sunday, walking abroad to observe the result of his order, he found a stableman in wooden clothes, torn stockings, soiled trousers and a furring red neckerchief. He was immediately summoned to arrest him, and he was tried for his majesty or his municipal equivalent. Although he proved that he had been grooming and feeding his master's horse and was in his way home, he was fined a mark and a half and costs.

Must Wear Best Clothes on Sunday.

Berlin, Feb. 7.—The Burgomasters are apparently emulating Emperor William. The Burgomaster of Schkenditz recently issued an edict requiring the townspeople to wear their best clothes on Sunday. On the following Sunday, walking abroad to observe the result of his order, he found a stableman in wooden clothes, torn stockings, soiled trousers and a furring red neckerchief. He was immediately summoned to arrest him, and he was tried for his majesty or his municipal equivalent. Although he proved that he had been grooming and feeding his master's horse and was in his way home, he was fined a mark and a half and costs.

THE TRIAL AND THE DEFENCE.

THE CHARGE OF JUDGE DE LORIMER TO THE JURY, WHICH, IN 45 MINUTES, RETURNS A VERDICT OF GUILTY WITH A RECOMMENDATION TO MERCY—THE CONVICT'S STOLID DEMEROR.

Joliette, Que., Feb. 5.—The Nulty murder trial was brought to a close last evening, and Tom Nulty, the slayer of his three sisters and little brother on Nov. 4 last, will expiate his crime upon the scaffold on May 20 next at 9 o'clock in the morning.

When the court opened Mr. Dugas, the Crown Attorney, resumed his address to the jury, and spoke until near 1 o'clock in the morning.

His address was a very able and exhaustive treatment of the whole evidence. The court took recess until 2.30 p.m., and on re-assembling Judge De Lorimer delivered his charge to the jury. His Honor reviewed the whole case in an impartial manner, but the latter part of his summing up was rather against the prisoner, and as the jury retired to deliberate there were few indeed among those who remained in the court room who looked for any other verdict than that of guilty. The jury were out about 45 minutes, and on taking their places again rendered a verdict of guilty without the addition of a recommendation to mercy.

His Honor then donned the black cap and pronounced the death sentence with due solemnity, condemning the prisoner to be hanged on May 20 next at 9 a.m.

During the whole of the proceedings the prisoner maintained a stolid indifference, not even when the fatal words were spoken by jury and judge did he display the least concern. His nerve is truly wonderful.

While being led from the court room a crowd naturally followed in his wake. At this Tom became angry, and addressing his custodians, said sharply: "Why does this crowd follow me? Do they take me for a bear?"

A FULL REPLY TO MR. WHITNEY.

Brockville's Enthusiastic Reception—They Cheered the Premier and Greeted Him With a Mighty Shout—A Magnificent Speech—Mr. Dana Appreciated—The New Candidate—The Campaign.

Brockville, Feb. 2.—If any evidence were wanted of the enthusiasm which prevailed among the Liberals of Brockville it was afforded at the gathering from all parts of the constituency in the Opera House last evening. Notwithstanding the fact that the roads had been blocked by the storm and that the thermometer had sunk to a point at which consideration for personal comfort rendered a stay within the home a desirable one, a large number of people came from all directions and crowded the Opera House to the doors to hear the Premier of the province.

They Cheered the Premier.

An address of welcome was read to Mr. Hardy by Mr. Macdonald on behalf of the Liberal Association of Brockville. The Premier on rising to respond met with a most flattering reception. A mighty shout went up and he bowed his acknowledgments. He returned thanks for the handsome address, the language of which he commended without the least reservation, and he expressed his appreciation of the language of friendship he accepted it, although too flattering. He paid a touching tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Fraser, and referred to the eminent services
