TRYING TO CROWD OUT CHAPLEAU. Premier de Boucherville, Hon. Mr. Beaubein and Hon. Senator Masson arrived at the Russell house Monday afternoon upon business which they refused to disclose stating that it was confidential. Their visit on the very first day of Mr. Chapleau's return gives color to the reports current last week in reference to the position of the minister of customs, and would lead to the conviction that there is, despite tory denials, a strong movement on foot to secure Mr. de Boucherville's transfer to Spencerwood and Mr. Chapleau's disappearance from the federal cabinet to make way for Lieut. Governor Angers. A close friend of Mr. Chapleau told the Free Press this afternoon that there was no doubt of the existence of a plot to overthow the minister of customs, but that Mr. Chapleau had been thoroughly informed of the whole intrigue from its inception and was fully prepared for eventualities. "He will not be pushed out now," said this gentleman, "merely because the Ontario tories and Sir Adolph Caron desire it." Mr. Chapleau is stronger personally and physically than he ever was, and I can tell you that, unless the conspirators cease their caballing, he will show his power. Premier DeBoucherville had better beware. Mr. Chapleau can crush him at any moment he likes, just as I can crush a fly in the hollow of my hand. The Quebec bleus

six months. BETTER TERMS WANTED. The Ontario conservatives are disquieted at Mr. DeBoucherville's visit, regarding it as the precursor of a demand for better terms. One of the conservative whips said that it was useless for the Quebec cabinet to expect to receive any financial concessions from Mr. Abbott, "We will not stand it," he said, "and the government is now so strong that it can successfully resist any demands from DeBoucherville. We have 55 majority outside the province of Quebec, and can get along without the Frenchmen cannot get on without Mr. Chapleau and they know it. Let Mr. Chapleau retire and would like nothing better." LEAVE TO APPEAL GRANTED. Mr. Dalton McCarthy has received word that the imperial privy council has allowed the application for leave to appeal in the Manitoba school case. The application was made on Saturday by Sir Horace Davey, who will be assisted by Mr. McCarthy in the argument of the case when it comes up next summer.

PAYING FOR SIR CHARLES TUPPER'S ELEC

In committee of supply last Friday, when the item for the high commissioner's office was reached, the opposition renewed their attack of last session upon Sir Charles Tupper's electioneering tour of last spring, Mr. Somerville pointed out that not only was Sir Charles paid $473 for his travelling expenses to and from England, but that he also received $780, being at the rate of $10 per diem for the 78 days he was in this country stumping on behalf of the tory party. He also recalled the bill of over $1,000 which, as disclosed in the North Perth election case, Sir Charles had run up for special trains, and wanted to know SPLENDID CHANCE. -800 acres | whether the country was to pay this sum notes: soil No. Al, rich sandy only satisfactory information of the whole discussion, for he stated that when he was acting minister of railways the account in question was presented to him, but that he nad refused to pay it. Thereupon Mr. Somerville said that to be consistent the government should refuse to pay the other

> Mr. Laurier said he could not regard the charge of these expenses to the public treasury as anything eise but an outrage. Sir Charles Tupper was Canada's ambassador to England, and it was a crying diagrace that a man who occupied such a position should descend to the level of an election stump-speaker. It was simply a blind to here for the Washington negotiatione, and when parliament was asked to pay for his political services it was time to protest. wyo stated that it was bad enough for the country to have to pay 5ir Charles $12,000 per annum, but it was worse to charge his expenses for abusing his political opponents to the public treasury.

Sir John Thompson rushed to Tupper defence, and in doing so made a very bad tactical mistake. He must have lost his usual memory, for he argued Sir Charles Tupper was summoned to Canada solely to take part in the expected negotiations at Washington, and that when he was called the dissolution was neither contemplated nor effected. This excuse was soon proved to be as flimsy as Mr. Laurier called it, for Mr. Brant quoted from Hansard Sir John Macdonald's statement of last session that "Sir Charles Tupper came out from England to give us the benefit of his skill, his eloquence and his influence." This quotation crushed the minister of justice, and the opposition, satisfied with their evening's work, allowed the item to pass, and the house soon after adjourned. ABANDONMENT OF RECIPROCITY.

The Mail's Ottawa correspondent of 22nd inst., says:-"The abandonment of reciprocity with the United States and a hipt to the conservative party to prepare itself for plause which came from the ministerial benches when the changed policy was announced is any indication of the feeling of the party the project is already endorsed But no details are given of the preferential scheme, nor is it probable that it will take shape for some time. It is mentioned now to elicit a discussion and to test public opinion with regard to it. That the gov-ernment was considering preferential trade was reported in the letter two weeks ago. Now the accuracy of the information then given is established. gave to-day, Tuesday, a detailed account. The ministers went to Washington to secure if possible the re-enactment of the treaty of 1854. Asked by Mr. Blaine what they proposed, they mentioned this treaty. Thereupon the secretary of state demurred, on the ground that reciprocity in natural products would not be reciprocity so far as the United States were concerned. The addition of manufactures was then spoken of, and here the question of discrimination came up. Mr. Blaine appears to have held that reciprocity in manufactures would not be acceptable unless Canada imposed upon British products the same duties as the Americans imposed upon like products. The Americans would not stand the introduction of British goods into the United States by way of Canada, thus nullifying the United States tariff, nor, according to Mr. Blaine, would they be content unless our excise duties were assimilated to those of the United States. This brought up the question of revenue, which the American secretary was unable to soive. The position naturally pointed to commercial union, under which the customs revenue would be pooled and divided, but this was not gone into, and as a result the negotations were abandoned as useless. The Canadian delegates would not go the whole hog nor would the United States meet them half way. Sir Richard Cartwright discredits the version of the negotiations as related by Mr. Foster, and declares that the ministers went south determined not to get a treaty, in which they were eminently successful. But Mr. Foster's narrative is subject to review by Mr. Blaine, who, if there is anything incorrect in it, will no has opened out dressmaking rooms here doubt reply. Mr. Dalton McCarthy has at last awakened to the necessity of securing better relations with our neighbors to the south. He gives notice that to-morrow week he will move: "That in the opinion of the house, in view of the vast commercial interests existing between the United States of America and Canada and of the political questions from time to time regarding adjustment between the Dominion and the neighboring republic, it would tend to the advancement of these interests and the promotion of a better understanding between the two countries were if necessary. ONTARIO'S TIMBER RESOUR

There has been for many years, and still in the miads of many people, a feeling of uncertainty regarding our timber lands and a fear that the timber of Ontario has been pretty well cut off. It is thought by some that the government has been a little careless in selling it so fast and that soon the supply will be gone, and with it one of Ontario's principal sources of revenue. A request for papers in the legislature by Mr. Clancy the other day, however, brought from Hon. Mr. Hardy, commissioner of crown lands, some information that will allay any fears on the subject just at present. Mr. Hardy alludes to the timber leased and still unsold and unexplored in of a couple of hundred million feet having been lost by fire last year, not that it was worth speaking of, except to show Mr. copy from the Globe's report: he estimated mileage of unlicensed crown oner Dr. Fife. timber lands. West of the Ottawa river | MARKET TOLLS.-The privilege of far and berths sold in 1881, 540 square miles ;

There were three years ago under license in Ontario about 19,000 square miles, on which there was supposed to say that Sir Charles Tupper had come out be 10,000,000,000 feet, which made grand total of over 60,000,000,000 feet of timber still uncut in the possession of the province. With such figures as This attack was seconded by Mr. Davies, these he believed that the quantity of timber in possession of the province was beyond question for a century to come, and something that might happen a century to come was outside the realm of present politics. He ridiculed the cry that the timber lands were about depleted and pointed out the disastrous effect on business which the continuance of such a fallacy would have. They would husband their timber resources and reserve the young pine, and adopt such measures to that purpose as public opinion would support. (Applause.)
