He was standing on a dump of logs that had frezen together and was chopping them loose, while two other men stood below watching to give him notice when the logs began to move. Suddenly his mate called to him to jump; but, instead of doing so he waited long enough to give one more blow with his axe, and the delay proved fatal, for the next instant he fell into the moving mass of logs and his head was caught and crushed so badly that he was dead bef re he could be got out. Deceased, who was from Saginaw, Mich., and had no relatives anywhere near here, was about 28 years old and unmarried. TORUNTO. FACTORY BLOWN TO PIECES.-The large three-story brick warehouse, 153 and 155 Sherbourne-st., owned and occupied by John J. McLaughlin, manufacturing chemist and manufacturer of mineral waters, was totally demolished shortly before 7 o'clock last Monday evening, by the explosion of the large boiler on the first floor of the building. The men employed in the works had left as usual at 6 o'clock. The noise of the explosion was heard half a mile distant, and the vibrations were distinctly felt in houses several blocks away. Following the explosion came a shower of bricks, sections of timber and glass. This debris rained upon the roofs of the houses, or crashed through windows, alarming neighbors and leading them to conclude that an earthquake shock had visited the city. Surely, argued they, if such is the case there must be an Ethioapian in the fence corner somewhere. A rigid investigation was inaugurated and the horror of the officials may be readily imagined, when it is stated that it was ascertained that the man had already one wife living, from whom he had been separated for five years. The girl was made acquainted with the circumstances of the case and when the lover called on Saturday evening bearing with him an engagement ring, he received his "conge." Much credit is due to the officials of the Army for thely prompt action in this matter, as a little delay would have cost the girl that which is most dear to woman -her honor and pure name. -[Examiner.

> The Opinion of An Expert. The prpoer place for advertisements in a newspaper, one of whose most important functions is that of a business directory. It enables the merchant to keep before the public his name, his place of business, and his wares, without causing them annoyance. As a part of the news of the day, he announces to the people generally the articles he has to sell, their prices, and where they are on sale. He does not ring the door bells of people's houses to thruet in unsought and undesired circulars soliciting buyers for his goods, but puts his advertisements in the custopaper. There they are in their appropriate place, and are respected accordingly. This is a great opportunity enjoyed by modern newspaper.
