The Canadian Post. LINDSAY, FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1896. BEHIND THE DOOR.

out flippancy doesn't agree with you nor with me. I am in a very irritable mood now. Pray for me. Now will you get down to the room which the dead woman occupied, and sit there until I come to you, with the door closed—not locked? And don't speak to me again until I speak to you.

Inspector Briggs was seated facing the door. As he was about to make some noise, to shuffle his feet or stand up, and listen even to the creaking of his own boots, he thought he saw the bedroom door moving. His eyes could not distinguish objects in the room.

He tried the door. He tried the door. He tried the door. He tried the door. He tried the door. He tried the door. He tried the door. He tried the door. He tried the door. He tried the door.

He stood up, and advancing to the door he found Goringe on the small landing outside. "See," said the detective, almost in a whisper, as Briggs, alarmed at the apparition, and still more alarmed at the voice close to his ear, stepped back a pace, "it was quite easy to steal the package and make no noise. Not a creaking step nor a squeaking hinge has marred the experiment."

"You almost scared me out of my senses with your clever acting—pantomime, I believe they call it. What next?" "Now, I shall go down stairs and arrange the hamp of the window. Then I shall ascend the stairs to the front landing, and when I tap three times distinctly at the door of my room will you step up and see if I am securely locked up from the outside?"

—murder, or whatever it may have been—was being enacted over again, and that he was powerless to impede the criminal.

After some minutes he found that sitting was positively unbearable, so he rose and commenced to walk up and down the bedroom, making as little noise as possible. Very soon he heard a creaking noise as he continued his promenade. "No doubt," he reflected, "Goringe is now on the march up stairs, and has caught a creaking step. What is his game, I wonder? Of course it is now plain the wily rascal has some reason of his own for fixing his mind on Stein-worth, after all his pretenses. What could the other fellow, Vickery, have meant? To accuse himself of a crime which, at the time he did make the confession, he must have known to be a hanging job, could scarcely have been done for the purpose of offense. And if he is innocent, what did he do with them? Goringe, of course, must mean that it was Steinworth who stole the money, but Goringe isn't infallible. Awfully good that last job—the pride of his profession allowing a burglar to proceed to work under his very nose!

Inspector Briggs rose with alacrity. He opened his long light overcoat and fingered his hallieys, and then, with a sense of intense relief, he mounted the five steps leading to the first floor landing. He marched straight to Steinworth's door, and then he heard Goringe's voice. "See if both doors—Vickery's and this—are securely locked."

The inspector turned his hallieys on the door at his right—the door of Bernard Vickery's room. The key was in the lock. He turned the door. Locked. Then he turned to Steinworth's door. The key gradually moved inward with a noise. In a moment, just as the inspector felt he could hear the horrid silence no longer, he saw the figure of Goringe entering the room.

The detective, still moving noiselessly, walked to the bed, remained alongside it for some moments—an appreciable space of time, during which Briggs felt as if some strange terror, the like of which he had never experienced before, held him in thrall—and then Goringe, still without making a sound, gave one sigh, which seemed to escape from him involuntarily, and approached the press in the room where the money had originally been placed. Here he remained for some moments, and then, without uttering a word or making a sound, he disappeared from the room, leaving the door half open as he passed out.

"Very neatly done, certainly," said the inspector, speaking in a low tone in order to reassure himself that he could trust his tongue. "He would make a first class burglar. Seemed almost as if he were practicing a bit of sleep walking."

"You almost scared me out of my senses with your clever acting—pantomime, I believe they call it. What next?" "Now, I shall go down stairs and arrange the hamp of the window. Then I shall ascend the stairs to the front landing, and when I tap three times distinctly at the door of my room will you step up and see if I am securely locked up from the outside?"

"The dead room. It has quite given me the shivers, I can tell you, to be sitting in it. How long do you mean to keep me there?" "About as long as the thief took to make himself secure. Probably half an hour."

AN ANXIOUS TIME. Men and Women Hovering 'Twixt Life and Death.

Spring, the Great Testing Time. PAINE'S CELYRY COMPOUND MAKES THE SICK WELL AND STRONG.

THE ONLY MEDICINE THAT TRULY BRINGS HEALTH. See That You Get "The Kind That Cures." REFUSE ALL SUBSTITUTES. Insist Upon Getting What You Ask For.

The experienced physician decides the fate of thousands of men and women who are hovering between life and death, owing to the effects of disease. The man or woman who attempts to pass through the trying weather of spring into the summer season with a load of suffering and woe, incurs a terrible risk.

There are few people who can honestly affirm that with the coming of spring showers, buds, and the advent of feathered songsters, they are in a perfect condition of health. The vast majority have the seeds of disease implanted in their bodies—some being high up to death; others, able to get round, but very far from being well.

The wise and prudent at this critical time will use Paine's Celery Compound to expel all impurities, vitiate accumulations, and the deep-seated seeds of disease from the system. This is the time that nature calls for relief. It is suicidal to ignore this urgent call for cleansing and health. Paine's Celery Compound does the work so quickly and so effectively as to astonish the most hardened skeptics and unbelievers. It is the only medicine that our people can rely on to make them well, vigorous and strong.

While the great advantages and superiority of Paine's Celery Compound over all other medicines have been amply demonstrated in the past by wonderful cures and marvelous recoveries from death, our people should ever be watchful that they are not imposed on by unscrupulous dealers who use every endeavor to recommend and substitute inferior medicines.

Some dealers and druggists who have no interest in your afflicted condition—never caring whether you live or die—but always a deep and greedy longing for big profits—will tell you they do not keep Paine's Celery Compound, but have something just as good. This is premeditated deception and falsehood. Heed not such specious arguments; their false assertions; leave such stories and go to one of the dealer who is ever ready to sell what is asked for.

Know that Paine's Celery Compound is your only hope for health, strength and happiness, fastidiously upon getting it, so that you may be made well. Should you be in a locality where you cannot procure Paine's Celery Compound from your dealer or retailer, send two dollars to the Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal, and they will send two bottles to your nearest express office, all charges paid.

Hon. Mr. Gibson in reply stated that the only expenses were witness fees. Foreman Scott had put in a claim for the expenses of the defence, so far as related to the charges upon which he had been acquitted. The Government was considering this claim.

Mr. Whitney asked on what date was Dunlop retired from the position of farmer, or assistant farmer, at the London Asylum? Was he asked to send in his resignation, and if so, for what reason? Who was appointed to succeed him.

Hon. J. M. Gibson said Mr. Campbell had retired in October, 1895, because of prolonged illness, which rendered him unable to attend his duties. No one had been appointed to his position at present. The duties of the office were being performed by an ordinary farmer.

The following bills were brought down: The Cities Municipal Act—An act to amend the Municipal Act, Mr. Marter. The Finance Committee to sit with the Public School Board, the High School Board and the Public Library Board while they are preparing their estimates. It applies to cities of one hundred thousand inhabitants, and enables the public to maintain public lavatories and other conveniences, and also enables the Council of any municipality to pay rewards for the discovery and apprehension or conviction of impostors.

An act respecting travelling shows, circuses and other like exhibitions. The Attorney-General prohibits the exhibition of travelling menageries, circuses, wild west shows, and other shows of the kind without a license having been obtained for that purpose from the Provincial Treasurer. The sum of five dollars shall be paid for every day during which the show is licensed to be exhibited. It is made the duty of the provincial treasurer to protect the public from the exhibition of the show in any place where the show is to be exhibited.

CASTORIA. For Infants and Children. MOTHERS, Do You Know that Peppermint, Balmam's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupifying narcotic poisons? Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons? Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless your physician knows of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle? Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher, that it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive rights to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense? Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 25 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose? Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest? Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

There's no good reason why the season of Lent should be looked forward to with dread by house-keepers. The many kinds of Fish now obtainable make it possible to have a pleasing variety at slight cost. We are prepared to quote specially low prices for quantities, and it will pay the heads of large families to buy in this way.

OUR GENERAL STOCK was never as complete as at present, and embraces clean fresh Groceries that we can offer our customers with every confidence. For years our aim has been to keep the very best quality of goods while selling as low as any other house in the trade, and the large patronage we now enjoy is proof that we took the right course. But we have the desire to do a larger business than ever in 1896, and new customers will be welcomed.

TABLE DELICACIES. Comparatively few people are aware of the many lines we carry. What is more appetizing, for instance, than Potted Turkey or Chicken, yet many people have never tasted either in its specially prepared shape. Then there are many kinds of Jellies and Marmalades to furnish a pleasant change for the jaded palate. It's not the cost of these that keeps people from buying—they don't think of them.

Let us add a word or two concerning the excellent of our TEAS and COFFEES. Other merchants praise their goods, and perhaps with reason, but no better value can be had in the county than from us, and we invite a trial confident of the verdict.
