THE MANIPURIS DEFEATED.

Resignation of Vicercy Lansdowne-A Brilliant Victory-Gallant Conduct of the Ghoorkhas - Accusation Against British Troops.

LONDON, April 9. - The Chronicle says: "The Marquis of Lansdowne has intimated to the government his desire to resign the viceroyship of India on account of illhealth and for other reasons."

Advices have been received in Simla of a brilliant success for the British forces in Manipur. The Manipuris made a fierce attack upon the slender force of Ghoorkhas commanded by Lieut. Grant, which recently captured Fort Thabat, driving out an overwhelming force of Manipuris at the overwhelming force of Manipuris at the last. Subjoined are the names, inserted in School Report.—The following is the report of s. s. No. 1 for the second week of April. The merit of the pupils in the third and fourth classes is based upon the marks obtained at the examination held Friday last. Subjoined are the names, inserted point of the bayonet, after playing havoc in their ranks by well directed firing. The Manipurla attack was stubborn and deterpast: Fourth class—A. M. Ferguson, Manipuris' attack was stubborn and deter-minedly made, and they pushed forward in Clarence Mark, Edward Rodman, John spite of the destructive fire with which they were received. The enemy fought gallantly for every foot of the ground, the attack ald McLean, Willie Gilson, Laurence Rodlasting three hours, during which some superb fighting was witnessed on all sides.

Finally the Manipuris were repulsed, the binson. Junior second—Maggie Gilson, Charlie. usurping rajah and two prominent chiefs —all three of whom had displayed remarkWestern. Part second—Heber Cornish, the attack, being killed during the fight. The loss of the tribesmen in addition to the killing of their leaders was very heavy. Capt. Presgrove has arrived at Fort Tha-bat with much needed reinforcements. This, combined with Lieut. Grant's great victory, has so disheartened the Manipuris that they announce they are ready and willing to recognize the property of the British officials directly the British troops re-enter Manipur. progress. WM. THORBURN, teacher.

way to Manipur, where the massacre of Ghoorkhas took place, and the subsequent fate of Chief Commander Quinton and his party will be thoroughly investigated. A letter received in Simla Tuesday from the leader of the Manipurs, who ordered the massacre of Chief Commissioner J.W. Quinton and his colleagues at Manipur, says: "The British troops attacked the palace and massacred my soldiers, and also killed women and children. In addition burning houses and desecrated the temples. home me deal of te Quinton's party." The letter also containsome of the following: "I deeply regret the sad lot of it. event, which was wholly due to the rash. ness and the indiscretion of the British officers."

Additional bodies of troops are on their

Greenwood, the British political which stormed and captured Fort Thabat recently, and Captain Presgrove, in command of a detachment of troops sent to reinforce Grant, are now said to be safe. London, April 12.-Capt. Boll, sen., a survivor of the massacre at Manipur, denies the stories in regard to British ill-usage of London, April 13.—The latest advices from India concerning the masscre at Manipur are that Commissioner Quinton was decapitated and his body horribly hacked, the limbs being afterwards thrown outside the city walls, where they were devoured by dogs. Two officers whose names are not given and a bugler were speared by the Kukis, and Mr. Grimwood, of all the victims were brutally mutilated and afterwards thrown over the walls of the city, as in the case of the unfortunate commissioner. The remains of two officers who were killed during the fight were treated in a similar manner. A large reward has been offered for the capture of the regent of Manipur. News from Manipur is both better and worse. It is no longer doubtful that Mr. Quinton and all, or nearly all, his party were killed. Mr. Quinton, as chief commissioner of Assam, was a great official, and among those who perished with him are Mr. Grimwood, the resident of Manipur, and Col. Skeene, who commanded the Ghoorkhas. The death of such men is a blow to British prestige, which can only be who was also the leader of this revolt against British protection, has obligingly given his enemies the occasion they wanted, and marched to Thobat, a wretched mud fort some twenty miles from the city, retreated nor surrendered to an army forty times more numerous than his own. seemed to Lieut. Grant a better course to resist these 3,000 Manipuris. He did so; best them, killed their leader and other high officers, drove them from before the fort, and has written his own name large in the annals of Indian warfare. Reinforcements have since arrived. Others more numerous are hurrying forward, and the only question the English have to decide is which of several possible forms retribution may take. They may annex Manipur, or put their own man on a nominal throne.

The Manipur Situation—A Large British Force Hurrying Forward. More serious fighting is looked for in the near future between the British (roops and the insurgent Manipuris. Profiting by the delay of the British troops in ad vancing to the front, the Manipuris are erecting stone stockades, digging rifle pits and in other ways preparing to give the British a warm recep ion. The British authorities are hurrying forward a large force under command of Generals Graham and Collett. This shows that the situation is serious, and the authorities recognize the fact that a crushing blow think they are not worthy of a prize.

The farmers report good runs of sap and in nearly every bush the camp smoke may be seen from early morn to night, so busy are the people beiling sap down into syrup. In one particular case a few young men took a few cedar rails and repaired to the bush of one of their neighbors at night and slyly filled the huge kettles, kindled the fire and worked away vigorously keeping up the fires and watching the kettles, and began to chuckle over the large amount of taffy they were going to have when lo, Mr Farmer returned from the village, noticed the fire and started for the woods when a general stampede was made, and a firstclass axe was found, evidently left by the lads in their haste. However, they can have the axe by calling and paying for the
