INTENSE SUFFERING!

Mr. William Buchanan, 24 years engineer in the Cunard Steamship Company's service, 8 St. John's Road, Kirkdale, Liverpool, Eng., writes: "I suffered two years of agony from an affection in the head which six physicians pronounced incurable. They were divided in opinion as to whether it was acute neuralgia of the head or rheumatic affection of the brain, but all agreed that I could never recover. In my paroxysms of pain it needed two and sometimes three men to hold me down in bed. When at death's door,

Meanwhile Mr. Finley and the hired man were wending their way to the field, but all at once Mr. Finley was seized with a kind of twitching, and the perspiration began to break on him in large drops, "so large that it ran into his boots." This passed away, but soon another spasm more severe seized him; and, to his horror, when he went to walk home his legs refused to carry him, and then be was driven to the house on the stone boat by Walker. As soon as possible Mr. Jas. Morrison, a neighbor, was called in and he at once gave Mr. Finley a heavy mustard emetic, which had the desired effect, and it is quite likely that it saved Mr. Finley's life. If this proves true a new and important agent in the treatment of dyspepsia has been discovered. As nearly all other diseases are directly influenced by the degree in which food can be assimilated, and as millions of people have imperfect di gestion, the possibilities of this discovery are almost limitless, if it proves to be as represented. But even more striking was the further announcement in the same paper, written by a practical chemist, that the juice of a pineapple is a very active solvent of the membrane formed in diphtheria. The pineapple is a wholesome fruit without regard to those striking features ascribed to it, and experiments upon the lines suggested will be very easy and safe.
