FOR SPRING PLANTING

We Have Every Kind of Field and Garden Seeds You Require

IF A FARMER,

Try our Red and White Clover Seed—it is carefully selected, plump and clean—the kind you have sold for many years past without being "hailed over the coals" so to speak. We carry a large stock of Field and Garden Seeds, and are jealous of our reputation as dependable dealers, and it is a sure thing that we try to please you.

IF A GARDENER,

You know that your success depends upon having reliable seeds—the healthy, virile kind that produce vegetable and make your reputation. We are supplied by the best seedsmen known to the trade, and confidently ask you to make your purchases here.

IF A CITIZEN,

Whether you till your garden patch as a means of recreation or to eke out an income none too large for the needs, you will feel a pride in growing vegetables that are bigger and better than your neighbors'—and fit for the Central Fair. Careful cultivation means much, but unless the seed is right the sweetest labor is spent in vain. Here again we say, try

Lindsay School Board Honored.

Col. Deacon and Mr. Thos. Stewart represented Lindsay board of education at the trustees' section of the Canadian Educational Association, which met in convention in Toronto on Tuesday and concluded yesterday. Messrs. Hardy, Collins and Stevens, of the Collegiate staff, and Mr. J. Morgan, of Osneston, were also in attendance. We take pleasure in noting that the section elected Col. Deacon president for the ensuing year.

A Bridge Swept Away.

The I. B. & O. R. R. bridge over Baptiste lake was wrecked last Friday by a huge field of ice set in motion by a furious gale. The bridge is 1,922 feet in length, with piers approaches at either end, the centre spans being upheld by wooden piers. Unfortunately last fall Mr. Pusey was unable to have the piers filled in with stones or iron scrap, as was his intention owing to the lateness of the season, and he intended doing so next week. The high winds of Sunday and Monday broke the ice, huge masses of which drifted against the piers and shoved several of them partly off their foundations, and Friday's fierce gale completed the work for destruction by again driving the floating ice against the structure. Some 400 feet of the centre part of the bridge were swept away, and next morning passengers had to be ferried across on a rudely constructed raft to reach the train on the other side of the lake.

Another Start.

Bob, independent. Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer by a fry of pork. Lent is at an end, and the air is rich with the odor of fried ham and other things, chiefly other things. Having got rid of the snivels, nicely over the pink-eye, and fairly convalescent of the semi-annual boiling of soft-soap. Nature comes to gladden the heart with a slight growing beauty. Set aside before a picture of great beauty, full import is not realized, but Nature, in the spring, gradually unfolds her grandeur and solemnly and completely the work for which she has been waiting. Morgan and Hamilton vs. G. T. R. Co.

These two actions, which were in the first division court of the county of Haliburton were heard at Minden last Friday, the 23rd inst., before his honor Judge Dean, with a jury. By agreement between the counsel, as the circumstances were identical in each case, the two cases were tried together. The facts giving rise to the action were these: The owners of the horses, Morgan and Hamilton, and David Morgan, residents of the township of Snowdon, were drawing wood from the siding on the siding north of the bridge crossing the Barrat river, about two miles from the place. On reaching the siding they were obliged to proceed along a trespass road across the lands of one David Morgan, these lands not being fenced off by the railway company from the railway property. The sleigh on which the wood was drawn was in compliance with a contract with Watson, of Kilmont, the crossing effected over the locater's land with his permission. On the morning in question, about six o'clock, that is to say, on the 30th of January last, the plaintiff attached their horses to a load about a mile and a half from the railway (the load having been placed on the sleigh before), and the sleigh was being drawn towards the siding. One of the hills which they were obliged to go down was very steep, and as the foot gear was a severe hitch, the sleigh broke, and as a result of the breaking the horses ran away following the trespass road until they came to the siding, and then ran southward along the siding until they reached the Barrat river. Here their legs became entangled between the ties, and the plaintiff, who had run after the horses, caught up to them. One of the plaintiffs (Morgan) remained with the horses, as did other men who heard them calling for help. Morgan directed his co-plaintiff, Hamilton, to take a lantern and to proceed northward up the track to signal to train. Hamilton says that he went northward up the track for three or four miles, and that he saw the train with a heavy load of groceries. The train was littered with freight which was unable to take, and the young man, instead of halting at the top of the hill to find out if his load could be recovered, drove straight on to the wharf when he was struck by the train. Then he pricked his head and faced the hill, but when half-way up the hill he was struck by the train, and he was killed. A horse which was heavily-laden with the wood was landed in the river had not a quick-witted bystander blocked the wheels with a heavy beam.

Opening of Navigation.

The horses whistle of Mr. Boyd's yacht, the Calamet, about 10.30 Thursday week announced the opening of navigation on the lower waters for 1897. She had the number of citizens sent to admire her graceful lines and her handsome fittings. A considerable floating ice was met with opposite Hudson's Landing, but the masses that blocked the entrance to the river on Tuesday had disappeared. Those on board reported that three or four boatsmen along the south front of Sturgeon Point appeared to be badly wrecked by the ice when breaking up. The boatsmen will be placed in commission Saturday, and will continue running till the new boat is ready—which will likely be about the first week in June.

Struck by a Squall.

A number of our citizens who were on board the Beauséjour on the down trip last Friday afternoon report a somewhat exciting experience. When the boat was midway between the mouth of the river and Sturgeon Point she was struck by a fierce squall from the south-west, accompanied by heavy rain, and took some part of the lower deck, and a quantity washed into the hold. It would be an impossible feat to describe the amount of damage done, but as some of the freight shifted at the same time and went clattering about the deck, the alarm was given, and the boat was thrown into a sea which was as intense while the fury of the squall lasted. A trunk owned by a young lady teacher was thrown overboard, and with such force that the lid was shattered to pieces, and the contents, including a large quantity of clothing, were rescued in a very bedraggled condition and placed for safety in an empty freight box on Sturgeon Point. The gale lasted for about five minutes, and everyone breathed a sigh of relief when the vessel got on an even keel once more.

Wedded at Kingston.

In last week's Post we noted the departure of Miss Carrie Bentley for Kingston "to visit friends," so we were informed. Next day's Kingston News, which carried a notice of her marriage, the fortunate young man being Mr. T. S. Scott, B. A., of Galt. The News says: "This morning at 10 o'clock, in the presence of Mrs. Bentley, Princess St. Miss Carrie Bentley was united in marriage to Mr. T. S. Scott, B. A., of Galt, by the Rev. J. K. Macdonald. The event was quite a social feature, and was witnessed by a large number of citizens. After the ceremony the gathering sat down to an elaborately prepared breakfast, which was served in the dining room. The young couple were tenderly congratulated by all present. A reception was held from 11 o'clock till 12.30, at which 200 friends gathered. Miss Bentley was assisted by the bride, Miss M. Albert Scott, and the bridesmaids were Misses J. and M. Bentley. The bride was handsomely arrayed in a dress of cream silk, and wore a large diamond necklace, and a pair of diamond earrings. Her traveling suit was of the latest fashion, and she was the admiration of the many friends who remained to give her the bride's blessing.
