CANADA'S GREAT CANALS.

They are Looked Upon as a Direct Menace to the Grain Trade of New York, Buffalo and Other American

The following article taken from the New York Scottish American of April 5th, epitomizes many editorials on the same subject constantly appearing in the columns of the New York and Buffalo papers:

Considerable excitement and uneasiness have been raised by Canada's great canal scheme, with huge elevators and other terminal appliances for the grain trade, at Montreal, for they are interpreted as a direct menace of the grain trade of New York and the other Atlantic ports here. It is not merely the fact of the distance from Montreal to Liverpool being 250 miles less than from New York-the scheme as a whole is regarded as highly significant. Some time ago we pointed this out, and since then the fear of the effects of the opposition has been increasing rather dimin shing. It is generally acknowledged here that the improvements effected on the Welland and St. Lawrence canals have rendered them vastly superior to the canals of this State. Saturday's Market,

Owing to the wet, sloppy weather, the market was rather slim last Saturday. With the exception of a few live hogs there was scarcely anything offered for sale outside. Eggs and butter constituted the chief offerings inside, and the demand was good and prices fair. The following figures were paid: Butter, 16c and 17c; eggs. 12c and 121/2c per dozen; chickens; 60c per pair; maple syrup, 25c per Quart; dressed hogs, $4.50 to $5; hay. Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloated sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a fo m tor of gases, causing pressure on the lungs and heart and difficult breathing; headache, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out and languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition. a th mile and a packet of needles for ten cents. She had a paper box full of the articles she peddled, and she admitted on questioning that she had become a peddler in response to an adother young lady of about the same interesting age as the thimble peddler called at the private residence of the editor of the psychological department of this journal and fairly compelled him to buy a "sachet" of perfume to place among his clothing. This also was a ten cent peddler. A little boy, certainly not ten years of age, called and without any hesitation presented a box of toilet soap and pressed for its purchase. Another ten cent peddler. The number of such children is very great.
