DIED FROM DIPTHERIA.—Dr. Bell, coroner, and County Crown Attorney Wood went to the north-east corner of Dummer township on Friday and held an investigation regarding the cause of the death of Emma Carolina Lee, a young woman 18 years of age, who died on April 10. She was a domestic at John Hubbell's. She was sick a short time and died on Sunday. It was given out that she had died of diphtheria and she was buried on Tuesday morning. Rumors were started, in which it was said that the girl had received a blow on the head, and another report of a more sensational character, but these were shown by the evidence and by the post mortem examination, made by Dr. Smith of Warsaw, to have been without foundation. The Hubbell family was, however, censured by the jury in the following verdict: "That Emma Carolina Lee died from natural causes, namely, diphtheria, on Sunday, April 10, 1892, at the house of John Hubbell, in the township of Dummer, and the Hubbell family are deserving of grave censure, both for neglecting to call in medical skill and also for concealing the nature of the disease, thus exposing neighbors visiting their homes to the contagion."

BURNEAL.—A number of invited guests assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Ellis, Armour-st., last Wednesday afternoon to witness the marriage of their daughter Kate to Mr. James T. Storer of Montreal. About a quarter after five the bride, carrying a large bouquet of white flowers, entered the parlor leading on the arm of her father, and looking charming in her travelling dress of pearl grey. She was assisted by her sister Minnie, who also looked very pretty dressed in silver grey, and carried a bouquet similar to the bride. Mr. H. R. Ransom of Montreal acted as the part of "best man" for the groom. Rev. D. Raddick, pastor of the Baptist church, read the marriage service, and, receiving their promise of obedience to the marriage vows, pronounced them man and wife, and the happy couple received the many congratulations of their friends. The company then sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, and the time passed quickly until the hour arrived for the happy couple to take the 7.45 train west on their honeymoon trip, which they did amid a shower of rice. They will visit Toronto, Lindsay and other places before settling for their home in the commercial metropolis. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful and costly presents, some handsome ones coming from distant country, British Columbia. Among the guests from a distance noticed Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Storer, Miss Maggie Storer, Lindsay; Mr. Arthur Storer, Toronto; Mr. George Storer, Mr. H. R. Ransom, Montreal; and Mr. Jos. Smith, Peterboro. The young couple take with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends, for many years of domestic sunshine, in which the Guide heartily joins.—Guide.

MINDEN.

RECOVERED.—Mr. James McAvella, who had his leg broken on the Rathbun drive, is now so far recovered as to be about on crutches and quite lively. Dr. Curry was the physician. He has now gone to his home at Campbellford.

PERSONAL.—Rev. J. S. McMullen received the high honor at the district meeting in Lindsay this week of being appointed on the stationing committee for the coming year, and will no doubt be at conference on the 3rd of June next at Port Hope. We congratulate this estimable gentleman on his new appointment.

OBITUARY.—Mrs. Chambers, sen., of the Anderson road, township of Minden, who has been for some time past in a critical state of health, passed peacefully to her rest on Thursday, 19th inst. Mrs. Chambers was an old and highly respected settler that will be greatly missed by a large circle of relatives and friends.

ATTACKED BY A HAWK.—An old and respected settler in the township of Lutterworth was returning home from the village on foot one day last week pretty well laden with parcels, and among the latter of the purchases was a soft felt hat, which he was carrying on his head placed on top of a straw hat. While passing through the woods near his own home something suddenly struck his head, and looking up he saw a large black hawk sailing away with his new hat in his talons and soon disappeared out of his sight. Somewhat irritated by the event he was pursuing his way homeward when again the hawk made another descent upon him, striking his head again, but failed to carry off his other hat, and with hands full of parcels he could not drop them quick enough to try to capture the vicious bird, but determined if it came back again he would be prepared for it. He stopped and cut a club to defend himself with, and ere he went much further the hawk made a third attack upon him, which was done too quickly for the club to be of any use. The gentleman proceeded to his home, returning with a shot gun and an axe in his hands and blood in his eye. He found a hawk's nest in a tree near the place he was attacked and succeeded in shooting three old hawks; he also cut down the tree in which the nest was and destroyed the young brood, but has not yet found his hat. —[Echo.

SPRING NOTES.—Everything is very quiet here now. Seeding is nearly over and planting is the order of the day. The small boy and the sucker have parted company for the time being, and the former is seeking other amusements less exciting, perhaps, but also less cruel.

SICKNESS.—During the winter and early spring we had almost an epidemic of sickness, but now good health is prevalent and the doctors are idle.

A QUIET DAY.—The 24th passed off very quietly, there being no celebration here.

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION.—From present appearances it looks as if our school house would have to be enlarged. Miss Clark has been engaged as assistant. There are over sixty pupils in attendance daily.

PERSONAL.—Jas. McKey spent Sunday with his family....Miss Loo Dunsheath is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Chirpaw.....Miss Nora Armour and Miss Ann McKey have both engaged schools for the season in Haliburton.

THE TELEPHONE DEAL IN PETERBORO.

The Bell People Acquire the Ontario Stock on Terms Satisfactory to the Shareholders.

(From Peterboro Examiner, May 18.)

The telephone deal, by which the Ontario Telephone Company is to be absorbed by the Bell, was practically consummated last night at the annual meeting of the former. There was a good attendance of shareholders and President Kendry's report, which we give below, placed before the meeting in a very concise way the present position of the company and the reasons for the deal in which the directors are leading. After a very full and frank discussion, with explanations from the president and members of the board, the report was unanimously adopted. The following is the full text of the president's report to the shareholders of the Ontario Telephone Company: GENTLEMEN,—In presenting to you the first annual report of the transactions of our company, I regret that I cannot congratulate you on the result of last year's operations. The estimates furnished us by the gentlemen who undertook the construction of our system proved altogether unreliable. The plant, instead of costing us $9,000 as was promised and anticipated, cost us nearly, if not quite, double that amount. To this one fact alone we can lay the whole blame of our present position, for it is easy to understand that the rate which was calculated to yield a divident upon an investment of $9,000 is altogether insufficient under existing circumstances. Your directors during the past year have devoted many hours weekly to the management of the company and have further carried the concern entirely on their own personal credit with the banks. In addition to the heavy load which the board was called upon to shoulder, they had, as you know, to fight against the strongest possible competition from the Bell Company. The result, as I said before, has not been encouraging, and your directors feel that they cannot longer devote the time and money to a proper management of the business and the operation of the exchange. Under these circumstances the board feel that the present opportunity to dispose of their stock to the Bell Telephone Company should be accepted. Many of the shareholders have already accepted this offer, and I am pleased to be able to state that the same opportunity remains open to those that still hold their shares. Your directors in yielding up their service have the satisfaction of knowing that for seventeen months they have given the public an excellent service. In conclusion I ask that every shareholder will investigate for himself the reasons which have led to the present surrender, and will openly and above board make any reflections they may see fit to cast on the management of the company. If this is done there will be no difficulty in satisfying everyone that the present step is the only one to take under existing circumstances. The balance sheet and auditors' report, which, I regret to say, are so unfavorable, are submitted herewith for your inspection. JAS. KENDRY, president.

In regard to the future policy of the Bell Telephone Company, nothing has been decided nor will be done until the meeting of the board. Those who understand the inside working of the local telephone company know that President Kendry and his board of directors have fought a good fight, and that if success had been possible they would have gained it. While the officials frankly give expression to their relief that the fight is over, they retire not without honors. The public will echo their congratulations that they have given their patrons an excellent service, and that in trying the experiment of cheap telephone service they have given it every chance of success and the result is not due to any fault of theirs. The arrangement is an amicable one and as such is will be hailed with very general satisfaction.

THE HAPPY COLORED FAMILY.

We are a happy, joyous throng,
They call us Diamond Dyes;
From day to day we march along
'Neath bright and cloudy skies.

We are a color'd family,
Some dark and others fair;
No two of us are just alike,
Yet all beyond compare.

O'er Canada we scatter wide
Our school of trusty dyes;
The ladies in us all confide—
Greet us with loving eyes.

We make no strikes for shorter time,
Or system of eight hours;
We're always ready for a dime
To show our wondrous pow'rs.

At early morn, with great delight
We're ready for the fray;
And do our work as well at night,
As we can do by day.

We are so brilliant, fast and pure,
Have hearts true to the core;
We never flirt, our love is sure—
The ladies ask no more.

The merchant's and the farmer's wife
Make use of us each day;
The pastor's spouse declares that life
Is blank when we're away.

Canadian girls young and fair,
Are charmed by our dash;
And often seriously declare
That we have made a mash.

To mansion, hall, and cottage plain,
We carry mirth and glee;
And always manage to retain
A life of purity.

The New Jersey Legislature passed a law in 1889 empowering the board of freeholders in any county to set aside certain roads as county roads and take charge of them, the cost of maintenance to be borne by the county. The boards were empowered by this act to issue county bonds to raise money to put the roads in condition as first-class highways. The freeholders' board of Union County were the first to take advantage of this law. They selected thirty-five miles of road, the main highways through the county, set them aside as county roads and voted to issue bonds to the amount of $300,000, to pay the cost of macadamizing. At this action, a wail went up from the farmers. Such unprecedented extravagance would plunge the county hopelessly in debt, raise the taxes above boiling point, and ruin them all; such expenditure might be wise in a county like Essex, including large cities, but to entail such a debt upon Union was rank idiocy. Nevertheless, the freeholders pushed the preliminary work steadily forward, sent the engineers over the ground and took bids for the work, which was portioned into sections. After the work was under way the board was confronted with the fact that $300,000 would not complete the work undertaken. The dilemma had the usual two horns—leave the work incomplete, or raise more money. The opposition was strong, but they concluded to raise the money and finish the work as originally planned, so additional bonds for $50,000 were issued, making a total of $350,000. At the extra issue of bonds the dissenters settled down in silent despair and waited for the result.

It is now nearly a year since the completion of the roads that give Union County the finest highways in the country. From Elizabeth, the county seat, they branch out in fan-shape through the county, to Rahway, to Plainfield, to Summit. At Elizabeth and Springfield they join with the Essex County system, that goes through Newark and the famous Oranges, giving fifty miles of first-class road between the extreme points, from Pine Brook in Essex County through Montclair, Orange, Newark, Elizabeth and Plainfield to Dunellen in Union County. Then the intersecting roads from Elizabeth to Rahway, Rahway to Westfield, Westfield to Fanwood and Scotch Plains on the west, and Springfield and Summit on the east, all combined, render any part of the counties accessible at all times of the year. The roads are always in good condition, mud has no terrors for the teamster or coachman, and the weight of the load is only limited by the strength of the team.

Now that the roads are built and have been in use nearly a year, it is difficult to find a farmer who opposed them. When you do find one who admits it, he blushes to acknowledge it. At all seasons and at all times, the markets have been accessible to him. If he had anything to take to market, he was not compelled to hurry it thither in poor condition before the winter storms made the roads impassable, or to hold it until spring, when there was no demand for it. For the same reason the farmers were not compelled to rush all their produce into market at the same time, overstock the market, and consequently run down prices. The supply has not overrun the demand, and for all kinds of produce sold by the Union County farmers in the markets of New York, Newark, Elizabeth and Rahway prices have been steadier and the general average higher the past year than before. This statement is not made off-hand, but is based upon actual investigation. Then, the farmer has been benefited again in the rise in the value of property. The good roads have proved an attraction to a class of residents who do not look to the farm for a livelihood, but are ready customers for farm products. A man doing business in the city can live two and three miles away from the depot, when he knows that at all times of the year he has a good, solid road from his door to the depot. What is three miles to an ordinary horse on a macadamized road? These roads have made every part of the county desirable as a place of residence for business men. Land, that before these roads were constructed, went begging for a purchaser at $100 an acre, finds a ready sale at $175 and $200 an acre, and there is not much offered even at that figure. Farming is profitable now where it was a losing business before. The increase in land value alone would pay the cost of the road many times over. Taxes are a trifle higher, but no reasonable man would object to paying a few dollars more tax when his property has been doubled in value. I have yet to find the man who says the roads of Union County are not the best investment the county ever made. The roads themselves are, strictly speaking, Telford-macadam, the foundation being according to Telford, and the finishing Macadam. In laying the bed an excavation was made eighteen inches deep and twelve feet wide. In this trench the foundation stone was carefully placed by hand by experienced workmen. Closely and compactly over this a layer of coarse crushed stone and a sprinkling of earth was placed, and the mass rolled sufficiently, the topdressing of fine stone was scattered on the road, rounded up and rolled solid. This road withstands the action of frost, and is always dry. After it is laid, the cost of keeping it in repair is nominal, fine crushed stone being put on the low and wornout parts and then rolled. There is not so much exaggeration in the statement of the old farmer, that "every one of Union County's macadamized roads is worth more than a railroad."—Edwin Ralph Collins, in the American Agriculturist.

The rock which our great flockmasters have split upon heretofore has been promiscuous breeding. Not alone was the error of no selection committed, but, worse still, the various families of sheep were crossed and recrossed until all originality was obliterated and a mongrel produced, which showed poor in flesh and meager in fleece. The most favorod of the ovine family as mutton producers are the South Downs and their near cousins the Shropshire Downs. The former are noted all over the sheep-growing regions of the world, and the latter can stand their own in public favor. Where pasture is plenty and winter keep assured these full-bodied sheep are more profitable than the smaller breeds. The Merino sheep lives on its native Sierras on scant provender. The Cheviot and Welsh mountain sheep feed where only a goat could. Their flesh is excellent, but as a lowland sheep they are surpassed by the Downs. The valuable qualities of the Shropshire Downs are vigor of constitution, early ripeness of the wethers for market, and in the ewes marked fecundity; many produce twins, and as dams, are well capable of nourishing the lambs. Our engraving portrays a remarkably fine specimen of this noble breed. In it is seen the ram Ban Chief 4357, bred by A. S. Berry, Birmingham, England. He won the second prize at the Royal Agricultural Society exhibition this year. The sire was Monmouth Wonder 4094; dam by Harborough 2630. He weighed 342 pounds, and sheared nineteen and three-fourths pounds when one year old.—American Agriculturist.

BAN CHIEF.

A Selfish Race.

Concealing their wealth from everybody and leading a retired life, the Moors of Algeria have reserved all their skill and taste for the inward ornamentation of their dwelling places—marble columns with delicate flutings, ogive arches of delicate design, balustrades of precious wood, large doors with fine panels, ceilings of arabesque or gaudy paintings, fountains playing and mosaic floors—these are the sort of things which are to be found inside an Arab's dwelling house. The door which opens on the street never lets you at once into the apartments. You enter first a hall more or less spacious, according to the importance of the mansion, and the wealth of the owner. On both sides of this hall, under arches sustained by graceful columns, are marble seats intended for visitors, friends and customers. An Arab allows no stranger to go farther, except on rare occasions.

A courtyard bordered on its four sides by galleries comes next. The court is used for receptions and marriage ceremonies. Then the pavement is covered with matting and carpets, and a vast cloth is stretched overhead to protect the guests against sudden rain or too much sunlight. Around the galleries of the ground floor are the kitchen, bath, stores, and other rooms of that sort, and sometimes a cistern. The pavement of the hall and court—when not of mosaics—the steps of the staircase, the columns, the door-posts, are all of stone or marble. The walls are inlaid with faience of various colors skillfully combined. The first floor has similar arrangement, and there the sitting-rooms and sleeping chambers are to be found. There is sometimes a second story, and here in Algiers the roof is flat always. This serves as a lounging terrace, where the women may go on pleasant days to breathe the fresh air and talk with each other.

Nothing could be better arranged for a warm climate than a Moorish house, with its galleries, its porticos, its ventilators, its oblong rooms opening one on an inner court, and its refreshment fountains. What an appropriate abode for rest, study and meditation. The outward noise never reaches this calm and quiet home. It is isolated and yet in the midst of a great crowd of houses, and it is especially by these precautions against indiscreet looks, by these endeavors to secure solitude and tranquility, that the jealous mood, the indolent and contemplative nature of the oriental is revealed.

The Commercial Man's Grip.

I have long looked for a preparation that would keep my head clear of Dandruff, but always failed to receive any material benefit until a friend recommended Anti-Dandruff, which I used with perfect success. It not only removed the Dandruff with three applications, but stopped the annoying itching of the scalp and rendered the hair soft and pliable without leaving an appearance of a dressing being used. It now occupies a permanent position in my grip. It is pleasant to use, and with pleasure I recommend it.
