unfortunate Cod-liver oil suggests consumption, which is almost unfortunate.

Its best use is before you consumption; when you begin to get thin, weak, run down; then is the prudent time to begin to take care, and the best way to take care is to supply the system with needed fat and strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, will bring back plumpness to those who have lost it, and make strength where raw codliver oil would be a burden. This action must be taken into consideration. His Grace had no confidence in the settlement of the question by an enquete. If there were an enquete it ought to be confided to the tashors, who are the only persons competent in the matter. The archickhop appealed to the parishioners to listen to his voice, and to reflect well on the importance of the vote which they would give at the coming While repudiating any intention of mingling in the struggles of party, he appealed to the parishoners to think of the interests of the church and of the persecuted flocks in Manitoba. It is needless to say his Grace's remarks created a profound impression. Both the candidates for the united Counties of Laprairie and Napierville, Messrs. C. Pelletier and D. Monet, were present. The cure of Louisville, in Maskinonge, also preached to the same effect. After mass Mr. J. H. Legris, the late Liberal member, spoke at some length on the question. Many cures in other parts of the province spoke in the same tones as Archbishop Langevin. His Grace is to preach on Wednesday in St. Anne's Church, Montreal, Hon. James McShane's constituency. The sermon is looked for with considerable interest, as His Grace is expected to deal with the Manitoba school question. The Archbishop is an eloquent English speaker, and his sermon, coming as it does so soon after the conclave of the hiermuch attention. This will be the first English sermon which His Grace has given in this city since his consecration. Mr. J. G. H. The floral offerings were significant. Under the circumstances, they elequently declared the moral and religious worth of his character. They showed that he had won the confidence of his teachers and fellow students in the Collegiate Institute, and what was still better, of the members of the Epworth Lague and bible class, with and for whom he sofaithfully labored. In this feature of his life we see a practical illustration of the power of divine grace to pen a young man's way among strangers, and ensuring him in enduring memory. Brief but bright was Manfrea's career on earth, but lasting as eternity will be the hallowed inflaences of his death.

Talk of Lord Salisbury's Retirement on Account of Ill-Health - Great Britain Has Another Trouble on Hand in the Situation in Persia,

New York, May 10.-Mr. Harold Frederic cables from London to The Times: Rumors of Lord Salisbury's ill health are about again, and I have even heard a circumstantial story that the Duke of Devonshire is going to take over the Foreign Office, but I am quite unable to say what likelihood there is that the report is true. For the moment, the new situation in Persia is occupying the attention of Downing-street, and of Asiatic experts generally, to the exclusion of other aspects of the international outlook. The new Shah is known to be in Russian hands, and it is assumed that Persia, under him, will become a sort of Russian Afghanistan, while England's practical supremacy in the Persian Gulf will be called in question by France. It is whispered about that very disquieting reports have come from the British political resident at Bushire, on this gulf, not only as to the general situation, but as to the actual safety of himself and his suite, for they are again menaced with personal violence. There is no way of verifying these reports, but all the old Indians I know say the position there is critical. Unhappily. British relations that one added cause for alarm hard-portrays the main political situation with unerring accuracy in this week's Punch. The subject of his cartoon is the fencing bout between President Kruger and Mr. Chamberlain, with the latter disarmed and looking sheepish. In the background stands Lord Salisbury as a veteran maitre d'armes with a critical eye, and exclaims: "Hum Joe's style's a trifle too open. There's something to be said for the old school after all." The Colonial Secretary's style has been too open; the Transvaal blue-book shows that President Kruger has been merely playing with the Colonial Office. Assuming that England had no right to interfere in the internal affairs of the Transvaal, he has demanded the abrogation of Article 4 of the London Convention, and has proposed a new treaty of peace and commerce with England. He was willing to attend a round table conference at which the control of the foreign alliances of the Transvaal should be surrendered, and the absolute charter of Boer independence signed; otherwise he had nothing to gain and would stay away. Mr. Chamberlain naturally did not want him to accept the invitation on those terms, so diplomacy is suspended. Sir Hercules Robinson is coming to England without Kruger, and Sir Jacobus de Wet will soon be pensioned off. Dr. Jameson would not now be able to command a cheer anywhere in London. The opinion is generally expressed that, with the cipher despatches available as evidence of deliberate and premeditated conspiracy, he will plead guilty on the issue of fact. Whatever indemnity is demanded by the Transvaal will have to be paid by the Chartered Company from financial responsibility for the raid. This makes it inconvenient for the directors to accept resignations. Mr. Chamberlain, moreover, having failed completely in his negotiations with Kruger, naturally does not want to shift the burden of indemnity from the treasury of the Chartered Company to the British taxpayers. He insists upon having Rhodes and the stock-jobbing millionaires pay the bills and does not wish to take away the charter prematurely or commit himself recklessly to summary processes of investigation. The ultimate doom of the Chartered Company is certain. Death of a Supposed Oshawa Girl-Stabbing Affray - Other Items. Toronto, May 12.

Carrie Wood, a patient in the General Hospital, and whose friends are supposed to be living in Oshawa, died very suddenly yesterday afternoon and Coroner Johnson has issued a warrant for an inquest at the hospital next Wednesday afternoon. Deceased was in the special department for women and was being prepared for an operation. A few drops of chloroform had been administered to her when she was suddenly seized with a convulsion resembling an epileptic fit, from which she never rallied. She was 25 years of age and was a domestic living in the city. At the latter part of last year she was at the hospital suffering from nervous prostration. Her brother Lorenzo Wood of Oshawa, has been telegraphed for. A sister resides at Cedar Dale and it is thought another sister, domestic, is in Toronto.

Last night on Elizabeth-street,north of College-street, Eliza Allen claims to have been stabbed in the head by William Johnstone, who said he lived at 40 Humbert-avenue. The girl has a couple of gashes in her head, but they are not serious. She will be all right in a day or two Johnstone, her assailant, is about 2 years of age, wore a straw hat, light coat and dark striped pants, He has not yet been captured.

Yesterday's papers contained a paragraph stating that J. Leslie Hopwood was missing from his home, Harbord-street. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning his corpse was found in room B of the Armories, making one more victim of the suicidal mania. Hopwood was an employe of the Canada Life Assurance Co. On Saturday morning he left his home about 9 o'clock, arriving at the office shortly afterwards. He drew $5 from the cashier and went out, as he said, to get shaved. That was the last seen of him there. At 11 o'clock he bor rowed a key of room B from E. Rickson, an employe of Rice Lewis & Son. That is about the last trace of him in the land of the living. Yesterday morning Hickson remem bered giving Hopwood the key, A search was made, and the dead body found with a bullet wound near the heart. The deceased had taken one of the regular army rifles, placed it on a counter and touched the trigger with the ramrod For some time past Hopwood has been talking about suicide. He said he was afraid he was going to lose his reason. He was about 25 years old, and has been in the employ of the Canada Life for some years, com-

Mr. J. T. Marshall Shot Down

at His Own Door.

The Victim Had Belatives in Toronto-One of the Most Daring Crimes Ever Committed in the Windy City-Work of an Organized Gang of Thugs.

Toronto, May 12. Yesterday Mr. John Myles, 82 Euclid-avenue, received particulars of the murder of his son-in-law, Mr. T. J. Marshall, a prominent Chicago merchant, and proprietor of the Golden Rule Store at 378 West Madison-street. Three years ago the deceased was married to Miss Kate Myles in Chicago. He was well known in the western states. His brothers are all in the drygoods business in a large way in various cities. He was 37 years of age, and was born in Belfast, Ire-

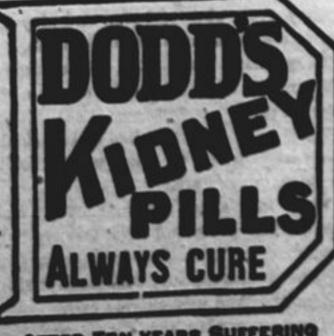

The crime is one of the most daring ever committed in the Windy City. About 8.30 Thursday evening two well dressed, respectable-looking men, one dressed in a bicycle suit, entered the Golden Rule Store, walked up to Miss Mattle Garrettson, the cashier of the establishment, and enquired at what time the store would close. She answered them and went on with her work. A moment later she was startled when one of them commanded her to hand over the cash. The plucky girl refused and the rufflan drew a revolver and pointed it at her head. She still refused; he drew another revolver and repeated, "open that cash drawer, I say, or I will shoot you." "I can't, it's locked," and as she spoke she slipped off the stool and screamed. Another saleswoman, who was only a few feet away, also screamed. The man with the revolvers retreated towards the door. As he commenced to retreat, another man with a drawn revolver entered the east door. Mr. Marshall and his manager, F. W. Park, saw this man and rushed towards him. The man with the gu cried out, "Come any nearer, and I'll put a hole through you." He then backed out of the door. Mr. Marshall and Park followed him. Just as he stepped off the curb he turned and fired twice at Marshall. One bullet entered his head and the other his breast, and he fell dead in Park's

The two bandits were joined by two accomplices, who had been waiting for them outside. They dashed down the street, pursued by an excited crowd. Being closely pressed, they turned and fired into the pursuing throng. One man caught a bullet in his thigh, and the other two struck a young woman who was on a Madi son-avenue car. The murderers scattered and made their escape.

Since the murder the entire police force has been on the qui vive, and over a dozen suspects have been arrested. Two men have been identified by a man namd Kelly, who was on a stret car at the time of the shooting. One of them is John A. Lang, who is said to have done the shooting, and Ed McNichols is one of the accomplices. Lang is 22 years of age and is a nephew of a well-known politician named Fitzsimmons.
