MR. FAIRBAIRN. As a farmer and one who knows what he is talking about, I desire to make a few remarks on this sub-Last session I made a short speech on this aubject, and when I went to my constituency for re-election, the reform papers said that I had come to the rescue of the government, to save the monopolists and the great rings that surrounded the farmers of this country. I want to say to Whitewood, 200 acres fenced, 160 acres under cultivation, about 100 acres in crop. There is a fine spring creek running through the place with good water the year round. New log house, 17x22; two graniaries, two stables. Two and one-half miles from church and Post Office, blacksmith, one-half mile. This farm will be sold with or without the crop. Now, if I went into a dry goods store and attempted to teach him about his business, he would tell me to mind my own business; and so I can assure you that I am talking as a farmer now about something that I know. I know nothing of what stand the government intends to take on this matter. Although I speak as a farmer, and not with the polished tongue of some hon. gentlemen who have been born with silver spoons in their mouths, still I think I know what benefits the farmer as well as any other member in this house. I would also say to my learned friend from North York (Mr. Mulock), who has been down in my riding talking binding twine, that if went into his office and told him that he did not know anything about getting up a brief, then he might reasonably say to me: You do not know anything about my business, but I do myself. I want to say also to the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Watson), that if I went into his machine

Mr. WATSON .- Or on my farm. Mr. FAIRBAIRN.-I do not know whether you are on a farm or not; I understand you are a machinist. The hon, member could tell me the same thing if I undertook to instruct him in machinery. I may say that I have given this subject a good deal study; it was my duty to give it a perfect study before I gave my last vote and made my last short speech in this house; and I am able to say that the American farmer has paid as much for his bind ing twine during the last twelve years as the Canadian farmer. I have affidavits in my possession from six different states of the union, made under oath, and giving the prices of binding twine. These were sent to me last year when I was assaulted by the binding twine ring, and they proved conclusively that we are not paying more for binding twine than the American farmer, consequently the hon. gentlemen opposite have no case. This is a broad question, and as a farmer I have a right to election contests on my hands than most men in this house, and I ought to have a fair idea of what the views of the people of the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you some the dealers and had all the facts and figures to give you so give fair idea of what the views of the people of 4,000,000 pounds. DEAR SIR,—In answer to your enquiry as to the prices of binder twine in this territory I beg to submit the enclosed list of prices, and being to submit the enclosed list of prices, and being to submit the enclosed list of prices from in the binder trade I have taken the prices from in the binder trade I have taken the prices from in the binder trade I have taken the prices from the retail sales books for the years named. Our prices are mostly for time sales, as a majority of our farmers are compelled to buy that way, of our farmers are compelled to buy that way, of our farmers are compelled to buy that way, of our farmers are compelled to buy that way, of our farmers are compelled to buy that way, of our farmers are compelled to buy that way, of our farmers are compelled to buy that way, of our farmers are compelled to buy that way. North Brant (Mr. Paterson), a gentleman whom I know every member in this house respects for his manhood and ability, did my constituency the honor of visiting it, and he so addressed an audience on free binding twine that in that locality where there were seven votes against me at the previous elections I had 64 majority after Oxford (Sir Richard Cartwright), who was once floance minister of this country, went into a reform hive in my constituency the night before the election. I wish he had night before the election. I wish he had to this country for the last seven years. Hoping more of a majority than the most sanguine of my friends ever expected. I have only one complaint to make of that hon, gentleman; I sent him a letter of thanks and

The hon. gentleman also said that the farmers this country were driven out of their natural market — the United States. Does he not know that the English surplus Canadian products as it is the market for the surplus of the United States? The farmer can send all his products to the markets of the great consuming emporium of the old world and I cannot see how it can be argued with reason that the farmers of Canada could get a market in the United States when the farmers of the United States have ten times more surplus products to export that we have. When that Chinese tariff wall was put around the American continent.intended for the benefit of the American farmer I have no coubt, our goverment sent their commissioner abroad to seek for other markets. We had no more to do with the McKinley bill than the man in the moon. That was the business of the American people, and they had a perfect right to do what they thought best in the interests of their country. But when the McKinley tariff was framed our government did not fold their arms and say that they could do nothing for the farmer, but they sought and obtained other foreign markets which are proving more beneficial to our farmers than ever did the markets of the United States. I wish to make just one remark to the hon, member for North Wellington (Mr. McMullen). He said the other night that two-rowed barley was not worth sowing. He said all he could to discourage the farmers of this country from sowing it, instead of giving the government the credit of doing the best they could under the circumstances. He asked for names, because he said re had tried it, and it was a failure. Well, I hope he is a better dry goods man than he is a farmer, for I am going to give him names to-night. I know a farmer who sowed 12 bushels of tworowed duck-bill barley—I saw the bills and I know the fields, and he had bills for 504 bushels from 10 acres with 12 bushels of seed. If the hon, gentleman can make a

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Fairbairn's False Statements Cor-

[To the Editor of THE POST] SIR,-A pamphlet purporting to be a speech delivered by Mr. Fairbairn, M. P., for South Victoria, in the house of commons at Ottawa, on the 26th ult, was handed to me last week on my return from Manitoba. In this speech I find Mr. Fairbairn refers to a conversation he had with me in the following language: "MR. FAIRBAIRN .- I am also going to repeat etatement made by the president of the reform association of South Victoria. I met him on my way to Ottawa the other day. He had a large farm in Dakota, and he was over here buying horses. I asked him: 'What are you at Peterborough for?' 'Well,' he said, 'Fairbairn, I am going to be a loyal man like the rest of you Canadians; I am abandoning my Dakota farm and I am going to Manitoba where I will meet my two sons, and we are going to break up a large farm and settle down as loyal Canadians.' I will give hon. gentlemen his name if they desire it; he told me I could use it here. "Some hon. members,-Name, "MR. FAIRBAIRN.-William Eyres, Esq., I sat with him in the county council for many years.

"MR. LANDERKIN .-- He was a tory, then. "MR. FAIRBAIRN-No, he was not a tory, but When I read the above I wondered what had happened Mr. Fairbairn. Has his close applica. tion to his parliamentary duties unstrung his mind, or has the foul moral atmosphere so pre, valent at Ottawa carried him down with Mc-Greevy, Langevin and the rest of the boodle brigade? If his purpose is to get as far from admirably. What was said about my loyalty was said in the veriest irony, and Mr Fairbairn knew it right well. His reference to it is a mean effort to make a little unjust capital at my expense by twisting the roasting I gave him on his loud mouthed loyalty. Mr. Fairbairn was in error when he said "I was abandoning my Dakota farm," but the extreme height of barefaced falsehood is reached when he says "He told me I could use it here" I gave him no such permission; he did not require it.

It is scarcely necessary for me to add Mr. Fairbairn deliberately stated what he knew was not true, when he said, "he is a tory now!" During the last 33 years I have not cast a tory vote at either a provincial or Dominion election and now, as I look at our fair country, weighed down with heavy taxation, much of it unnecessary, except to furnish funds for a foul brood of boodlers and their accomplices—worse than Tammany ever knew, I am more than ever convinced that the interests of this grand Dominion would be best promoted by hurling from power the whole tory party.
Since Mr. Fairbairn, without any permission from me, has seen fit to use my name before the house of commons, and to circulate the above false statements in the county of Victoria in pamphlet form, (I understand they have not appeared in the public press) I consider an explanation of my position and doings due to my reform friends who have honored me with their confidence for so many years. I have been farming and dealing in farm land for nearly forty years. In my early days I bought cheap farm land in this country to the full extent of my ability to pay, and never sold an acre until thirteen years ago when I found farm land depreciating rapidly in value. About this time I sold $26,000 worth at an advance on cost of 100 per cent. Had I sold-perhaps I should say "abandoned"—all my land property in this country at that time and escaped the blessings(?) force there very unfavorable to actual settlers. Reluctantly we crossed the line into the United ted. I wish to say that I have no know-ledge what stand the government pretend to take in this matter, but as an individual, if I stood completely alone in the house of pose Mr Fairbain calls this abandoning commons, unless hon, gentlemen opposite could prove to me that the American farmcould prove to me that the American farmer is getting his twine cheaper than the Canadian farmer, I would stand by the position I have taken against all odds. The whole opposition against me at the bye election simmered itself down to the agitation on the binding twine question. At my allegiance to my country, or to our noble queen-long may she live! I have paid $300 Webster City, Iowa, 2nd April, 1892.

DEAR SIR,—Answering your request of this date. I find that retail dealers have charged parliament I was prepared to take again privilege of voting even for a poundkeeper, parliament I was prepared to take again privilege of voting even for a poundkeeper, parliament I was prepared to take again privilege of voting even for a poundkeeper, parliament I was prepared to take again privilege of voting even for a poundkeeper, parliament I was prepared to take again privilege of voting even for a poundkeeper. ous session.
