MARK THIS WELL HOUSEKEEPERS!

Profits in the Grocery business are small nowadays, and competition is keen-more so, perhaps than you are aware of.

One great difficulty the progressive merchant has to contend with is the slowness of buyers to recognize the advantage of buying their goods fresh-buying from a stock that is being constantly replenished. Stale and inferior goods are sold over grocery counters as well as in the dry goods business, and the profit upon them is large. We don't propose to read you a lecture upon the subject, but we do wish to impress upon you the fact than an experience of fifteen years in the grocery business has taught us that in the long run QUALITY is recognized and appreciated by the general public. When we say that our stock of General Groceries is FRESH and fully assorted in all lines, and that the prices are down to the lowest notch compatible with a desire to pay our honest debts and gain what the world is said to owe every man-a living-we state a fact that will be readily believed by those who have traded with us in the past, and we stand ready to convince doubters.
