"Yer, but the first is enough. I don't agree with the government on all points. Their patronage is given too exclusively to their supporters. I dislike their policy of having a partizan minister of education, instead of an independent superintent, with a council of experts. I wonder at hospital, Detroit, for what different doctors their refusing to entertain the proposition | diagnosed as liver complaint, kidney trouble to do away with an expensive government house when the present deservedly popular away at him for 4½ hours, but when they got through none of them could tell what was governor's term of service has expired; from every but, then, neither do I agree with Mr. yelids. But Mr. Meredith is alfirst-class man. He received the greatest compliment ever paid to the leader of an opposition by his political opponents when they voted him a salary, which he had the good sense to refuse. When we have two such public servants at the head of the two parties, It appeared and when good administration is the only thing necessary for the province, why should there not be a coalition? A new country like Cntario ought to be ready to try experiments. But if I am forced to choose, clearly Mr. Mowat must be retained, or else public intimation is given that we are indifferent to able, upright and economical government at a time when the attention of the whole world has been called to Canada as an example of the "There is, however, another reason for voting for him that appeals to men who believe that British connection is indispensable to the growth of Canadian nationslity. Mr. Mowat was always loyal, but in the last two or three years he has taken a decided public stand that has cost him some followers, and that in my opinion should win for him twice as many. His acceptance of honor from the queexand it is clear to me that as a rule politiclans should neither seek nor refuse such honors—his Niegara speach, his dismissal of an official who defied him on a point of duty involved in his office to the crown, these things should not be forgotten. In one word, those men who are in favor of British connection cannot afford to dismiss Sir

"Yes, but let me again say that the first is enough for all sensible men. One more may be added. There can be no doubt that Sir Oliver Mowat stands now for the fair treatment of minorities, and that is the only way to make possible a united Canadian people. Some Protestants seem to be scared now, and they will be ashamthe blood ed of themselves by-and by. We Protestants used to be fearless. His bowels soon became regular and the pains that afflicted him disappeared. Six boxes restored to his former vigor a man who had abandoned all hope of regaining sound health.
