A GRAND LIBERAL VICTORY.

The Mowat Government Sustained by a Fair Working Majority.

THE P. P. A. BADLY SNOWED UNDER.

Dr. McKay Sweeps West Victoria by 468.

The 26th of June has come and gone, and Ontario has declared at the ballot box that she cannot afford to dismiss Sir Oliver Mowat's government and there can be no doubt but that her declaration is a very wise one. West Victoria has done her part nobly by re-electing her old and tried representative, Dr. McKay, by a much larger majority than in 1890, when he first went to the polls, and this notwithstanding there were two other candidates in the field and the tories were working their usual tactics for all they were worth.

We congratulate the reformers of West Victoria on their achievement against such odds. The splendid vote polled in Lindsay is an evidence that the liberals were at work, and the returns from Eldon, Mariposa, Ops and Dalton shew that our country friends did their duty manfully.

The interest taken in the election by the townspeople was never greater than on Tuesday, as is evidenced by the vote polled, which was larger than at any previous provincial election.

The work of the campaign was in most cases faithfully done, and bore its fruit in the handsome majority given Dr. McKay. A great deal of the credit for the successful issue of the vote in the town due to the young men who took such an active part in the contest under the directions of the old campaigners.

The reform committee rooms were crowded at the close of the polls by anxious electors who wished to have first returns, and when the figures for the town were all in, and the majority was found to be 3, the enthusiasm commenced to rise, as it had been freely conceded that Bryans would have a considerable majority. Later on, when it was found that Dr. McKay had a majority of forty-two in Ops—Bryans' stronghold—a liberal victory was considered certain. When the greater part of the returns had arrived giving Dr. McKay a majority of of over 400, the excitement was intense, and cheer after cheer was given for the tremendous victory.

The returns from the outside constituancies were supplied from the G. N. W. telegraph Co., and were read from the elevated platform in the committee rooms until the crowd became so dense as to make the heat unbearable, when Mr. Geo. McHugh, the president, announced that an adjournment would be made to the town hall, where the balance of the returns would be given out and speeches delivered.

The Citizens' band led the crowd to the hall, which in a few minutes was packed. Enthusiastic speeches were made by Messrs. L. Minthorne, Elias Bowes, Rich Dark, Dr. Thompson, Dr. Herriman, A. S. McDonald, Robt. Kennedy, J. R. O'Reilly and D. R. Anderson.

About 11.30 the people began to scatter from in front of the telegraph offices, the reformers certain of a glorious victory, and the conservatives hoping that the morrow would tell a brighter tale.

CELEBRATING THE VICTORY.

Parade and Mass Meeting.

Wednesday morning Dr. McKay, the member elect, reached town, and was kept busy for a couple of hours receiving the hearty congratulations of his many friends. Business demanded his return home the same evening, but his friends, who had arranged for a procession and mass meeting, would not hear of such a thing, consequently he altered his plans.

During the afternoon a sharp shower transformed Kent-st. into a very muddy thoroughfare. It was hoped that the sun would come out brightly and restore the street to its former condition, but "Old So." persistently hid his face at intervals, and when seven o'clock, the hour for starting the procession, arrived, it was plain that pedestrians would be debarred from taking part in the pageant. A large number of vehicles were on hand, however, and these, fully freighted with enthusiastic supporters of the genial Dr., wheeled into line. At the head of the procession rode Mr. Wm. Walsh and two other sturdy reformers on curvetting and prancing steeds; next came the Citizens' band; then followed the tory pet stock—the "Kaif with a Koff," "Duchess 3rd" and the famous silver medal bull; followed by Harry May's handsome hack, containing Dr. McKay and friends, and after them a long line of carriages. On each side of the street marched hundreds of citizens, and the cheers, fanfare of trumpets, and other accompaniments of victory, were deafening. After marching through the principal streets the procession headed for the skating rink, where the speaking was announced to take place.

At 8.30, when Chairman McHugh rose to open the meeting, his eye wandered over an audience of ladies and gentlemen numbering 900. They had assembled, he said, to celebrate the glorious victory won by Dr. McKay and the Mowat government—a victory for pure and honest government. No doubt they had all seen the herd of cattle in the fore-front of the procession—they represented the issues upon which the people were asked to abandon Sir Oliver Mowat. The intelligence of the province had again proven itself, despite the misleading charges and sectarian appeals of the opposition. (Cheers.) Mr. McHugh then called upon the member elect, to address the meeting.

Dr. McKAY, upon stepping to the front of the platform, was greeted very warmly, the applause lasting several minutes. When he finally got a chance to speak he said that the grand reception tendered him testified to the deep interest they had taken in the campaign of the previous day. The ship of state had passed safely through waters made dangerous by the rocks and reefs of intolerance, sectarianism and slanderous reports; and under the grand old pilot, Sir Oliver Mowat, it would ride safely in calm waters for the next four years. In his own case, everything was in favor of the enemy, as there was a prejudice against professional men in favor of farmer, but he was gratified to be able to state that he had received more votes than the other two candidates combined. It was a triumph of liberal principles and pure government, and he thanked his supporters heartily for their noble work in his behalf, and especially the reformers and conservatives of Lindsay for their loyal support. (Applause.)

Mr. J. A. BARRON, the next speaker, congratulated the liberlas upon the grand results achieved the previous day, not only in West Victoria, but in the province—the outcome shewed plainly that "Ontario's grand old man" still occupies a warm spot in the hearts of the people. Despite this fact, the result in this riding was not altogether due to Mowat's grand record, but partly to the great personal popularity of Dr. McKay. It was proof of his standing well with the people of the riding when it was learned that wherever he was best known there he had received big majorities. While the patrons had opposed Mowat at the outset they had latterly returned to their allegiance, and the scheme engineered by the conservatives had resulted disastrously for them. It reminded him of a story told of Abe Lincoln. One day Abe, while crossing a field, was chased by a bull, and took refuge behind a hay-stack. The bull followed him and began chasing him about the stack, and finally Abe found he was gaining on the bull, and at last managed to catch hold of his tail when his bullship, tired of the fun, started across the field. Abe, still clinging to the tail, sending in the kicks swift and sure, and ejaculating, "Darn you, you began this game, how do you like it?" (Laughter.) So the reform patrons could say to the conservative patron,—"You began this game—how do you like it?" (Cheers.) To-day Sir Oliver Mowat ehjoys a higher place in the esteem of the people than ever before, because he deals fairly by all, of whatever religion. He felt deeply grateful to the people of Lindsay for doing so well for Dr. McKay, and he entrusted the victory was significant of the greater fight to be fought a few months hence, when the people of Canada would have to battle for cheaper living and a purer and more economical government. (Applause.)

Dr. LYNCH was next called upon, and created a very favorable impression upon the audience, the majority of whom were not aware of his ability as a speaker or of the yeoman service he had rendered during the campaign. He congratulated heartily the people of Lindsay and Dr. McKay for the grand victory won for Mr. Mowat. The campaign had been a somewhat remarkable one because of a new factor in the field—a factor he would not attempt to discuss there—but the people of the province had pronounced emphatically that they would have none of it. They had worked out the many minor issues in a calm and enlightened manner, worthy of themselves and the reputation the province enjoyed as the fairest portion of our great Dominion. They had shown themselves possessed of a broad national spirit in frowning upon attempts to destroy confidence between sects. Why should we not make a great and united people? He trusted the day would never come when Canadians would adopt principles calculated to seriously retard advancement in that ideal direction. A people actuated by broad and enlightened principles were certain to become great. The victory of Hon. Oliver Mowat proved that in Ontario, at least, those principles were very active, and the outlook was bright and cheering. (Loud applause.)

Mr. GEO. GRAHAM, one of the sturdy reformers of Mariposa, was next called upon, and in the opinion of many delivered the address of the evening. He was pleased to be present so as to be able to say a few good words for Dr. McKay. He would ask both political parties to look backward as well as forward—there was a lesson each might learn by doing so—"Peace on earth and good will to men." After the heat of a sectarian contest, in which every evil tendency had been rife such a lesson was very timely. In a Christian community, where all read the bible and prayed "Thy will be done," no effort should be made to arouse sectarian feelings. He would ask conservatives if the answer to these cries had been so satisfying that they would wish to continue them? He had come from the west of Ireland—the home of the Connaught Rangers—where there were 500 Catholics to one Protestant, and could say he saw no justification for introducing sectarianism. He didn't fear that the farming interests would be neglected by the Mowat government. He believed in having men of intelligence and capability to represent them and do their thinking for them. He would not say Mr. Campbell was not a worthy man, but he did not believe in opposing a candidate because he had burned the midnight oil while studying. If there were any patrons present he would say that he did not see any reason why they should oppose Mr. Mowat because of the slight difference between the two platforms; he rejoiced in the fact that there was no material variance between the two, and from the bottom of his heart he was glad that the Mowat government had been sustained by the people of the province.

Mr. R. J. MCLAUGHLIN made a brief but happy address. He was pleased to see that while other lands were sometimes only grateful to their great men after death, the people of Ontario were not built that way. Sectarian cries had been introduced by their opponents, and he was delighted to find that whether Celt or Saxon, whether all members of one great religious body or not, the people of Ontario had united in stamping their disapproval upon such nefarious tactics. Some of the conservatives of Lindsay, as elsewhere, had cast their votes for the pure administration of Sir Oliver Mowat. He would urge the reformers to work in the future as they had done in the past and great results would follow. (Cheers.)

Mr. D. R. ANDERSON, in response to calls from the audience, was the next to step forward. After the smoke of battle had cleared away they were able to number the slain. He did not intend to say an unkind word about his opponents—he was glad to say that throughout the contest the reform speakers had been kindly treated. He was especially gratified to see so many ladies present—he hoped the day would soon arrive when they would have the right to go to the polls and deposit a ballot for pure government also. In conclusion he alluded briefly to Mr. Mowat's grand record, and said that in years to come his name would be one of the brightest on history's page.

Mr. THOS. STEWART, upon coming forward, was warmly greeted. He said that Bryans had fired his last shot on Sunday evening—the reformers had fired their last one on Tuesday, and had hit the bull's-eye fairly. If Dr. Wild was still searching for the lost tribes he might now be able to find some of them, led by the bad shepherd, wandering in the bye-ways of Ontario. It had been a great victory for enlightened conditions. There was one factor in the contest just over to which he felt obliged to refer—that was the P.P.A. It was one of the most nefarious organizations ever introduced into Canada or any other country. (Cheers.) Its object was to set neighbor against neighbor, and destroy peace and unity—in the language of Meredith it was "an enemy to their country and their God." He had not a word to say against the patrons—their platform was open to the public gaze, and with but two exceptions their planks were the same as the liberals uphold and strive for. The sectarian cries had been stirred up as in past contests, solely with the object of defeating Mr. Mowat—when the Dominion elections were announced they would vanish from sight. Mowat's victory was a triumph of principle, and he hoped the people would ever be governed by that watchword.

Messrs. Robt. Kennedy, L. Minthorne and Dr. Herriman each delivered short and pithy addresses. Mr. Minthorne said that the victory of the previous day marked another milestone in a young nation's rapid progress. The opposition had raised every kind of trivial charge against the government, but without avail. They could point to no boodling, no corrupt contractors languishing in gaol and liberated through ill-health. He believed that if a reform government was in power in Ottawa to-day the country would be 25 years in advance of its present condition. (Cheers.)

Rousing cheers were then given for Dr. McKay and her majesty, after which the meeting broke up.

East Victoria.

No definite returns have yet been received from East Victoria, but enough is known to prevent us from congratulating Mr Tourison. The contest was between him, as patron, and Mr. Carnegie, conservative. The election proved conclusively the tremendous secession of tory patrons, though in some places they remained steadfast to their candidate. The reformers naturally preferred his election, rather than that of an avowed opponent of the government, and voted, though they did not work for him as they might have done had he been the nominee of the party. He made a gallant fight, indeed, and is to be congratulated. The result, however, establishes too clearly that with four out of five tory patrons, the party will never be hit by them, if they can help it.

Non-official returns give Carnegie a majority of 333 in East Victoria.

HOW THE HOUSE STANDS.

The returns below are correct as far as can be learned, but the figures cannot be looked upon as reliable. In our next week's issue we will be able to give verified returns.

Oakwood's Great Meeting.

One of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings,—one that will be remembered in the history of the old banner township of Mariposa,—,was that which, on Thursday of last week, greeted that able expounder of reform principles, one of Canada's most gifted sons, the Hon. S. H. Blake. Although the heat was excessive, few minutes had elapsed after the opening of the spacious hall until standing room could not be obtained, and when Mr. Blake appeared before the assembly the rousing cheer which ascended showed, beyond all question, that the people of Mariposa were not going to split up into factions, but were going to remain true to their colors and true to the memory of their fathers, who had fought and won so many brilliant victories for the reform party in the days gone by. He explained clearly and concisely that no serious charges were made against the government, that the tories could only provide what he termed "chicken feed arguments" for the electors of Ontario, upon which it was not at all wholesome to feed. In referring to the P. P. A., he said it was noticeable throughout the country that many, who, although at first led astray by a cry, upon considering the fact that in carrying out the principles of that society they were not only acting in a most uncharitable manner towards their fellow-men, but that they were endeavoring to cut off and render useless one-sixth of this whole province, were now ready to denounce the society which they at first upheld. Mr. Blake then dealt in his able manner with all the questions under discussion in the campaign, drawing particular attention to the fact that in each and every case where the government at Ottawa has tried to curtail the provincial rights of Ontario, that invariably Mr. Meredith and his followers were found to stand side by side with the conservatives of Ottawa and fight against the interests of this province; as he expressed it, "Foes from without and foes from within." Mr. Blake closed his speech with an eloquent appeal, in which he expressed himself in a truly British-Canadian spirit,
