By A. Conan Doyle,

(Centinued from last week.) Table close at her elbow. The doctor gazed from one to the other of them through the thin gray haze of smoke, but his eyes rested finally in a settled stare of astonishment upon his elder and more serious daughter.

"Clara!" he gasped. "I could not have believed it!"

"Clara!" he gasped. "I could not have be-lieved it!" "What is it, papa?"

"You are smoking!" "Trying to, papa. I find it a little difficult, for I have not been used to it."

"But why, in the name of goodness"-"Mrs. Westmacott recommends it." "Oh, a lady of mature years may do many things which a young girl must

"This is a beautiful book, papa. 'The Lights, Beacons, Buoys, Channels and Landmarks of Great Britain.' Here is another, 'The Master Mariner's Handbook.' You can't imagine how interest-"You are joking, Clara. You must "Not at all, pa. You can't think what a lot I have learned already. I'm to carry a green light to starboard and a red to port, with a white light at the masthead, and flare up every 15 minutes." "Oh, won't it look pretty at night!" cried her sister.

"And I know the fog signals. One blast means that a ship steers to starboard, two to port, three astern, four that it is unmanageable. But this man asks such dreadful questions at the end of each chapter. Listen to this: 'You see a red light. The ship is on the port tack and the wind at north. What course is that ship steering to a point?"

The doctor rose with a gesture of despair. "I can't imagine what has come over you both," said he.

"My dear papa, we are trying hard to live up to Mrs. Westmacott's standard." "Well, I must say that I do not admire the result. Your chemistry, Ida, may perhaps do no harm, but your scheme, Clara, is out of the question. How a girl of your sense could ever entertain such a notion is more than I can imagine. But I must absolutely forbid you to go further with it."

"But, pa," asked Ida, with an air of innocent inquiry in her big blue eyes, "what are we to do when your commands and Mrs. Westmacott's advice are opposed? You told us to obey her. She says that when women try to throw off their shackles their fathers, brothers and husbands are the very first to try to rivet them on again, and that in such a matter no man has any authority."

"Does Mrs. Westmacott teach you that I am not the head of my own house?" The doctor flushed, and his grizzled hair bristled in his anger. "Certainly. She says that all heads of houses are relics of the dark ages." The doctor muttered something and stamped his foot upon the carpet. Then without a word he passed out into the garden, and his daughters could see him striding furiously up and down, cutting off the heads of the flowers with a

"No, no, no. Not rearly enough. You must not turn weak now, Clara. It is so fanny that I should be leading you. It is quite a new experience. But I know that I am right. If we go on as we are doing, we shall be able to say all our lives that we have saved him. And if we don't, oh, Clara, we shou a aver forgive selves."

CHAPTER X.

COMEN OF THE FUTURE. From that day the doctor's peace was gone. Never was a quiet and orderly household transformed so suddenly into a beer garden or a happy man turned into such a completely miserable one. He had never realized before how entirely his daughters had shielded him from all the friction of life. Now that they had not only ceased to protect him, but had themselves become a source of trouble to him, he began to understand how great the blessing was which he had enjoyed and to sigh for the happy days before his girls had come under the influance of his neighbor. "You don't look happy," Mrs. Westmacott had remarked to him one morning. "You are pale and a little off color. You should come with me for a 10-mile spin upon the tandem." "I am troubled about my girls," They were walking up and down in the garden. From time to time there sounded from the house behind them the long sad wail of a French horn. "That is Ida," said he. "She has taken to practicing on that dreadful instrument in the intervals of her chemistry. And Clara is quite as bad. I declare it is getting quite unendurable." "Ab, doctor, doctor!" she cried, shaking her forefinger with a gleam of her white teeth. "You must live up to your principles-you must give your daughters the same liberty as you advocate for other women."

"Liberty, madam, certainly! But this approaches to license." "The same law for all, my friend." She tapped him reprovingly on the arm with her sunshade. "When you were 20, your father did not, I presume, object to your learning chemistry or playing a musical instrument. You would have thought it-tyranny if he had." "But there is such a sudden change in "Yes, I have noticed that they have been very enthusiastic lately in the cause of liberty. Of all my disciples I think that they promise to be the most devoted and consistent, which is the more natural since their father is one of our most trusted champions."

The doctor gave a twitch of impatience. "I seem to have lost all authority," he

"No, no, my dear friend. They are a little exuberant at having broken the "You cannot think what I have had to put up with, madam. It has been a dreadful experience. Last night, after I had extinguished the candle in my bedroom, I placed my foot upon something smooth and hard, which scuttled from under me. Imagine my horror! I lit the gas and came upon a well known tortoise which Clara has thought fit to introduce into the house. I call it a filthy custom to have such pets." Mrs. Westmacott dropped him a little courtesy. "Thank you, sir," said she. "That is a nice little side hit at my poor Eliza." "I give you my word that I had forgotten about her," cried the doctor, flushing. "One such pet may no doubt be endured, but two are more than I can bear. Ida has a monkey which lives on the curtain rod. It is a most dreadful creature. It will remain absolutely motionless until it sees that you have forgotten its presence, and then it will suddenly bound from picture to picture all round the walls and end by swinging down on the bellrope and jumping onto the top of your head. At breakfast it stole a poached egg and daubed it all over the door handle. Ida calls these outrages amusing tricks."

"Then I must beg to differ from you, madam." "Still, you are inconsistent."

"Excuse me, madam, I do not see the matter in the same light. And I should be obliged to you if you would use your influence with my daughter to dissuade "You wish to make me inconsistent

"Then you refuse?" "I am afraid that I cannot interfere." The doctor was very angry. "Very well, madam," said he. "In that case l can only say that I have the honor to wish you a very good morning." He raised his broad straw hat and strode away up the gravel path while the widow looked after him with twinkling eyes. She was surprised herself to find that she liked the doctor better the more masculine and aggressive he became. It was unreasonable and against all principle, and yet so it was, and no argument could mend the matter.

Very hot and angry the doctor retired into his room and sat down to read his paper. Ida had retired, and the distant wails of her bugle showed that she was up stairs in her boudoir. Clara'sat opposite to him with her exasperating charts and her blue book. The doctor glanced at her, and his eyes remained fixed in astonishment upon the front of her skirt. "My dear Clara," he cried, "you have torn your skirt!" His daughter laughed and smoothed out her frock. To his horror he saw the red plush of the chair where the dress ought to have been.

"It is all torn," he cried. "What have "My dear papa," said she, "what do you in the township of Darlington, some ten miles north of Bowmanville, and whose post office is Enniskillen, came to the county from Cornwall, England, some 45 years ago, and up to the time of his sickness had always been a hard-working man. One day, however, while attending his work, he got wet, took a chill and a severe followed, which finally developed to asthma. During the succeeding nine years he was a terrible sufferer from that distressing disease and gradually grew so bad that he could not work, frequently spent sleepless nights, and had little or no appetite. Finally he could scarcely walk across the room without panting for breath, and would sit all day with his elbows resting on his knees—the only position which seemed to give him mond Castle is supposed to have struck ease, and at one time he never laid down the rocks. The Drummond Castle, Bound From Cape Town to London, Struck a Rock Could be Lowered - Only Three Survivors.

Brest, France, June 17 .- The British steamer Drummond Castle, Captain N. we published some time ago, was one of W. Pierce, from Cape Town, for Lonthe most remarkable that we have heard don, collided at midnight with an unof. To-day he is as well as ever he was known steamer and sank three minutes in his life, and is daily knocking about in later with 144 passengers and 103 offi-

Two men were picked up floating on some wreckage by fishermen off Ushant, near which point the steamer went down. It developed, however, that some of the passengers and crew escaped in the boats.

The Drummond Castle belonged to the famous Castle Line of steamships, running between South Africa and London. She was of about 2350 tons register and was last heard of at Las Palmas, Canary Islands, on June 12, Friday last.

Tugs have been sent out from this port to the scene of the disaster in the hope of picking up some survivors. The fate of the steamer with which the Drummond Castle collided is not known and hopes are expressed that she may be afloat and that some of the passengers and crew of the Castle are on board of her. The sole survivor at Ushant of the Drummond Castle is a man named

MacQuart. Six bodies have already been recovered there. One is that of an officer of the lost steamship and another is that of a girl 6 years old. Two additional survivors of the sunken steamship are at Isle De Molene. The cause of the disaster is unknown, but it is believed to have been due to the lights of the unknown steamer having been mis-read or not discerned by the officers of the watch on board the London, June 17 .- The United Press correspondent at Brest telegraphed at 2 o'clock this afternoon that no positive knowledge had been obtained up to that hour regarding the fate of missing passengers and crew of the sunken steamer except that, as before reported, one survivor was at Ushant and two others were at Isle De Molene, and that six bodies had been recovered. The correspondent also stated that a search is being made by steamers in the vicinity of the scene of the disaster in the hope of rescuing other survivors. Incoming vessels which have arrived at Plymouth report that upon entering the Channel on the night of the 16th inst. they encountered rainy weather and a rough sea with a strong wind blowing. Lloyds have received the following telegram from Ushant: "The Drumpeared. The ship's boat was launched." The following despatch was received this evening by the Castle Steamship Company from the British Consul at "The Drumomnd Castle struck the rocks west of Isle De Molene at mid-

Among the passengers on the Castle were some of the persons who were connected with the recent troubles in the Transvaal.

Mail advices from Brest state that the Drummond Castle was making the passage for Plymouth to the east of Ushant Island when the accident qocurred. east of the Ushant Island. A telegram was received to-might at the Admiralty Office from the commander of the British warship Sybille, which is cruising in the Bay of Biscay, confirming the reports previously received regarding the suddenness of the foundering of the Drummond Castle. The telegram states that the Sybille lowered her boats and did all that ft was possible to do to sescue those on board the steamer, but so sudden was the genapse of the vessel that the efforts of the oruiser's men were in

Many friends of persons who were known to have been on board the lost steamer remained at the offices of the Steamship Company until late to-night hoping to learn that there were other survivors of the disaster, and that among them would be found their friends. The meagre telegrams received, . however, only tended to confirm the worst reports.

Tam O'Shanter's ride through the midnight wind with the horrible hobgoblins pursuing him was only a bad dream, or nightmare, which anybody is liable to experience as the result of overeating or an attack of biliousness or indigestion. To avoid such disagreeable experiences one or two of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken after a too hearty meal and the action of the stomach will thereby be, quickened and the meal promptly digested.

Then too if Nature be assisted a little now and then in removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels you will thereby avoid a multitude of distressing derangements and diseases, and will have less frequent need for your doctors' services. Of all known agents for this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best.

Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity with suf-ferers from habitual constipation, piles and their attendant discomfort and manifold derangements. The Pellets cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Do You that fully ninety per cent. of the retail wholesale men of this Dominion of ours fail in business sooner or later?

Why?

There may be many reasons given in explanation. The storekeeper may have been without the requisite business experience; he may have been "swamped" by a live man who was awake to the benefits of advertising; he may have been trying to work up a big trade on unsufficient capital; or he may have killed himself by selling cheap, inferior goods for the sake of the extra profits to be gained.

The Prime Merits Of Our Groceries

were talked of when we began business many years ago, and we've hewed to the lines every day since. Thanks to the course we've followed we've been gaining custom yearly, and "the best groceries at the lowest price" will continue to be our motto till the last day of our business career.

recollect that TEAS, SUGARS, COFFEES and CANNED GOODS represent fully thirty per cent. of our daily sales, it may lead you to believe that we are looking after our own interests closely by giving the best possible values in those lines.

what it would mean to us if we tried to palm off inferior goods in these lines alone? We know what would happen. So do you. Every line in our store is guaranteed to be the best of its kind at the price we ask for it.
