Chosen by the Republicans on the First Ballot.

WILD ENTHUSIASM AT ST. LOUIS

Mr. & A. Hobart Selected for the Second Place-The Platform of the Party is Emphatically Protective-The Monroe Dectrine Benaserted

-National Arbitration. st, Louis, June 18,-William hinley was nominated to-day on a platform of honest money and a protective tariff. His associate on the ticket is Carrett A. Hobart of New Jersey. The ticket was a foregone conclusion, and the platform has been anticipated for weeks back, Major Mckinley has held the Topuncan party in his grip ever since he was a Practical candidate, Marc A, Hanna, the Cleveland millionaire, who managed his campaign, did so very cleverhandend the result was that on the aguinal 82 1 McKinley had 657 wates, ten, 62 1-2 for Quay, 34 1-2 for Allison and I for Cameron. It was a great to umph for the principle of protection, which was the sole issue for which the adidate appealed to the people. The nondiration has been so, largely discounted that there was a lack of that popular enthusiasm which would otherwise have been made manifes, but the people did not neglect to show .heir the result not been well discounted.

approval, although in a much quiete. way than would have been shown had It was so with the Vice-Presidential nomination. The withdrawal of all the New York names left the nomination practically with McKinley's managers and Garrett A. Hobart of New Jersey was the prime candidate. As the roll call progressed, he was seen to be away in the lead, and the result of the first ballot gave him the normination on practically the same vote that carried McKinley.

The Republican Platform.

The Republican platform was adopted to-day. In terms it goes on: The Republicans of the United States, assembled by their representa-National Convention, appealhistorical matchless achievements of 30 years of Republican rule, earnestly and confithemselves to the of their countrymen in the following declaration of facts and prin-

American people have Wi that he deternment it has been trains management it has ruthlessly indispensable revenue, enordinary current expenses with rowed money, piled up the public debt by $262,000,000 in time of peace, forced an adverse balance of trade, kept & perpetual menace hanging ever the redemption fund, pawned American credit to alien syndicates and reversed all the measures and results of suocessful Republican rule. In the broad effect of its policy it has precipitated panic, blighted industry and trade with prolonged depression, closed factories, reduced working wages, halted enterprise and crippled American production, while stimulating foreign production for the American market. "We renew and emphasize our allegiance to the policy of protection as the bulwark of American industrial there elicited the information that public credit and destructive to business enterprise. We demand such an equitable tariff on foreign imports which come into competition with particular schedules. The question of rates is a practical question, to be governed by the conditions of the time and of production. "The ruling and uncompromising principle is the protection and develop- Two Ladies Butchered by Midment of American labor and industry. The country demands a right settlement and then it wants rest.

"We believe the repeal of the reclprocity arrangements negotiated by the last Republican Administration was a national calamity and we demand their renewal and extension of such terms as will equalize our trade with other nations, relieve the restrictions which now obstruct the sale of American products in the ports of other countries, and secure enlarged markets for the products of our farms, products and factories.

"Protection and reciprocity are twin measures of American policy and go hand in hand. Democratic rule has ruthlessly struck down both and both must be re-established. Protection for what we produce; free admission for the necessaries of life which we do not produce; reciprocal agreements of mutual interest which gain open markets for us in return for our open market to others. Protection builds up domestic industry and trade, and secures our own market for ourselves: reciprocity builds up foreign trade and finds an outlet for our surplus.

"We condemn the present administration for not keeping faith with the sugar producers of the country. The Republican party favors such protection as will lead to the production on American soil of all the sugar which the American people use, and for what they pay other countries more than $100,000,000 annually. "To all our products, to those of the mine and the field, as well as those of the shop and factory, to hemp, to wool. the product of the great industry of sheep husbandry, as well as to the finished woolens of the mill, we promise the most ample protection. "We favor restoring the early American policy of discriminating duties for the upbuilding of our merchant marine and the protection of our shipping in the foreign carrying trade, so that American ships, the product of American labor, employed in American shipyards, sailing under the Stars and Stripes, and manned, officered and owned by Americans, may regain the carrying of our foreign commerce. "The Republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold. We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver, except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote; and such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved. All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard a handkerchief, which, although lately of the most enlightened nations of the washed, bore the traces of blood stains "Our foreign policy should be at all times firm, vigorous and dignified, and all our interests in the western hemisphere carefully watched and guarded. The Hawalian Islands should be controlled by the United States, and no fereign power should be permitted to interfere with them; the Nicaragua Canal should be built, owned and oper ated by the United States; and by the purchase of the Danish Islands we should secure a proper and much-need ed naval station in the West Indies. "We reassert the Monroe destrine in its full extent, and we reaffirm the doctrine effect by responding to the appeals of any American state friendly intermention in case of Eupean encroachment. We have not interfered and shall not interfere, with the existing possessions of any ropean power in this hemisphere, but those possessions must not, on any to sympathize with the sorrowing relapretext, be extended. We hopefully lives. look forward to the eventual withdrawal of the European powers from this hemisphere, to the ultimate union of all of the English-speaking part of the continent, by the free consent of its inhabitants. of our American citizenship and of the wages of our workingmen against the fatal competition of lowered labor, we demand that the immigration laws be thoroughly enforced and so extended as to exclude from entrance to the United States those who can neither night Assassins.

New Orleans, June 21.-A special to The Daily States from Bayou Goula reports that a horrible double murder was committed at that village Friday night. Mrs. Tellshore Landry, a highly respected old lady, and her adopted daughter, Miss Madeline Hubert, were the victims. They lived in a small house about a mile from the There were no male occupants of the house. Screams were heard at their home about midnight. People who went to see what was the matter, found the old lady and her daughter mortally wounded. Both had been frightfully cut up, and the bodies were covered with blood. Mrs. Landry's throat had been cut from ear to ear, evidently with a razor, and she had also been stabbed in the breast. The young lady had been cut with a hatchet across the bridge of the nose, the wound etxending from ear to ear and frightfully distiguring her. She was still alive and managed to tell what had occurred. She has since, however, become unconscious, and cannot recover. Miss Hubert said two negroes entered Mrs. Landry's house last night and proceeded to steal everything in sight. Mrs. Landry was awakened by the noise and screamed. ing their lunch. And Were Having a Happy Ramble in the Park When the Fatal Bolt Struck Them-The Young Woman

Will Probably Re-

New York, June 22.-Charles Valenti of No. 66 Wooster-street, a foreman in the Street Cleaning Department, became engaged 18 months ago to Miss Louisa Costella, of No. 312 East Twentieth-street, a pretty girl in the employ of a cigar company at Twentyninth-street and Third-avenue. Shortly afterwards they had a lovers' quarrel, and although they recognized each other when they met in the street or at church, they did not become reconciled until yesterday morning, when their friends, after mass was over at St. Mary Magdalen's Roman Catholic Church, in East Seventeenth-street prevailed upon them to forgive one another and renew the engagement

The young couple were in the happiest mood at the glad ending of their differences, and Valenti proposed in honor of the event that they spend the day together and take an excursion of some sort. Miss Costella was delighted, and hurried home to get ready for the outing. Within an hour she and her lover were on their way uptown, carrying with them a basket contain-

One of landt Park Station, Then they locked arms and sauntered to the through which they roamed for several hours, until at length they came to Dash's orchard, on Tibbett's Brooklane, near Van Cortlandt-avenue. It was now long past noon, and as their love-making had not interfered with their appetites, Valenti's suggestion that they eat their lunch there proved agreeable to his sweetheart. The spot was an ideal one for an outdoor meal. Just inside the stone wall which runs along the lane stands an immense wide-spreading cheery tree, Its shade was very welcome to the two lovers, so they spread their lunch on the grass beneath it and had a jolly light-hearted time of it. The gathering storm at last alarmed them, and they started down the lane in the hope, apparently, of reaching the depot or some hospitable farm-house before the rain descended. Their start, however, was made too late, and they had gone only a short distance when the rain deluge broke upon them, Then they turned back to the cherry tree. It offered the best shelter of anything in sight from the descending torrent. As they ran towards the tree Valents gallantly removed his coat and threw it over his sweetheart's head to protect her from the rain, The stone wall is three feet high and is four feet from the roadway. The wall is made up of rough stones, un-cemented. As they reached the wall, Valenti, a strapping athletic fellow, lifted the girl in his arms, with the utmost ease, and placed her upon the wall top. Then he himself climbed up and jumped to the other side. Then he caught Miss Costello in his arms, so as to help her down, she leaned upon his shoulder, with arms clasped around his neck, and he kissed her, At that same moment came a fearful flash of lightning. The bolt struck Valenti on the right shoulder, killing him instantly. It also struck Miss Costello on the left shoulder, paralysing her and rendering her unconscious. As they both fell to the ground, the angles to Lot, Valenti was at right feet of the living and of the uch touching each other. The deadly lightning bolt happened at about 4.30 p.m. It was 5.15 p.m. before Valenti's death became known. Patrolman Henry Bolte of the Kingsbridge Police Station, lives only a little distance from the scene of the accident. He was off duty, and moving about the grounds of his house, when he heard the low moanin gof a woman. For a few moments he was unable to locate it, but at length reached the spot where the bodies lay. As he neared her he heard Miss Costello feebly cry for help and her entreaties to her lover to speak to her. How long she had been beside his dead bady before she recovered consciousness she could not say. Even when found by Patrolman Bolte she was still in a dazed condition.

Bolte made a hasty examination of Valenti's body and convinced himself the man was dead. Then he jumped the creek and rushed to his stable, where he quickly harnessed his horse to an open buggy and drove around to where Valenti's body lay. He lifted it into the buggy and laid it in the bottom of the vehicle, so that the head hung over the side and the feet over the other. Next he put his arm around the waist of Miss Costello, who was too dazed and injured to help her self, and lifted her on the seat of the buggy. Not releasing his hold upon her for fear that she would fall from the seat, he got into the buggy, and, giving reins to the speedy little horse, dashed like mad toward the station house, not knowing but that the woman, as well as the man, would be dead before he reached his destination, When the station house was reached. Fordham Hospital was rung up, and soon afterwards the ambulance, charge of Rr. Reilly, drove up. confirmed the opinion of the police that that Valenti's death had been instantaneous. Miss Costello had again lost consciousness in the drive from the woods to the station house, recovered herself once more after her arrival at the hospital. She continued to cry for her dead lover. Examination showed that there was a mark on her left shoulder where the Hehining HAS BEEN the feet of the wall: IAN BAHSE
