LINDSAY, FRIDAY, JUNE 2nd, 189

SOUTH ONTARIO VOIDED.

The many friends in this town and district of Hon. John Dryden, minister of agriculture for Ontario, will regret to learn that he has been unseated as a result of the protest entered against his election by Mr. Caider, his opponent. Mr. Dryden was returned by a substantial majority at the last election, the cry of nepotism launched against him having lost much of the effect perceptible in the first contest. Now the battle remains to be fought, over again as a result of the excessive zeal displayed by agents, who had decided, unknown to him, to fight the tories with their own weapons; the evidence in court established the fact that Mr. Calder's friends were scattering money, and unfortunately the temptation to outbid them was not resisted by Mr. Dryden's over-zealous friends.

"Honest John's" denial of any knowledge of these acts will be believed by every fair-minded man-the partisan will "wink the other eye" and assert that the agents were acting under Mr. Dryden's express instructions.

SHOULD HAVE FIRE PROTECTION

Fire protection for the Rathbun Co. mill and yards at the lower wharf has been a much debated question in the town councils of the past three or four years, and the refusal to grant the request has compelled the company to incur large expense in the way of providing their own safeguards. This season the company has doubled the capacity of their mill by investing a large sum in new machinery, and the proprietors feel that what they have been able to provide offers but very poor protection, considering the large interests at stake, in case of a fire obtaining a couple of minutes' start.

The councillors decline to extend the | calling on friends. watermains the short distance necessary on the score of economy, stating that the hydrant rental would have to be paid in perpetuity, while the firm will likely leave Lindsay when their northern limits have become thinned out. We do not think there is any danger of the firm quitting Lindsay for many years to come, as there is an almost unlimited supply in the north country of the sort of timber the firm handle. The Lindsay mills do not cut much white pine these days, and improved machinery and better methods enable them to make more money out of rough logs than was made years ago when only the choicest pine was cut. The Rathbun business is centred here, and is likely to remain one of our leading industries unless the coancil's neglect causes that to happen which would inevitably prove a sore blow to the town.

At present the firm employ in and about their mill some 65 hands, and when night work begins the number will be increased to over 100. Many of these men are fathers of families, season will mean the maintenance of it with her father, Dr. Thompson. fully 500 persons in comfort, and the laying by of provisions for the winter. An over-heated journal, a match thrown down by some careless visitor, a spark from a passing steamer, might result any day in the destruction of the mill and the large stocks piled in the yards. Would the company feel like rebuilding here when their loss had been sustained because of the parsimony and lack of appreciation of our council? Not likely. The mill would be established elsewhere, and even if the services of a majority of the expert employees were retained, they and their families would cease to be residents of Lindsay, and our merchants would lose moving to St. Ignace, is able to be 800 passengers.

the thousands paid out in wages. Is the council wise in risking all this to save a paltry sum which they would not think twice of squandering on an illustrated write-up or on a useless deputation to Toronto or Ottawa? We in the West. Mr. Wetherilt says the dates and terms to do not think they show true wisdom, timber cut is mostly of very large diand we believe the citizens

PUBLIC CHARITIES

Of the various reports issued under the auspices of the Ontario government, none contains more valuable information than the annual report of the inspector of public charities The 29th annual report just issued shows that the number of Houses of Refuge in the province is 85, situated | in cities and towns, and application is now made to have a House of Refuge in the town of Cornwall placed upon the list of charities entitled to receive aid. The government grant to these homes is 7 cents per day for each inmate. There are 31 orphanages in the province, and the aggregate number of children provided for is 4,480. taught useful trades, sent to school,

The county Homes in operation are all west of Toronto with one exception, which is the Home provided by the counties of Leeds and Grenville. The minimum amount of land required with each county Home is 45 acres; and the location and plans of buildings must be approved of by the government inspector, in order to enable the county to receive the grant of $4,000.

Every county ought to be provided with a Home. It is a crying shame piano speak. that our gaols are full of poor old men and women, placed there under the vagrancy act, on account of their poverty many of whom have been in well-to-do circumstances. The report shows that the public money is being wisely and economically spent and is another evidence of the care the Ontario government take in providing for the helpless and neglected classes of society.

MUSICALE AT ST. JOSLPH'S COMECIAL

ENTERAINMENT IN HONOR OF EMPIRE DAY.

The Sentor Pupils Confer Pleasure on a Number of Invited Guests,

Fortune's favored few who gathered at St. Joseph's last Tuesday evening are loud in their praise of the markedly successful concert of sacred music to which they were bidden by the young ladies who so cleverly entertained them. Upon entering the spacious hal! of the Convent, the patriotic flags arranged so artistically immediately attracted attention, evoking the expression, "This is Empire Day-In the eve of the festals of our most Oats, these institutions the inmates are gracious Queen." Presently the attention of all was recalled from the comtemplation of beauty in still life to be bestowed with flattering intentness on the graceful figures of the young ladies of the choral class who had come to open the programme. Costumed in spotless white, they seemed a fitting throng to sing the song of heaven. Their voices sweet and well modulated, compelled
