ARCH. CAMPBELL'S.

Now is the time to buy in a supply, as the Price will surely advance.

This is going to be a great fruit year, consequently housewives will do more preserving than usual. We do not know that the government had the interests of the ladies in view when they removed the duty at this particular time, but it is likely—in any case they will reap the benefit of the change in the tariff.

Wth Sugar at the price it is and an abundance of fruit of various kinds, every household in the country should put away some form of preserve for the winter season. The liking for jam is not confined alone to the small boy, as everybody well knows.

GEM JARS.

To properly preserve fruit, gem jars are a necessity. What can be more annoying to the careful housewife than to find her preserves "coated over" and the quality injured simply because the man of the house refused to purchase a supply of gem jars—all her trouble for nothing, while her neighbor's fruit, properly potted, remained sweet as ever.

We have a "corner" in gem jars-pints, quarts and half gallons. A dozen of them cost little money and will prove a great comfort-
