The Canadian Lost. LINDSAY, FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1898.

MR MULOCK'S VICTORY.

Recent cable despatches indicate that the Imperial authorities have accepted the view of the Canadian liberal government that postal communication within the empire ought to be made cheaper than it has been heretofore. In November last, it will be remembered, Mr. Mulock issued a regulation making the rate from Canada to England three cents per ounce instead of five cents per half ounce. The proposition was received with marked favor in Canada, but Hon. Forty-five large transports will needed to deport the Spanish prisoners. It will be as lugubrious as the other Spanish Armada's home-coming in Queen Elizabeth's time.

That story about British vessels from Vancouver, sent to run down Spanish privateers turns out, like a large proportion of the alleged war news, to be a hoax. And it was a very silly hoax. Some enthusiastic prohibition sheets are preaching homilies on the lesson in temperance to be learned from the destruction of the Spanish fleet, taking for their text the yellow journal yarn about Cervera's sailors being made drunk as they sailed out of Santisgo, and pointing the moral that arunken sailors can't fight. A better moral would be: Don't allow your fleet to be bottled up and attacked by one vastly its superior. The yellow yarn about the doping of the Spaniards has been denied by both Spanish and U.S. off cers. Moreover, the U.S.

What with denounced treaties and reform in postal arrangements, Canada seems to be making her influence felt in British councils.

It is said that the Roman Catholic clergy in Quebec are strongly opposed to the principle of prohibitory legisation. The districts in which voluntary abstinence from intoxicants most prevails are most strongly against such a measure.

With a two-cent rate to England, this country is not going to stand a three-cent. rate at home much longer. Mr. Mulock promised a two-cent rate for Canada and a one-cent rate for drop letters, and we see to-day he knows how to keep his promises.

Canadians will not forget that while Mr. Mulock is coming back from Great Britain with a big prize in his pocket, Mr. Fisher and Prof. Robertson are doing an even more important work in making the merchants of the great cities cognizant of the merits of Canadian farm produce.

In one of its reckless screeds against the Laurier government the London Free Press says: "An increase of the public expenditure is not bad as a starter." Why didn't the devoted disciple of Ananias make it twelve hundred millions? Don't let a trifle stick

Mr. Whitney's Claim that Sir John Mac. donald's Action in 1897 Should not Form a Precedent - The Two Cent Postal Rate - The Yukon Adminis. tration-The Crow's Nest Irouble-Interesting Notes.

Ittawa, July 16th, 1898

The sudden call from Ontario's Premier for the newly elected legislature to assemble within the next three weeks has proved the all-absorbing topic of interest in Eastern Canadian politics this week, and the unexpected summons created as much commotion as the proverbial bolt from the blue. Whilst several matters of provincial importance may be dealt with by the house, there is no doubt that the supreme interest of the session will centre around the question of the right of election constables to exercise their franchise. For thirty years they have voted like any other citizen and with as little question of qualification as the deputy-returning officers and poll clerks, and other public officials. but at the election last March the vote in many places was so very close twelve million doilars in two years in that the change of a few votes in eight or ten constituencies would have turn### ed out the government.

A Brilliant Idea. Then the brilliant idea struck the conservative managers to object to the vote of the election constables who are Laturally supposed to be government supporters. No one had ever before the Press Association chronicles the connection with the election, and no one believes now that it was ever the intention of the legislature to disqualify them, or that by any common sense interpretation of the law they could be disqualified, or that any public benefit could be secured or public interest advanced, by depriving them of their rights of citizenship. The idea of disqualifying them was a sharp one and possibly permissible under the exigencies of party warfare; more than that, however, cannot be said in its

That Mr. Hardy's strong and unexpected counter-move will effectually check-mate this scheme is very evident from the hysterical hubbub that was created in the conservative camp by the calling of the legislature. Mr. Whitney's reply to the Premier's memorandum strikes one as peculiarly tacking in effective argument, Three quarters of the document is simply a statement of the case from the opposition leader's stand-point and contains neithof proof nor argument, and the only actual reply to the case for the governbegins almost in the last paragraph but breaks off at the end of the first line with a remark that "time and space will not permit a full explanation.

When the fate of governments an i cedent governing the present case will satisfy no one, and it is a public misfrtune that lack of time and space preyents him explaining more fully the only point upon which his side of the case can possibly succeed. While admitting that special legislature should be woided wherever possible, the peculiar conditions of the present case justify Ontario's Premier in calling the legislature together, and if in doing so he follows the precedent unanimously set at Ottawa in 1887 that should be a circumstance that would commend his
