NORTH VICTORIA'S 'SCRAPPY REPRESENTATIVE.

In last week's issue we had occasion to refer to the discreditable tactics adopted by Col. Sam. Hughes, member for North Victoria, in his mad desire to punish Mr. R. J. McLaughlin for having dared to oppose him at the last general election. We quoted from the Globe report to show Sam's cheeky attempt to browbeat and bully the members of the Public Accounts com mittee on Saturday last. Since the article appeared some of our conservative friends have endeavored to belittle the event by stating that in all probability the Globe report of the incident was highly colored. For the sake of the county's reputation we could wish that the facts had been overstated, but alas, "Tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis, 'tis true." We do not ask our readers to believe the Globe report, but herewith submit the Montreal Star's (extreme tory) account of the fracas:

Ottawa, July 31 .- At the Public Accounts committee on Saturday morning Mr. Sam. Hughes was sworn to give evidence on the matter of his charges against Mr. McLaughlin, solicitor, of Lindsay. He complained strongly of the character of the reports of the last meeting sent out and maintained that ne has established charges of a 20 p. c. rake off having been paid Mr. McLaughlin. In the Strickett case Mr. McLaughlin had, as he understood, received $24 from the department, as well as the commission on the $60 paid as damages.

Mr. Cowan repeatedly objected to the mode of Mr. Hughes giving evidence, terming the whole as the most extraordinary proceding he had ever witnessed. Mr. Hughes had never said a word against Mr. McLaughlin as a solicitor, but only objected to him as agent of the government in the riding. Mr. Hughes stated that Mr. Mc Laughlin's statement that he had never canvassed any one for the work of statement made to him in 1896. This raised quite a scene, Mr. Mc-Clure protesting against the evidence and stigmatizing the whole as a most monstrous proceeding. After a long wrangle, Mr. Hughes produced the cheques paid for the claims to show how they were cashed. Another scene ensued when Mr. M.

untrue," He substantiated that by

K. Cowan, having Hansard before him. asked Mr. Hughes if he remembered making a certain statement in the house of commons on June 7th. Mr. Hughes said he would answer when he had Hansard. Mr. Cowan said he would not have the Hansard, and Mr. Hughes, rising from his place, walked round the table and seizing the book tried to take it from Mr. Cowan. A tussle ensued, Mr. Fraser, chairman, called Mr. Hughes to order, and told him he must answer questions. Fin- grit and tory; that all the ballots vot- be seen that from six to seven thoually Mr. Cowan was accommodated with another Hansard and the cross examination went on, Mr. Hughes being shortly afterwards censured by the chairman for his mode of answering Another striking example of the blustering, overbearing, and at times positively insulting conduct for which Sam is becoming noted and heartily disliked in parliament, is furnished in the following racy sketch of Thursday's proceedings in the West Elgin case, now being investigated by a parliamentary committee. Our extract is taken from last evening's Toronto News, also a journal of pronounced tory leanings:

Maitland Whitely, druggist, Goderich, sworn, marked his ballot for McLean and gave it to Mr. Farr, who put in the ballot box. He was crossexamined by Mr. Britton very minutely as to what time he had his dinner the day he voted, and asked if he was a married man and kept a house. "No, I am single," was the reply of the witness.

Col. Hughes-How many children have you got? Mr. Britton (turning to Col. Hughes in great heat)-You have no right to talk to the witness. You are not a member of the committee. Col. Hughes asked Mr. Britton not to address him in such terms Mr. Britton to Chairman-Co! Hughes, with his usual impudence-

Col. Hughes rose, and Mr. Britton said: I want him turned out, and won't go on till he is turned out. Col. Hughes-My remark was not addressed to this creature.

Mr. Britton - Not only is he most impudent but he is a perfect scoun-Col. Hughes made two mighty strides and in an instant was fronting Dr.

Britton, and several members simultaneously jumped up and planted themselves before that gentleman. The sturdy, muscular Colonel reached out and nearly grabbed Mr. Britton, and the latter made frantic efforts to get at and eat up the Colonel. By this time enough members were standing before Mr. Britton to effectively prevent the Colonel approaching him. As Hughes got near striking distance he considerately refrained from striking, being a powerful and muscular

THEORIES IN THE WEST HURON CASE THAT NEGATIVE EACH OTHER.

(Hamilton Times.)

The desperate attempt made by the tory scandal-mongers to cast odium on Mr. Holmes in the West Huron case gives a clue to the motives animating them. None of the organs, as far as we have observed, has devoted any effort to explain away the plain statements of the deputy and the scrutineers present at the poll, and while these statements stand unrefuted no amount of suggestive evidence as to the condition of the ballots now can alter the facts. Mr. Cummings in his letter to the Ottawa Journal, pointedly

"Your statement is that 13 ballots cast at the poll for McLean were destroyed and 14 false ballots were counted instead for Holmes, the libearl candidate." If this was done it was done by me, and could not have been done by anybody else. The ballot box was under my control all day I held the key. I opened it in the morning and showed it empty to the scrutineers. I locked it in morning and un'o ked it in the evening. I took the ballots from the voters. If the ballots they gave me did not go into the box and if other ballots were put in the box in their stead, I and I only am to blame, and you need not have gone beating about the bush to speak of the connivance of liberal officials, as if there could be anybody but myself to blame. am willing and desire to be held responsible for whatever happened at the polling booth in Colborne No. 4

"I have sworn that every ballot that was handed to me was placed by me in the box and counted for the party for whom it was marked. Two scrutineers on the tory side were there all day watching the proceedings and they have also sworn to the same." The tory theory that a scheme was operated to secure the delivery of purchased votes, by getting one genuine ballot out and thus keeping one ballot ahead of the game, a marked ballot being given to each voter before he entered the polling booth not only presupposes that several officials and several workers were in the plot, and that they were exceedingly clever, but it assumes that the tory scrutineers and workers were fools, and the officials were perjurers. More than that, it effectually disposes of the other theory, that the McLean ballots were taken out of the box and destroyed, and "bogus ballots," with forged initials, marked for Holmes, subsittuted therefor. On this theory the ballots were all genuine; all came from that official pad. The elaborate theory founded on the falsehood that fourteen of the ballots in the box were of "different size," "would not fit the stubs," were of "a different shade," etc., falls to the ground pressing their claims "was absolutely if the allegation be true that voters brought out blank official ballots, on which to get pay for their votes, these ballots being subsequently taken in and given to the deputy by other voters. The tory organs and scandal makers are too ambitious, and like most evil plotters they overreach themselves. The allegation that the purchase scheme was worked is made as > of the ballots were bogus; each allegation tends to negative the other. As to the facts regarding the ballots, Mr. Cummings has sworn that the box was empty when the poll opened. ed and no others, were put in the box; that he opened the box and counted the ballots in the presence of the witnesses, who certified to the correctness of the count, and that he is, and wishes to be so held, responsible for all that happened Mr. Cummings is a man of honor and not one of the tory witnesses expressed a doubt of his probity. That was left for characterless tory editors to do, in pursuance of their policy of detraction. He thus takes the Journal to task for its references, his words being a effective reply to the assertions that he said the ballots would not fit the stubs. "Then you say that fourteen ballots were on different paper from the rest with different type. That is true, but these fourteen ballots on which you purpose to destroy my character have been shown to be exactly the same as the ballots on which McLean voters voted in other polling sub-divisions. If these 14 ballots for Holmes are to condemn me in my division, why should not the similar ballots for McLean condemn Mr. McLean's friends in the other divisions. I did not know myself until the fact was pointed out to me that there are two distinct kinds of official ballots printed from two separte dies placed side by side to save press work, and if I had known this I do not see that, it would have been any good reason for refusing to receive the ballots handed to me by the voters in question, which I assumed. and still assume, to have been the same that I gave them. "I am ready for the most searching enquiry into my conduct. I care not how many witnesses come against me they cannot prove that I juggled with their ballots. I could not have done so if I wished to do it, and I had no wish to do so if I had been able."

The evidence shows that in the test made with an unused pad it was found that the width of the ballots varied, and that the ballot from the top of the pad could not be fitted to the stub

EDITORIAL NOTES

Winnipeg Free Press: When athletic Mr. Hughes undertakes to introduce the Marquis of Queensbury rules into the procedure of a parinmentary committee, he should, in fairness, select an antagonist about a quarter of a century younger than Mr. Britton.

Sir Charles Tupper, speaking in the house of commons on July 28th, 1899 expressed himself as opposed to the Dominion Alliance resolution introduced by Mr. Flint in favor of a law delegating to the provinces sufficient power to enact effective prohibition legislation.

Toronto Globe: If Major Hughes ever gets to South Africa he will promptly invite old Com Paul to put on the gloves for a few friendly rounds... Sam is slow with the gloves, as one of our sturdy citizens demonstrated a few years ago. The chances are that unless he has improved vastly since his bout with a Lindsay blacksmith, old Oom Paul would make a limp Outlander of him in a holy minute.

Hamilton Times: Col. Sam. Hughes, though a warrior bold, is not an ugly fellow by nature, and his conduct in committee room at Ottawa may be charitably attributed to the stafe of the weather. It was very fortunate that some muscular grits were near at hand to interpose and prevent Col. Som. from shedding Britton's blook A cooling dip in the Scugog will restore him to his natural state.

A number of leading millionaires of the United States have been writing articles in the magazines of late relating how they amused their wealth. The articles are singularly alike in their abundance of sound maxims and good business advice for young men, but it is safe to say that the things that have been omitted by the writers of these accounts of the amassing of millions would make far more interesting reading.

"There is a Marchand other than the Major," says the London Daily Chronicle. "This is M. Marchand, the prime minister of Quebec, who has just gainvast local glory by his budget. Quebec has managed this year to pay all its debts and have a good surplus over. This feat of finance is all the more to the liberal premier's credit when it is stated that, on taking office two years ago, he was confronted by a deficit on the yearly current amount of over a quarter of a mill on dollars." The Chronicle's admiration would have been increased if it had known that the deficit which confronted Mr. Marchand was not over a quarter, but over three-quarters of a million.

The first dividend of 5c on the dollar is about to be paid to creditors of the estate of the late John Burnham, Peterboro, The claims amount to the very large sum of $187,000. We observe with profound regret that our bright cotem, the Bob. Independent, is in the list for $2.50. This is too bad. and we trust the saddening circumstance will not conspire to rob the editor's rich humor of its keen edge. The financial emparras ment resulting from the tying up of so large an amount must be great, but is not irreparable, as we feel confident that the editors of the province are only waiting for a sign to rush to the aid of their deceived and distressed con-

SCARCITY OF LABORERS.

x Thousand Men Needed in Manitoba positively as the allegation that the to Gather in the Harvest. ballot box was stuffed, and that many Hon. Thomas Greenway premier of Manitoba, has issued through the Provincial Department of Agriculture and Immigration the following letter with regard to the annual influx of farm laborers to this province duras was attested by the scrutineers, ing the harvesting season. It will sand men will be needed, and it is the intention of the Department to give work to any men at present in the province before the excursions from the east arrive. The letter reads as

It is well known that farmers in Manitoba can put in more crop than the same force of laborers can harvest, thresh and do their fall plough ing for next season's crop. For several years past farm laborers have been brought from the east to assist in the harvest field Last season over nine thousand hands were brought in and about the same number the previous year. It would be disastrous to the province if, when we have a good crop, sufficient men were not available to harvest the same. This department collected information each year through our regular crop correspondents, regarding the number of harvest hands required. Reports are not all in yet, but a sufficient number have been received to show that not less than six thousand men will be required to assist in taking off th's season's crop. The department cannot undertkae to locate each man individually. Experience has taught that excursions distribute themselve smost effectively throughout the province without any assistance from officials. We are aware that in the past too many men have gone at first to Brandon and a few other centres, and for a day or two much dissatisfaction would be expressed, but these congested points were soon relieved by sending the surplus of men to points not fully supplied, and invariably requests were forwarded to the department within a week of the arrival of the excursionists for more men. These demands could not be supplied. The wages paid was according to the experience and ability of the workman. At present there are thirty-five thousand farmers in Manitoba, and if even every fifth farmer required man it would take seven thousand hands to supply the same. In many wheat growing districts every farmer will require one, and in some instances two or three more men, and take ten thousand men to supply the | finely, but it got away. remainder at one man to each farmer. at 10.33 a.m.

The announcement of the death of Mr. David Eagleson, which occurred on Sunday last, was quite unexpected by his friends, as he was in apparent good health only a few days since. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure, aggravated by a bad attack of summer complaint. The deceased came to Canada with his parents in 1832, and settled in the township of Hamilton, where he resided until 1872, when he removed to the township of Ops, and purchased the Connolly farm, where he resided until 1885, the date of his removal into Lindsay. He leaves a widow, six daughters and two sons, living: Messrs James and Robt. Eagleson, of Mariposa; Mrs. Eilis, Verulam; Mrs. Thos. Ray, Ops; Mrs. Geo. The Unheard Merchant. Experiments have shown that if a bell be rung in an absolute vacuum it will make no sound. The air, therefore, is the vehicle by which the noise of the vibrations is carried to the ear. A merchant who does not advertise is much like a bell in a vacuum; nobody can learn much about him or his business, and he therefore receives scant patronage. He requires a medium by which to attract the notice of the public, and the one great agency for the successful attainment of that purpose in a newspaper like The Post, which is read by nearly everybody in town, and which never

As the preserving season is now in full swing the following hints may be appreciated by some housewives: Be careful in your selection; do not choose too young, and take only such varieties as have been reared in a good moral atmosphere. When once decided upon, and selected, let that part remain forever settled, and give your entire thought to preparation for domestic use. Some insist upon keeping them in a pickle, while others are constantly getting them into hot water. Even poor varieties may be made sweet, tender and good by garnishing them with patience, wellsweetened with smiles, and flavored with kisses-to taste; then wrap well in a mantle of charity; keep warm with steady fire of domestic devotion, and serve with peaches and cream. When thus prepared they will
