VICTORIA ROAD.

(To the Editor of The Post.) During the past summer there have been numerous complaints made by visitors, residents and the travelling public regarding the streets of our village. Instead of our streets improving year by year they have grown worse, until now they have to the neighboring houses, all of which reached a terrible state of dirt and disor der. In the centre of the street the rubbish and dist from old cellars and back yards is dumped, thus leaving clay about the dwellings occupied by Mr. George Lake, one foot deep and making it almost Mr. Hartwick, Mrs. Harlowe, and the shop impossible to cross the street in wet weather. This state of things continues until through tine the earth becom s packed and hardened. Then the road is so high and uneven that crossing it is a gentle reminder of climbing the Alps or Chilcoot Pass. At the sides of the streets are buggles, wagons, lumber, etc., strewn hither and thither, not to speak of the cows, pigs and calves that continuously rove about. On coming home in the evening, not being on the sidewalk, one never knows when he or she may be hoisted into the air on the back of a cow, or h's feet be rooted from under him by a pig's snout. These are much worse occurrences than the "bray of the donkey," for it is comparatively quiet (only when it kicks) Can it be wondered at, then, that people complain? People talk. The streets are public. If a few people will persist in having their cows in front of their resi dences let the cows be taken inside the people's gate on their lawn and thus not cause other people repeated annoyances It will soon be our gala day and we trust till after then, at least, the streets will be kept free from these nulsances and "hindrances to navigation.'

Important Improvements and Enlargement of their Buildings at Peterboro. The Geo. Natural ice having proved unsatisfactory to meet the requirements of the business, the supply being naturally pretty well exhausted in the late summer and early fall at a time when most needed, the company has decided to put in an artificial refrigerating plant which repre-sents a gain of speed in chilling of about 25 per cent, besides being under control and always available, independent of natural ice supply. The cost of the new system is much greater than of natural ice, but the results in facilitating the operations of the company will more than compensate, The ture the three stories of the chilling. cutting and storage departments is provided zero. Barns and Lightning.

Mr. B. Booth, Warkworth, writes as follows : A number of papers have commented upon the fact "that so many borns throughout the country have been struck by lightning and burned' and asked for a preventive. It is a ception of the lightning rod men, and we all know their reasons. Now, J have never heard or known that any barn with an open lattice ventilator has been struck or burned. All farmers know that no matter how dry grain or hay is when put into the barn, it will sweat more or less,; this sweat to the top. We know this, for if we salt the bottom of a mow the top also becomes salty. Now, I believe that forms a gas, which invariably rises to lightning has an affinity for this gas. and that the gas, if confined in the top of the barn, draws the lightning

BEFORE THE CITY WAS FIRED, JAPS TO BUILD COREA RAILWAY

Sensational Story That Former Convicts in the Penitentiary, Out of Revenge, Set Fire to the British Columbia Town-The Government Tents Now Cover the Homeless People.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 13. - There have been the most sensational developments in the Westminster fire, to the effect that the city was burned down by penitentiary prisoners. The story is not credited by the city officials, who claim it is a hoax and a strange coincidence, but the story is being thoroughly investigated by the insurance companies. At 10.30 o'clock, half an hour before the fire started, as Mr. and Mrs. Peebles were refrigerating department, occupying three stories, is separated from the manufacturing high eminence overlooking the Fraser passing the Public school, built on the department by a fire wall extending from the ground to the roof. The theory advanced is that three prisoners, recently discharged from the Provincial Penitentiary here, who had frequently threatened to do for Westminster when they got out, carried out their intentions, that the black flag with the white skull and crossbones left floating over the destroyed city on the limits of the fire zone was a symbol of the revenge as well as a signal to confederates on the wharf to touch a match to the city, and that the screams of agony emanating from the shed where the fire started were the cries of agony and hopeless terror of the flend who fell a victim to his own hellish design.

All through the hours of the conflagration they were calm as death. Now they are just the same. Their losses have made them almost insersible to thought. During the fire, save for the roaring of the flames and shouting of firemen and Chinese, all was quiet. No crying or panic was seen or heard in the crowds of burnt-out and destitute people.

As usual at fires. a number of robberies took place, and more than one store was pillaged. The Chief of Police, when asked if there had been any arrests on account of the looting, answered in the negative. Already active merchants of the Royal
