On Friday evening last Mr. I. E.
Weldon and Rev. J. W. Macmillan, of Lindsay, addressed a public meeeting in the town hall on Prohibition. Mr. Weldon, dealing with the legal side of the question, gave some very clear arguments why prohibition would be a success. Rev. J. W. Macmillan gave a masterly address dealing with the revenue, liberty and moral side of the question, and the strong temperance sentiment in Canada to-day was due to the education the people had during the Scott act and Dunkin act. We warned the temperance people to beware of the wolves in sheep's clothing who were favorable to temperance but opposed to prohibition. He spoke not because he was a minister, but as a citizen of Canada, and said he wanted his audience to weigh his arguments and if convinced it was right to vote Thursday decided to purchase the lot | for prohibition to do so, and he presented arguments of the most convincing character why prohibition was the best means of abolishing the liquor traffic, and refuted the argument that personal liberty was infringed upon in passing a prohibition law which was for the general good of the whole people. The vote called for the 29th inst., is a supreme opportunity for all friends of sobriety to mark their appreciation of the chance of a generation to help on temperance efforts to subdue the monster evil of our land, or as it has been called, "the source of all villainies," and show a desire to do right in our day and generation. The Late Samuel Campbell, Fenelon. On Monday, Sept. 5th, an aged and esteemed resident of the township of Fenelon, in the person of Mr. Samuel Campbell, was called to his eternal rest. of Cavan, Ireland, in August, 1813. In the year 1844 he sailed for America in company with his sister and her husband, George Allan, also his cousin, James Ferguson, who had already spent some time amid the wilds of Canada. After landing in New York he made his way directly to the township of Cartwright, where within four or five years he saved sufficient means to send for his parents and some other members of the family and to secure for himself and them a home in Mariposa. In 1855 he married Margaret Ann, eldest West Ops. After fifteen years they daughter of Colonel John Graham, of removed to his late residence on the shore of Sturgeon lake, near the village For many years Mr. Campbell had been striving to live a christian life and during the past few months his family have had almost continuous evidence that his heart was wholly at peace with God. Much of his time was spent in singing, reading God's Word and in prayer. Since becoming unable to assist with the farm work he found a great deal of pleasure in fishing. As he grew more feeble, and became subject to epilepsy, his family and friends tried to dissuade him from going on the water, but to no purpose, his answer to every argument being that the God who had cared for him through so many years could watch over him just as well on the water as elsewhere; and seeming to have a presentiment of the manner in which God would call him home, he always carefully fastened himself to the boat so that his family might be spared the trouble and anxiety of searching for his body. His last Sabbath on earth was exceedingly peaceful. He read, prayed and talked of the goodness of God, and expressed a strong determination to live still closer to him. On Monday afternoon about 1 o'clock, he went out on the lake; a couple of hours later he was found leaning over the side of the boat, his face in the water. Having lost consciousness as a result of the epilepsy he felt no need to recover himself from the water, and so went without any indication of suffering, to be forever with the Lord.

A large concourse of sorrowing friends followed his remains to the Fenelon Falls cemetery where the burial service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Leech. On Sunday, Sept. 18th, a memorial service was held in Cameron church by Rev. Mr. Snowden, who had been absent at the time of Mr. Camp-
