HER OLD BLUE MUSLIN GOWN, BY CHARLES PRESCOTT SHERMON. When waxlights shine on diamonds' blaze,

On snowy shoulders' gleam, There comes a thought of other days; I see, as in a dream, A dainty table, spread at five, Vine-shadows flickering down, And behind the teacups, Margery In her old blue muslin gown,

Its ruffles lay about a throat So round, so ivory-fair ; Its sleeves were full, yet one might note Divine arms hidden there, Away with Redfern-Pingat-Worth-Those messieurs of renown ! No gown ere owed to them its birth; Like that blue muslin gown !

Why do not manufacturers make More muslin - plain soft blue -And girls all other tinta forsake or For that bewitching hue? Well-gowned they are, and fair, I grant, But there is not one can drown My memory of Margery In her old blue muslin gown,

My castle's over-sea in Spain -Alas! how far away! And it has a winsome chatelaine Who wears no satins gay. Sne waits, upon a vine-clad porch My coming home from town,

And she looks like none but Margery In her old blue mushin gown, 224 [October Scribner's, LOCAL NEWS-LETTERS

OMEMEE. Show.—The Emily Agricultural Society held their show in McQuade's stubble field, east of the village limits, the display of cereals, roots, fancy work, etc., being exhibited under a large tent, which was designated the main building. This large tent was surrounded by half-a-dozen smaller ones, which were occupied and adorned by the leading clothiers of Peterbore. This village of tents presented quite an attractive appearance, being located in the centre of the ring on which the horses were speeded and judged. The day was somewhat gloomy, but this did not keep away a fair sprinkling of the fair sex from the surrounding country, as well as many visitors from Reaboro, Mount Horeb, Mount Pleasant, Lindsay and Peterboro, who helped to swell the gate general display was of a much higher grade. [Correspondence of Tuz Post.] BROCK TOWNSHIP FAIR, undoubtedly the greatest annual event held in our village, is over for another year. Tuesday, the most important day, opened with some uncertainty as to the weather, but it cleared towards midday, and the people from the surrounding country turned out to the number of twelve hundred-one of the largest crowds that has ever attended. The last of the large throng that entered the grounds in the afternoon had scarcely begun to take in the sights when the clouds again lowered, and the rain came down in torrents, after which the majority of the spectators amused themselves the main building. The exhibits in all classes were large in number and cf high merit. We doubt if any township fair in the Dominion could make a better showing in fruit and garden vegetables. The dairy exhibit was also a commendable one, and shows what remarkable care and skill the housewives of Brock and surrounding district exercise in this line. In ladies' fancy work and domestic manufactures the number of entries was above the average. The arrangement of the inside exhibits was very tasty, and everything was seen by the general public to the best possible advantage. Mr. R. K. Bryant made a good display of the agricultural implements of the Peter Hamilton manu facture, and was rewarded for his trouble by making several good sales, as well as paving the way for many more. An exceptionally interesting exhibit was made by the Singer Sewing Machine Co., which was in charge of their progressive representative in this district, Mr. J. G. Hardill, of Port Perry. The unique and instructive advertising matter which he liberally distributed will undoubtedly give the publie a more explicit idea of the world-wide reputation and popularity of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. Minister of Marine and Fisheries that many of the fishermen along the Great Lakes are in rather straightened conditions through the slim results that have attended their season's operations. In the Great Lakes, by law, the close season is now on for all important commercial fishing, but permission has been granted to carry on herring fishing throughout the month of November. This is rather an important concession, as herring are in good lemand at this season of the year. Mr. Walton of the Niplssing Indian re-To is in town with a band of Indians
