Hundreds of Gross of Bodd's Kidney Pills Burned-The Bedd's Medicine Company in New Quarters Orders From Ocean to Ocean - Bnergy and Mnterprise Conquers

The extensive establishment of the preprinters of Bodd's Kidney Pills, at Nos. 11 and 3 Jarvis: sh, with its contents, except ing the citizes, was entirely destroyed by fire on the afternoon of the lath.

The fire broke out in the adjoining ware house, but spread so rapidly that in loss than ten minutes the employes of the Dodd's Medicine Co., from the laboratory, the advertising and the shipping departments, were all in panie fight for their once assured, and while more than two hundred and fifty gross of Dodd's Kidney Pills, together with labels, wrappers and tons of advertising, were being consumed, interest and effort all centered in the rescue from the advertising rooms of a mass of seemingly old and worthless letters. These, as afterwards learned, proved to be the accumulations of years, consisting of thousands of testimonials from persons cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and dating from the inception of the business up to the day of the fire. These records of triumph, these proofs of the supreme merits of this great kidney treatment were the most precious of all the possessions of the firm, and were to be saved if possible, as they fortunately were, at the last possible moment.

On the invitation of the president of the company a reporter of The News visited the quarters, located at Nos. 6 and 8 Bay street, where new premises have been promptly opened. Here a rapid glance revealed many busy hands rushing the several details of completion of new goods to fill orders continuously arriving from all points in Canada, the United States and other parts of the world. Judging from the accumulated orders on file, of which your reporter got a glimpse, the output of Dodd's Kidney Pills is already almost beyond the conception, and one can easily understand that their merit alone can create such an incredible demand.

Characteristic of the energy and enterprise of the Dodd's Medicine Company, it may be mentioned that, though absent in Buffalo during the fire, the manager was made aware of the probable extent and outcome of the disaster, and while the premises were still burning orders had been wired and goods from New York and other points were speeding toward Toronto for the reproduction of Dodd's Kidney Pills, so that no order should remain unfilled .- [From Toronto News.

THE SITUATION AT MONTREAL, Canadian Pacific Said to be Well Satisfied

Montreal, Oct. 5 .- (Special.)-There can be no doubt that the operators are in desperate straits, and if they do not get help within the next 24 hours it will be all up with them. The Canadian Pacific people are so well satisfied with the situation that Mr. Tait will leave to-morrow night for New York to attend the American Railway Association meeting. In the strikers' camp they declare the situation is still unchanged, yet they complain that they have not had a fair show from the public. Mr. Pierson has left the city and Mr. Powell cannot be seen, although it is believed he is in the city.

leaders of the telegraphers' strike at this point profess to be quite as confident of winning as ever. As a matter of fact, however, the impartial observer cannot help seeing that the strikers are gradually losing ground, and even those who favor the cause of the telegraphers predict that they will lose the battle unless the other trainmen by a sympathetic strike come to their assistance. This is, no doubt, what the strike leaders are counting on. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is now not only moving passenger trains, but is able to ease the pressure off a little by moving occasional freight trains. Telegraphic communication has been restored with several more points, which means that operators must be at work. The restoration of communication is aiding the grain men to straighten their counties grain trade, and, while things generally are still in a muddle, the situation is not so serious

Everything depends on the conference at Montreal to-morrow. If the trainmen go out the chances are all in favor of the strikers winning, but if the company can induce the men on the other departments of the service to remain at their posts the telegraphers will be likely to lose the day. Such a forecast may not be correct, but it is according to the best judgment of impartial observation of the situa-

"Now, which one?" asked Polly, and she stood on tiptoe that she might determine the point. She was a plump Polly. She was a short Polly, and the mantelpiece was a high one, so that there was no other thing to do than to stand on tiptoe while she gazed at two faces and wondered: "Which one?" They were not female faces, but Polly, though young, was old enough to take a very positive interest in masculince faces. She had already decided which one she would like to marry, and would she have been surprised if some day, out of that surface of paper on the maltelpiece had broken a voice "Polly, my dear, as I love you, will you marry me?" But he had maintained a grave si-

Aunt packin'," That very moment and frying daughnuta because Polly like! them. The other picture on the mantelpiece was that of an horest, reliable soul; but Poliy had no affection for him. She was a visitor under the roof, and in the two weeks that her visit had stretched across, she had learned very much about the history of beings whose only presence was that of pictures. Had not Aunt Nabby said that this plain, sensible face belonged to a sailor, a young captain? "Oh, the other is a seaman only; but I had rather marry a handsome sailor than a homely, stiff captain," was Polly's opinion.

She sighed.

She was thinking that the handsome sailor was only Cousin Joe. She hesitated a moment, kissed the photograph again, and then went downstairs to look out of a window fronting the sea and to pity sailors.

Everybody in the neighborhood had something to do with the sea, which was only a bit of a way off, and kept pounding night and day on the rocks, making all the fuss it could to attract as much attention as possible. To keep this unruly sea in any kind of subjection everyone must do something. Uncle Ronald Ricker was the keeper of the yellow life-saving station on the rim of the gray sands.

Uncle Ronald was a big, burly, goodnatured kind of a fellow. Aunt Nabby was a slim, slender woman, whose thoughts were quick moving, darting out like swallows' wings, and her eye sparkled like a run of brook water the day the spring has lifted the lid of ice covering it.

Said Uncle Ronald to Aunt Nabby, in the hearing of Polly at the window: "I'd like to have you, Nabby, clean up at the station, if you will; sweep round and so on. Nothin' doin' there in summer, but I want to keep things sort of slicked up, and I'll 'low you the pay for it. I've got to be off to my tater-patch t'other side of the back pastur'."

"I will, Ronald." Ronald Ricker left the room. "Polly, soon as I've finished these ere doughnuts-then-come on!" cried Aunt Nabby. "We will run that lifesavin' station this forenoon. They shall have a female crew to-day. You get the brooms ready. It is a worn-out thing down at the station. We'll be lively and start soon."

A small but sprightly broom-brigade soon charged upon the station and captured it without difficulty, Windows you know, and must do just as the were thrown up, the brooms set to whisking and the dust routed. The living room below, the men's start a fire in the kitchen stove in the

Aunt Nabby remained to do some "cleaning out," behind the door where one of the other but less particular crew had left a heap of dirt. Polly. singing away, went upstairs, hopping like a robin from step to step, landing | hadn't she seen it while he was in the on the threshold of the masculine crew's quarters by night.

"The beds look all right," said Polly, eyeing six iron beds, neatly covered with bedding and set in two prim rows surprised. This was Cousin Joe himalong the northern and southern walls of the room. "Yes, they look all right, but I know those men didn't sweep under the beds. N-o, before I sweep, I'll take a look-off from the look-out on the roof."

This was a platform on the roof, blushing, though not displeased. "I-I railed about and supporting a flagstaff. Here on clear days a watch was kept | helping us so nobly, but I am not by the surfmen.
