Barbaric Cruelty to a Girl in Quebec Bad Case of Stepmother - The Monsters

Found Gullty. Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 20.-The jury, after a trial of eight days, found the accused father and stepmother in the Lapierre case guilty, but with a recommendation to mercy. The charge was an attmept to murder the little girl, Celina.

The poor child's story, as told on witness stand, and corroborated by prominent farmers, the priest and several wellknown physicians, is as follows:

"My mother is dead, and I have been in a convent at Arthabaska till last winter, when my father brought me home. At first, although I had never seen my stepmother and brothers and sisters, the latter means about 20 below zero) I had to go out | were burned.

They often knocked me down, and they often tied my head in a bag and let me fall everywhere and hurt myself terribly. Once stuck a piece of red hot charcoal in my mouth and burned my tongue so that I could not eat for days afterward. My brother Henri was not so very bad, but he used to tie a string around my tongue and let all the other children pull at it. One night in the winter I froze one of my reet nothing, and a few nights after I froze the other. They did nothing for me, and made me go out and work just the same. Then I got sick and two of my toes dropped off, and when they finally took me away to the hospital at Sherbrooke, the doctors wanted to cut off two more, but I was too weak, and they said I was going to die, but they cut them off when I got a little stronger."

The poor little girl, when she was taken away from her cruel parents, was a mass of bruises and wounds and reduced to a skeleton from lack of nourishment and exposure. There was some talk at one time of lynching the parents.

the Luctgert case before the opening of hill to keep the jurors until Saturday night or late Saturday afternoon before he permits them to go with a disagreement. Judge Tuthill to know, among other things, if eleven men could compel one man to vote if but eleven men signed it. This incident gives to the State the idea that there is but one man standing between Luetgert and a death sentence. Judge Tuthill refused to

Kingston, Oct. 20 .- A son of Charles dishes and pans, scrub the floors, wash the Erennan of Gananoque, 14 years of age, manufactured a small cannon from the handle bar of a bicycle, and, along with some other boys, was testing the new toy. They put in quite a large charge of powder and as he set off the cannon it recoiled and struck him near the eye, along the nose, boring a hole in his head for a distances of four or five inches. Fortunately, however, the base of the brain was not touched, nor is it expected that the sight
