LINDSAY, FRIDAY, OCT. 13, 1899.

Forward!

Who sneers she's bit a colony:
No national spirit there;
Race differences, faction's feuds,
Her flag to tatter's tear!

Nor race, nor creed, the patriot's word,
No faction blunts to-day,
"Forward for Canada!" 's the word,
And eager for the fray.

Our youth press on and carpers shame,
Their bearing bold and high,
For this young nation's peace and fame,
Ready to do or die.

They come from hamlet and from town,
From hill and wood and glad,
From where great palaces look down
On streets that roar with trade.

From pleasant cities rich and old,
That gem Ontario's shore;
From where Niagara's awful plume
Makes its eternal roar.

From each town just sprung to life,
Mid flowery prairies wide;
From where Riel first kindled strife,
To Calgary's rapid tide.

One purpose now fires every eye,
Rebellion foul to slay,
"Forward for Canada!" 's the cry,
And all are one to-day.

—Nicholas Flood Davin, M.P.

THE MOTHER OF TRUSTS.

"The mother of all trusts is the Customs Tariff Bill." So said Henry O. Havemeyer, president of the American Sugar Refining Company, when called before the Industrial Commission sitting at Washington, to give what information he could on the subject of trusts. He is himself the president of a trust whose property is capitalized at seventy million dollars. He admitted that the plant used by the company could be replaced for thirty-five millions or so, but said the plant is not the only thing valuable in the business. He thought it worth thirty or thirty-five millions to control the brand of Havemeyer and Elder. The sugar trust is one of the best known in America. Some time ago it had a fight with Claus Speckles, the Hawaiian sugar king, which "lasted till we got his refinery," as Mr. Havemeyer put it. He is quite confident that amalgamation has been a good thing for all concerned. Eighteen refineries had failed before it took place, and now the five that are working are turning out failed before it took place, and now the more than the product of the twenty-four that went into the trust. Mr. Havemeyer says the trust has saved the people money, but "we do not lay much stress on benefitting the consumer," he added with a laugh, "we are in this for business. We try to keep prices down to keep out competition."

Surprising as the fact may seem, Mr. Havemeyer is not to be counted as a friend of trusts, as they are commonly found, in the United States. Of them he says—the Sugar Trust alone expected—that they are the outcome of tariff legislation. Sugar, he thinks, is not protected enough, only some three or four per cent., which he considers too little. But, "The Tariff Bill clutches the people by the throat, and then the governors and the attorney-generals of the several States take action, not against the cause, but against the machinery which the people employ to rifle the public pocket."

"It is the government, through its

"Business is Booming."

Prosperity is not coming—it is here. Lindsay is feeling it, Graham is feeling it, Marvellous harvests, with good prices; the demand for labor almost unprecedented; every branch of commercial industry active. These are indisputable facts; we state them because golden opportunities demand prompt recognition. NOW is the time to buy.

tariff laws, which plunders the people, and the trusts, etc., are merely the machinery for doing it.
"Economic advantages incident to the consolidation of large interests in the same line of business are a great incentive to their formation, but these bear a very insignificant proportion to the advantages granted in the way of protection under the customs tariff."
The movement against trusts in the United States is itself becoming consolidated; as the remarks of a man of national reputation like Mr. Havemeyer indicate. War against trusts will be a prominent plank in the democratic presidential campaign next year. It is the growth and possible future of trusts that alarm the political and economic thinkers of the day. If, as some say, capitalistic monopolies are in line with the progress of civilization, it will be only a question of a few few years when every industrial pursuit will be controlled by a trust; competition in business will cease to be, and the workmen will be reduced to the condition of a mere toiling machine.

According to the facts in the case, trusts cannot exist without a high protective tariff. A writer on this subject in an American paper says: "The sugar trust could not live without a protective tariff. Eighty per cent. of our raw sugar is imported. The freight must be paid upon it in any case. Abolish the one cent a pound of protection and the refiner of England or Germany can compete on equal terms with the American refiner. So far as the trust is concerned he will be at a positive advantage, for the trust, in order to maintain the combine, must pay dividends to dismantled and abandoned refineries. With profits reduced to the lowest margin or wiped out altogether self-interest will impel the strong concerns to withdraw from the others and the combine will go to pieces."
Pursuing the subject, the same writer says: "The Standard oil trust was built up and exists to-day by reason of railroad discriminations. Abolish these discriminations and the oil fields of Colorado and other states will be developed, the independent refineries will be able to compete on equal terms with the trust and competition in the oil business will be revived. This is true likewise of the anthracite coal trust. Its monopoly is due partly to its control of the chief source of supply and partly to railroad discriminations, which prevent the development of anthracite coal fields in other parts of the country."
While every trust has its own vulnerable point, the vulnerable point common to all is the protection they enjoy. They present tariff in Canada being in the direction of a tariff for revenue only, is in itself hostile to the establishment of huge monopolies here.

Temperance Column.

FOR GOD AND HOME AND NATIVE LAND.

EDITED BY ELLEN E. SHARPE

Hope, Love and Gruth.

A drunken woman named Peterson stabbed another woman named Nelson with a hat pin. The affair took place in Winnipeg.
An honest farmer named John McMillan, living at Parry Sound, sold a mine on his farm for $6,000 and decided to give a portion to the revenue. The result was that he became very drunk, and while returning to his home at night he was thrown from his buggy. He was found about one mile from his home in a dying condition. Thus Canada's greed for money caused the death of a good citizen.
W. T. Silverthorne, a moderate drinker in Toronto, was seen in a hotel drinking on the evening of Sept. 8th. On Sunday, the 10th, his body was found floating in the bay. It is evident that he stumbled into the water while under the influence of liquor.
Two men, with The Post, and George Harding of London, engaged in a quarrel while drunk. Harding struck Gowanlock on the chin and killed him instantly. The affair took place in the hotel yard. The deceased leaves a widow and two children totally unprovided for. Harding is a married man without means.
John Doyle, of Montreal, came to his death in unlicensed liquor and gambling dive. Doyle got drunk, and while playing a game of cards he was accused of cheating. A fight ensued, resulting in internal injuries to Doyle, from the effects of which he died in a hospital.
Samuel Simpson, of Toronto, became crazed by the effects of drink and hanged himself. He married about three years ago and lived with his wife for a year and a half. After their separation he continued to support her dissipated husband until her strength and energy gave way. Their helpless babe was given to strangers. For the sake of the revenue, Canada licensed 200 places in Toronto to destroy people.

At Smith's Falls, Ont., on September 16th, a terrible murder was committed as the result of a drunken brawl. T. Blake, a man of seventy years, and his wife, aged about sixty, lived in an old shanty. Blake was a laborer and spent most of his earnings for liquor. His wife was addicted to drink. When Blake sobered up after one of his customary spree the awful spectacle that met his eyes was the rigged corpse of his wife. Her face was washed the blood from her face and tried to restore her, but in vain. He was her murderer. The verdict showed that Mrs. Blake died from blows supposed to be inflicted by her husband, Thomas Blake. What a farce on such a solemn occasion for after all it was liquor that killed Mrs. Blake.

The Post Office & Lley.

A lady reader of The Evening Post voices an old complaint when she refers to the out-of-the-way location of the post office drop-boxes for letters and newspapers, but their situation seems particularly undesirable in view of the fact that she declares she has frequently been afraid to venture into the dark alley at night, and has been compelled to walk up and down Kent-st.—sometimes in wet weather—until she met one of her acquaintances to escort her or relieve her of the errand. She gave us the names of other ladies who felt the same timidity and had endured the same experience. Beyond doubt the objection is a sound one, as intoxicated characters frequently infest such alleys, and are prone to insult unprotected ladies. If the boxes cannot be removed to the front entrance, then a light should be maintained in the alley-way.

Advice to Consumptives

There are three great remedies that every person with weak lungs, or with consumption itself, should understand. These remedies will cure about every case in its first stages; and many of those more advanced. It is only the most advanced that are hopeless. Even these are wonderfully relieved and life itself greatly prolonged.
What are these remedies? Fresh air, proper food and

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Be afraid of draughts but not of fresh air. Eat nutritious food and drink plenty of milk. Do not forget that Scott's Emulsion is the oldest, the most thoroughly tested and the highest endorsed of all remedies for weak throats, weak lungs and consumption in all its stages.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, Toronto.

A PITTABLE CRIPPLE.

From Rheumatism—Blistered by Doctors till He Didn't Know Himself—South American Rheumatic Cure Performs a Wondrous Cure.
D. Desonets, Peterboro, writes: "For months I was unable to work. Had rheumatism in every part of my body. I was blistered by doctors at different times. My hands were drawn out of shape, my fingers were distorted, and my wrists and forearm were double their natural size. My leg was encased in a plaster case for four months. I tried South American Rheumatic Cure; I took two bottles. Twenty-four hours after first dose I felt like a new man. One week after I was able to go to work. Now I am as healthy and strong as ever." Sold by A. Higinbotham and P. Morgan.

Railway Notes

—Corn is now being delivered in large quantities at the wharves. Two vessels unloaded 121,500 bushels the other day.
—Orillia papers deny that the headquarters of the Northern division are to be transferred from Allandale to Collingwood or that Supt. Tiffin is to be promoted.
—A couple of local railway men are in trouble over a breach of the new rules, which might have involved serious consequences. Supt. Tiffin is now a free man, and was at fault.
—Driver James Haugh, who was slightly injured in a run-off near Granthurst a couple of weeks ago, has resumed charge of his engine. His friend, Gordon, of Peterboro, is still on the sick-list, having suffered a double fracture of his collar-bone.

BACKS THAT ACHE.

Kidneys That Won't Do Kidney Work.

LINDSAY TALK.

It is but a short time (counted by days) since Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets first came to Lindsay. It was said they were something entirely out of the common as a specific for Backache and Kidney Complaints, and that they acted very quickly and made startling cures of cases that all other medicines failed to influence. Lindsay people are quickly coming to the front to substantiate this statement. One of them is Wm. C. Crossley, Lindsay, who relates his experience as follows:—
"My work on the new granolithic sidewalks is very heavy, and requires a good deal of stooping; as a result I have had considerable Backache and Kidney Trouble. I used the bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets I got from A. Higinbotham's Drug store, and they are just the thing. They cut the trouble in short order, and I intend to recommend them to all others suffering in a similar way. They are very easy in action, and that is a great point.
The results obtained by Mr. Crossley should appeal to thousands of aching backs, weak backs, kidney pain backs, that can now get relief from Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

ATWENTIFTH CENTURY NUMBER

And a Twentieth Century Premium Proposition.

The publishers of that excellent agricultural weekly, Farming, have anticipated somewhat the expectations of the twentieth century in the handsome fall number. This special issue is really one of the finest productions in the line of agricultural journalism that we have seen and we question whether it has ever been excelled by any other farm journal on this continent. The front cover bears a very artistic engraving in two colors representing Miss Canada in the act of drawing back the folds of the Union Jack and exposing to view a Canadian autumn farm scene. The number throughout is illustrated by upwards of fifty excellent photo engravings, showing a number of the leading farm markets in Canada, and the Smithfields and Covent Garden markets in England. Several splendid views of typical English, Irish and Danish creameries are also shown, together with those of some pure bred cattle. The letter-press is especially valuable, containing many articles of a thoroughly practical character for the farm.
Sample copies of this issue can be had on application to this office. And in Farming, we take occasion to draw attention to the generous offer we are able to make, in combining Farming with The Life of Christ. A copy of "The Ideal Cook Book" and also a copy of "The Life of Christ" with over seventy half-tone cuts.

Received a New Coat.

—Mr. A. D. Mallon, mail collector, is giving the letter-boxes and posts a coat of paint, as a north ward young man found out to his cost the other evening. While chatting with a young lady he rested against one of the posts, and next morning when he went to don his suit he almost fainted—the coat was covered with a sticky red paint, while his light trousers were streaked with a dark shade of blue.

Loyalty or Hysterics.

Premier Laurier is catching it right and left over his not having taken any steps to send a Canadian contingent to the Transvaal. The opposition organs in Ontario are particularly severe. Most of the Toronto and Hamilton anti-government papers have gone into jingo hysterics, for which the Premier not a French Canadian, there would be absolutely no party rhyme nor reason. The only possible excuse for half that has been said is the suspicion, formulated by many papers into a direct charge, that the Premier is truckling to pro-British feeling in Quebec. So far there does not seem to be good ground for even such a suspicion.
When the Premier was at the Jubilee celebration in London he proclaimed that if ever the Empire should be in danger, Canada would be the first to rescue. He was strongly pro-British in his feelings. On the whole he talked loyalty enough to satisfy the whole of Quebec, were there any anti-British sentiment there.
Has the Premier set some back on his protestations of loyalty? Is there any real necessity for the forwarding of a Canadian contingent? What are the facts? First, there is no war; second, there may not be any war; third, the empire is not in any danger; fourth, even in England recruiting for volunteers has not commenced. Only the existing regular troops are being sent forward.
In the view of these facts where is the necessity of the Canadian government being urged to go to the heavy expense, perhaps unnecessarily, of sending troops forward? The worst species of unreason is jingoism.
The Journal yesterday blamed the Premier for not having offered troops. It does so still. But there is considerable difference between urging the government to place the country publicly on record as willing to do its share towards fighting the Empire's battles, and in urging it to rush forward troops without any necessity. The Journal believes that if the Premier would now forward to the Imperial government a mere offer of troops he would be doing all that loyal but sensible citizens would expect.—Ottawa Journal.

Words From the Heart

A NOVA SCOTIAN FARMER REGAINED HEALTH.

He Suffered for Years From Kidney Trouble, Sick Headache and Rheumatism—Although Advanced in Life He Has Found a Cure.

Solomon Meldrum, Esq., of Upper Branch, Lunenburg Co., N. S., is a gentleman of Scotch descent, and well known throughout the county. He is an agriculturist of repute and is prominent in the local affairs of the Baptist denomination. Referring to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, he says—"I consider them a most wonderful and beneficent revelation in the realm of medicine. Previous to using these pills some two years ago, I had suffered for years from kidney trouble and rheumatism. Many a time had I been so bad that I could do nothing but endure the pain and pray for physical deliverance. My advanced age, being nearly 70 years old, made a cure look almost impossible, humanly considered, in a case of such long standing. But thanks to the Lord and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I am here to-day in excellent health with scarcely an ill feeling to remind me of past sufferings. Something over two years ago I read of the wonderful cures attending the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I thought if these testimonials are true it is possible the pills may benefit even me. I bought six boxes first, used them strictly as directed, and with the Lord's blessing they did me much good. But my ailments were chronic, deep seated, and I am an old man. The cure was not complete, and I got twelve more boxes with all faith in the result. I only had to use six boxes of the second lot when I found myself quite free from kidney troubles, rheumatism and all other bodily ailments, except the disability incidental to persons of my advanced age, and even those were in a measure relieved. I may add that for a long time before I used the pills and when I began their use, I was the victim of the most distressing attacks of sick headache, the sensation of seasickness in extreme violence being not a whit more distressing. These attacks came on once or twice a week. After taking the pills, the attacks became less frequent and less troublesome and finally ceased almost entirely. My son who lived at a distance took the remaining six boxes and stated to me that they did him much good. This I do know that the looked much fresher and appeared in better spirits after their use. Believing as I do that an over-ruling power has suggested to mortals all the wise and beneficial thoughts and inventions which operate to improve our race and allay our suffering, I say again that I thank the Lord and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for my prolonged life and present good health.
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They strengthen the nerves, thus driving disease from the system. Avoid imitations by insisting that every box you purchase is enclosed in a wrapper bearing the full trade mark, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

BLACKSMITH'S STATEMENT.

Mr. M. B. Connick, of Middleton, P. E. M., has a statement.
Middleton, P. E. I. Oct. 9th.—The strongest point in favor of Dodd's Kidney Pills is that they will cure Bright's Disease, and the next strongest is that there is no other medicine that will. Mr. M. B. Connick, a blacksmith on Prince Edward Island for this last quarter of a century, found this out. He had tried every medicine but the regular use for a few days of Dodd's Kidney Pills were the only cure for Bright's Disease he tried. Ten boxes cured him.
"I would not be alive and strong to-day," he wrote recently, "if it were not for Dodd's Kidney Pills. All the country knows my case, and there have been hundreds to ask me about it. I tell them the whole thing just as it happened and give the sole credit of my cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills."
