A CITIZEN'S EXPERIENCE WITH A STRANGE COW.

What was Heard One Morning Recently by our Live Stock Reporter. Our reporter happened to overhear a prominent north ward citizen telling Richard, whoever he may happen to be, just how his first experience with the new cow terminated. The reader will have to supply some words with which our reporter is not familiar, as he is not up in cow language and does not attend the town council, but wherever there is a dash it means not a prayer. This is what our reporter heard:

"You see, Richard, the women folks had the cow's ears slipped. By this time some of my neighbors had gathered and were enjoying my athletic exhibition. Well, I have had considerable experience in walking sawlogs, and al though I was for a moment thrown off my balance by the rough ground I was not going to be laughed at by the crowd, and before the cow passed me I recovered myself and caught her by the tail. Then, Richard, the fun commenced. I might as well have tried to hold Sandy Laidlaw's engine with a full head of steam on. Gee whiz! how we did travel—I don't think my foot struck the ground once in twenty feet. I was not saying 'Coo boss,' now; I dare not let go and I could not hold on. Well, the blamed cow turned a corner of Paint that has ever been prepared for around a lumber pile, and you remember the market and is more economical to the old game crack the whip-away I went use, more durable and beautiful than head over heels into a splendld field of burdocks and thistles. Mind, Richard, is pretty good suit of rough Scotch tweed. Great Scot! you ought to have seen me when I picked myself up out of those burdocks—I was literally covered from head to foot, and was bigger than a house. I simply said — —, and came out to see where my cow was. I would have given a dollar and a half to have Buffalo Bill after

One of the spectators thought he knew all about cows, and as she stopped in surprise after getting rid of me he took the opportunity of catching her by the lugs, thinking she was tired out. Just here was her chance to show her staying capacity and to give me a chance for my laugh. This chap had been a river driver, and his anguage was not fit for Sunday afternoon. The cow evidently did not like him, as with a gentle sprint forward she lifted him clean off his feet, gave him a lurch to free herself from his grasp on her ears, and as she passed him let fly her hind feet and caught him square in the chest. week to the effect that the large bank barn and other outbuildings on his farm, lot 5, in 8th con. Mariposa, near Manilla, had been destroyed by fire about 6 a.m. The farm is rented to Mr. R. Slater, a progressive, hard-working young farmer, whose industry was rewarded this year by a very barn and will be a complete loss. Several pigs and a number of fowl were also consumed. Mr. Short is icsured for $400 in the local Farmers' Union Mutual Insurance Co., but says the buildings cannot be replaced for $800. We have been unable to learn the amount carried by the tenant, but unless the sum is large his loss will be a severe blow, as fully $3,000 worth of grain and other property was destroyed.

Let Us Talk To You

When ill you buy the advice of the most experiedced physician in your vicinity, don't you? Of course, because his length of service gives confi-

Why not apply the same argument to the purchase of Groceries. We have served theis well for many years, why not you? Think it over as Grocers and Provision Merchants we are break ing old records daily in the way of prices, and can confidently assert that no other house in the county offers equal values.

Just now, when nature is about to introduce a change, is a good time for meditation—in the warm summer days people do not bestow much thought upon the stern realities.

In these days of keen competition the merchant who can buy in the largest quantities secures an advantage that is denied his small competitor, and by turning over the goods rapidly he can afford to sell at very close margins.

This has been the secret of our large trade in the past. No other store in the county can offer Groceries the year round at the prices we ask for them, because no other business firm buys as We particularly invite family trade, and feel sure of being able to satisfy all comers. We pride ourselves upon the quality of our goods, and courteous and prompt service. Try us.
