Thomas Powers of Emily was a very reluctant witness. Mr. Blake got out of him after two hours' hard work that M. O'Halloran of Lindsay, a prominent supporter of Mr. Fairbairn, had placed in his overcoat pocket $2 for one Haggerty; that Haggerty had put his hand into his (Powers') pocket and go: the money; but that this had all taken place in connection with the bye-election in December last. This being the case the charge was dis-The charge against Michael Hickey of giving whiskey to Michael Flynn of Emily and telling him to vote for Fairbairn, and

The first witness, John McDonald of Lindsay, contractor, told his story very anxious for Fairbairn's election and worked hard to bring it about, more particularly as he hoped thereby to secure the contract for the building of the railroad from Lindsay to Bobcaygeon. Leary lived at King's Wharf, about twenty miles from Lindsay, and came to McDonald's house a short time before polling day, and told him that some accounts of voters for services rendered in the December election had not

Two nights before the polling day at a meeting held in the schoolhouse near Leary's at which McDonald was present speaking in the interest of Fairbairn Leary renewed his demand, and claimed that he, too, had an account of about $30 which he had sent to Mr. Birmingham, and which had not been paid. Mr. McDonald said he would inquire, and if these claims had not guarantee payment. Next day he did Quillan & Co., per F. a deputy-returning officer, and so on; that having a claim for services rendered in the December election he had sent it in, but for some reason it was refused to be paid. He had asked Mr. John McDonald to pay it, as he thought he had not been fairly dealt with. Mr. Blake then asked him what this account was for, and he said he had driven his horse to Peterboro, about twenty miles, to see Mr. Jas Stephenson about for two months before the election.

There was a long, exhaustive and able argument by Mr. Blake and Mr. Osler arrangement possible in the town's interested in and desirous of promoting the passing of this by-law, and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of promoting the persons interested in and desirous of opposing the law of agency was most fully distance. for two months before the election. reviewing the whole evidence, in which arrangement possible in the town's inthe law of agency was most fully dis- terest. After half an hour's retirement their lordships gave judgment, first on the Macksey-Fox case, which they dismissed, distinguishing it from the North Victoria case, which it resembles in some very marked points, but differing in others, and they gave the benefit of the doubt in favor of the accused. KINMOUNT. [Correspondence of The Post.] BASKET SOCIAL.-A very successful and entertaining basket social was held in the school house at Wilson's Corners on Friday evening, Dec. 11th. The backets were numerous and gotten up in a very artistic style, though no two were alike, and the ladies were very cautious when bringing in their backets to have them carefully covered so that the purchasers could not However we saw one or two young men wearing a pleased smile after getting a sale tea and a full plate of cakes were passed around to all who had not bought a basket. After tea the Ray. Jos. Munt was intellectual part of the entertainment.
