Mr. Foster and Mr. Leddy. The meeting closed by singing the national anthem. The literary society held their closing meeting on last Friday afternoon with a very large attendance, including many visitors. The president called upon the secretary to read the minutes of the last meeting, after which the following pro-gram was rendered:—Instrumental solo, Miss Hamilton; solo, Miss Ella Gross address, Rev. Mr. Shorey; reading of Pancosmir, Mr. Stevens; selection, banjo, guitar and manuolin club; reading of Pancosmic, Mr. Walke. Miss Hamilton's instrumental was beautifully rendered. Miss Gross was the singer of the evening, and proved herself worthy of the position. The Rev. Mr. Shorey spoke very forcibly the boys. Mr. Stevens read a couple of essays written by the best scientists in the school. The banjo and guitar club played exceedingly well, which was shown by the nearty at plause by the boys for an encore. The Pancosmic for this occasion was especially interesting, particularly the contri-bution from the III. B form. VES, we are over-loaded, not on account of any depression of trade in Lindsay, but because we took advantage of the reasonable inducements offered by wholesale merchants, who have been forced to slaughter goods on account of the stagnation of trade in the wholesale markets,

Probably we have bought too heavy at this late season, but we felt confident that the buying public would appreciate the rare inducement, and by purchasing liberally, our immense stock would be greatly diminished by the end of the year. To make this a huge success we invite you, one and all, to come and partake of the many bargains we have in store.

Prices often look very tempting in print, but the public have so often been deceived in this way that they no longer put any credence in them. We might insert a price-list a yard long of wonderful bargains, but refrain from doing so on that
