Could a league not be formed of clubs in the Midland district, composed of Uxbridge, Beavertor, Whitby seconds, Port Perry, Cannington, Millbrook, Lindsay, and possibly a team from Peterboro. Each club could subscribe for a trophy to be played for, and each team to play each other two games. If six or eight teams entered two districts might be formed, the winners to play off at the end of the season. Would it not be well to have a meeting to organize our club at once. Then the forming of a league could be discussed. We think most of the clubs mentioned would be in favor of entering.

HOW TO PREPARE FOWL FOR THE BRITISH AND HOME MARKET.

The Kind of Fown Wanted and How to Raise Them-An Interesting Lecture by Mr. W. Gilbert, Manager of the Poultry Department at the Ottawa

Experiment Farm. On Monday afternoon last a large number of farmers and their wives gathered at the council chamber to hear Mr. W. G. Gilbert, manager of the poultry department at the Ottawa Experimental farm, who is visiting a number of leading peints in the province for the purpose of giving instruction in the raising and preparation of poultry for the English and home markets. Lindsay was the second place visited, the opening lecture being given at Smith's Falls. THE CARE OF POULTRY.

Mr. Gilbert began his address by directing the attention of the audience to a chart which showed the amount of eggs shipped to the markets of Great Britain in 1895 by continental countries to be worth twenty millions of dollars. To this should be added five millions for dressed poultry. Of the total amount Canada sent only eight or nine hundred thousands of dellars' worth. The farmers of Canada had an almost unlimited market in Great Britain for eggs and poultry of a superior quality. Canada had favorable climatic conditions that the European countries had not. It remained for the farmers to take advantage of the great British market. Surely their intelligence and energy were as great as that of the people of the countries catering to the English market. The speaker thought it was. Our farmers only required to make the effort to succeed. They required to keep the breed of poultry that would make the larger birds for shipment, and having got the birds they required to be killed, dressed and packed as the purchasers in Great Britain wish, and that was what he (the speaker) was there for. He had also specimens of dressed turkeys and chickens to show the way poultry should be prepared for the English market. He had seen that morning at Mr. Flavelle's one time in Canada before; he had noticed, however, that the legs and feet of some of be so. The farmers should make it a point condition as regards cleanliness of feathers chickens and other poultry are put previous to killing, they would keep themselves clean. Poultry were cleanly, and soiled their feathers by coming in contact with dirty surroundings. All the legs of poultry intended for the English market should be as clean as the legs of the poultry he had brought with him. (The speaker here showed the legs of the Plymouth Rock chickens, and they were certainly bright

It was formerly said that there was no way of preserving poultry on the way to market, but that could no longer be said, for they all knew the minister of agricul ture had established a complete system of cold storage by rail and steamer under the immediate operation of Prof. Robertson, commissioner of agriculture and dairying, and under the auspices of whose department the speaker was present with the exhibit of dressed poultry.

HOW TO FEED TURKEYS. Now, as to how to get the superior quality of poultry; take turkeys first. The bronze turkey is the largest of the kind. A bro ze turkey cock crossed with the common turkey would result in a larger bird, but he preferred the thoroughbred. The first seven eggs of the turkey hen might be given to a common fowl and the remainder of the 18 eggs, which is the number generally laid, to the turkey hen. On hatching out great care should be taken in bringing up the poultry. There -Mr. Jack Watton, of Toronto, spent were too many young turkeys lost every banksgiving day under the parental roof. year, and much of this loss was due to damp quarters, improper food and feeding, and lice. Young turkeys require great care until they "shoot the red," when they become the hardiest of all feathered fowl. The first food of the young turkeys should be stale bread soaked in milk and equeezed dry, mixed with finely chopped eggs and onions; later on feed on granulated oatmeal, rolled oats, or a mash made of stale bread, onion tops, catmeal, cornmesl, middlings, the whole mixed with skimmed milk. The MILK SHOULD BE BOILED and a little black pepper dusted into it before it is mixed in the mash. It ingredients named and fed to advantage. While shooting the red no uncooked food should be given, and the young birds, which are inclined to be ravenous at that sime, should not be overfed. Lice can be prevented by using some of the insect powder or by rubbing the breast feathers of the mother hen with a cloth smelling strongly of coal oil. The first five or six weeks feed four times daily; afterwards three times. Do not let mother and brood out in the early morning dew. Have the coop handy so that mother and brood may be driven into it in the event of a shower or in any rainy weather. To fatten, feed on whole ground wheat or on a mash composed of stale bread and ground grain.

BEST BREEDS OF GRESE, DUCKS AND CHICKENS. The Embden and Tovlouse geese are the heaviest. Goslings require great care while young, and should be kept away from water or damp quarters. Fatten on wheat. Give a dry grass run. Of ducks, Aylesbury and Pekin are the heaviest. Give ducklings feed of mash of ground barley, corameal, chopped eggs, ground wheat and oatmeal. Mix with bolling milk. Give finely chopped cabbage, lettuce, etc., and add bits of broken charcoal to their food. This more particularly applies to early birds, but ducklings

Mr. Gilbert then explained the methods of killing and dressing the different spec.

ments exhibited, which excited lively

interest. He invited the farmers and their wives to inspect the dressed poultry at the close of his address. He then went on to describe the proper rearing and feeding of young chicks so as to assume the large size of the chickens exhibited. Speaking on the subject of chickens and how to raise them, Mr. Gilbert said chicks of large size required on the Eag lish market, and for our own sity markets, it was necessary for the farmers to keep the breeds which made flash develop ment. Farmers could not get a beef animal from Jerseys, and they cannot get the big chickens from Hamburgs. The farmers should keep Plymouth Rocke, Wyandottes, Javas, Brahmas or Langshangs or Dorkings, for firsh development He would give preference to the first three breeds. They were not only good for flesh development, but were good winter layers. At the Experimental farm kept the same breed of fowls. The dressed any time.

and DEFORMITY, will be in LINDSAY at the BENSON HOUSE, on FRIDAY AFTERNOON, DECEMBER 10th, and SATURDAY till 5.30 p.m., DECEMBER 11th. If you are (or have a child) ruptured, this is a great opportunity to secure the advice of this recognized authority free of charge. The appliances made by Mr. Dorenwend are masterpieces of mechano-medical ingenuity, and thousands have through using them been cured and saved from danger and misery. Is it not natural that one who has unlimited experience and treats hundreds of cases monthly should know best what to do for afflicted ones? RUPTURE is a serious trouble to have and demands as strict attention as does a disease requiring a careful compounded medicine. IT IS DANGEROUS to make shift with an inferior and ill-fitting Truss. Life is placed in jeopardy by using them; better to have none at all. A Truss should hold Rupture as if you "had your fingers there." Dorenwend's Trusses do this. Others tried in vain to accomplish this motion, and it remained for C. H. Dorenwend to bit upon the right thing. It is the greatest invention in Trusses ever made. Ordinary Trusses injure the spine, Dorenwend's do not. They are made of German Silver, never corode nor rust, are light and strong, and cure more cases than all other kinds. PHYSICAL DEFORMITIES resulting from accidents, weakness or hereditary tendencies can be relieved and cured by mechanical means. Club Feet and Crooked Legs can be straightened, Spinal Curvature corrected and Weak Joints strengthened. Why go through (or bring up Children to endure) a life of deformity and misery when means of relief and cure are available? C. H. Dorenwend's appliances have cured many given up as hopeless. Is is not possible that he can do something for you or yours? Electrical treatment for Nervous Debility, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Kidney Troubles, Varicocele and many other diseases is now acknowledged to be the most successful, and by using the Dorenwend Electric Belt you get the best system. Thousands owe health and vigor to their use. Testimenials from all parts of the globe can be shown as to the merits of all the Dorenwend Appliances. All apparatus warranted and prices low. Consultation free. DORENWEND E. B. & T. CO., 275 Queen-st. W., Toronto.

Remember at Benson House, Friday Atternoon and Evening! December 10th, and Saturday till 5.30 p.m , December 11th.
