had clearly pointed out that if the Americans had an agent in Ontario that person was none other than the leader of the Opposition, who was the only Canadian member of one of the largest American lumber companies operating within the province.

Mr. Whitney had called upon the Government to immediately command Americans to stop taking logs out of Canada, but in so doing he had shown a gross ignorance of the law which would make him ridiculous in the country. Mr. Whitney had quoted from the statute relating to the imposition of restrictions upon license holders and had interpreted it to mean that at any time the Government could refuse to allow logs to go out of the country.

How childish and silly, not to say dishonest, his whole argument appeared when the Premier had explained the situation. He pointed out that the timber lands in ques-icans had availed themselves of this opportunity and had purchased in good faith, had paid their money to the prohonorably with them, because it was a alike. It would be a breach of contract, erty to impose new conditions after the bargain had been signed and sealed and the money paid over. Such a course would not be consistent with the rights of property which had been sold and the licenses issued. No doubt Mr. Whitney saw that such a course might prove popular and of use for party purposes because the question which involved millions of money was not properly understood as yet by the people of Ontario, but the Government were the guardians of the people's honor as well as their property and were acting as the re-

Toronto, Dec. 10 .- The debate in the Legislature upon the address was concluded yesterday, and the Government sustained by a handsome majority of 27. In an eloquent and telling speech, Premier Hardy announced the Government timber policy, and exposed the close relations of Mr. Whitney, the Opposition leader, with American lumbermen. Time and again during the Premier's speech the leader of the Opposition pleaded for quarter, but elequent address advocating preferential the Premier told him he had made his bed trade with England; how could Mr. Ross and he could lie upon it. The Patron Leader. Mr. Haycock was the first speaker. He egan by congratulating the city of Kingston as having been the birthplace of the two most talented and popular Lieut.-Governors who has ever held office in Intario. He commended the Government for having called the House together early in the season, because it was a most convenient time for gentlemen from the country, more space would be given the speech in the press, and it also afforded all parties an opportunity to revise their campaign speeches. (Hear, hear.) He trusted the Government would continue to call the House together at this season. Macdonald was dismissed-(laughter)- He thought the Opposition were making a fairly good case against the Government as regards its competency cause the Government had insisted upon a to rule the country; the Government had also shown that the Opposition were also unfit to rule, but no one had suggested that the Patrons were not fit to run the affairs of the province. (Laughter.) It had been stated that the Patron movement was dead because their lodges were not meeting. The Conservatives and Liberals were not meeting weekly, yet it was not suggested their parties were dead. The fact was the Patron movement had

I am speaking in the interest of the people who sent me here, Conservatives and Reformers alike, when I say they do not care for measures of retaliation except in so far as they will do them some practical good. Dr. McKay's Remarks.

Dr. McKay (Victoria) congratulated Mr. Whitney upon the fact that he was endeavoring to conduct the present campaign without appeals to religious bigotry and intolerance. He was trying honestly to gain power through the open door of Parliament and yet all the complaints used in years past against the Government on the cry-they favored Roman Catholics had still the same groundwork as before why then was it that nothing was heard of any of these cries? Whitney personally was a good, honest man, but he was surrounded by a crowd of men the people of the province would never trust. (Cheers.)

The Other Side. Mr. Charlton was listened to with great attention, it being the general impression he knew considerable about the timber question. He ridiculed the idea that the timber lands of the province were nearly depleted. He gave it as his opinion that the timber sales of the future might go on for 152 years at the same rate they had been sold since the Mowat Government gained power. He thought it would amount to confiscation and breach of contract i the Government, in their new bill dealing with the timber question, insisted upon any further restrictions than already embodied in the licenses issued. (Hear, hear.) He referred solely to limits already sold and paid for. There was undoubtedly a strong sentiment throughout the country upon this subject, was not understood.

but he was convinced this was because it The Opposition Policy. Mr. Whitney having promised at the opening of the debate to speak again made good his promise last evening. He said the reasons for the calling of Parliament as given by the Ministers, their organ, The Globe, and Liberal members all disagreed. He was asked by the Government why he did not formulate his charges and make them in the House. Simply because he did not wish to play the Government game and did not wish to do so. He complained that Mr. Hardy had treated him unfairly in the debate. He stated again he was not satisfied with the manner in which the public accounts were kept. The Government had not proclaimed its policy on the timber question, but its policy could be guessed since the Ministers had applauded Mr. Charlton's remarks when he asked that the logs should be allowed to go to the United States. Mr. Charlton had said there was timber left yet enough for 152 years, how then could he excuse the Government for spending large sums each year in re-planting trees? He urged the Government to adopt his policy and at once refuse to allow Americans to take any more logs from Ontario. A Crushing Reply.

Hon. Mr. Hardy was loudly cheered when he stood up to close the debate. (Laughter.) It had been charged the Government was pro-American in its olicy. There was a member in the House who was an annexationist, but he had never sat upon the Government benches, the leading lights in the Conservative mnks. (Cheers.) Considerable had been said with reference to the action of the overnment in passing legislation regarding loan and trust companies. It had been harged this legislation was in the interest of certain prominent Liberals who were directors of these companies. Nothing had been said of Sir Frank Smith, Mr. W. R. Brock and many other leading Conservatives who were fellow directors
