EXTENSIVE alterations are being made in LARD. the gunboat Prince Alfred. The foreastle is being fitted up in excellent style, with 18 banks, for the crew and firemen. The PRIME MESS . . . . 25 00 @ 0 00 for the marines contains 38 berths, with plenty of space in the centre. To protect the boilers against any damage from shot, in the event of an engagement, the coal-buckers are to be carried along each side. The fire engine has been removed from aft into the engine-room, and can be used for three several purposes:—In case of a fire, to put it out; in case of a leak, to pump the vessel dry; and in case of an enemy attempting to board, the hose can be let on deck to repel the boarders by playing hot water on them. On each side, at the end of the engine-room, a next appartment is to be divided off for the engineer and the second engineer. Then follows the messroom; around which six state-rooms will be fitted up for the officers. All the partitions are cleared off the deck, that the vessel may be worked fore-and aft to better ad vantage. When completed, the Prince Al-fred will be manned with six guns, and iron-plated all over. She will then be a formidable defence to our coast.
