Our Own Experience of the Comforts of Travel on the Grand Trunk.

The Ladies' Journal had occasion to visit Chicago recently on a matter of business. We travelled by the Grand Trunk Railway leaving Toronto to the minute at five o'clock in the evening, schedule time, and arriving in Chicago at 7:20 the next morning, right to the moment according to the time table. In fact, during the whole journey we could step right off the train into the darkness at the moment we were timed to stop at any particular station, feeling sure we would reach the platform without any mistake. This, too, in the midst of quite severe winter weather when the track of the railway, as a rule, is not always in the best of condition. The Journal has ridden on most of the great trunk lines in America and finds that the Grand Trunk main line between Toronto and Chicago is equal to the best of them.

The train itself was a marvel of luxury and convenience. The dining car's beautifully hued electric lamps on each table, revealed the whitest and finest of linen, cutlery of the best and china of the daintiest pattern. The service was altogether elegant in regard to that could be desired. The servants of the Company are courteous and obliging but not obsequious.

We observed that the train, both in going and returning, was filled about to its capacity, most of the upper berths being taken and all of the lower ones. This was no special occasion, simply ordinary every day travel. We give this brief notice of the Grand Trunk from our pride in our grand national highway, and out of the fullness of our heart for such a comfortable, safe, and speedy journey. Moreover, we were not travelling on a pass.—Toronto Ladies' Journal.

Under New Management.

Messrs Tully and Merrell Assume the Management of Gough Bros Peterborough Store.

"Old Poy" is a... with great pleasure by a host of friends in Omeme and Lindsay.

Mr. James A. Tully, is a young man whose steady habits and business tact has made him many warm friends during his past sixteen years of faithful service with Gough Bros. He first entered the employ of the firm in March, 1886, when the store was only half its present size, and three-quarters its present depth. The customer took to him on sight, and felt such a confidence in their dealings with them that goods were sold as easily on "Jimmy's" recommendation. Mr. Tully gradually rose in the estimation of his employers until he soon occupied a leading position in the store, and for the last eight years he has been recognized as head salesman in the ready-made clothing department and as assistant manager. Mr. Tully has a first-class knowledge of the many varied lines of goods especially required for Gough Bros' trade, and is a shrewd and sagacious buyer locally. Mr. Tully has many warm friends, who will be pleased to learn of his present advancement. He is an enthusiastic member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, and has been honored with the highest offices in the lodge of his local lodge. He is known by customers of the firm from one end of the county to the other, and scarcely needs this introduction which is cheerfully accorded him.

Mr. Tully referred to, is a son of Mrs. John Tully, of Omeme. The Mirror joins heartily with his numerous friends here, in extending congratulations to him, and wish him and his highly esteemed partner, Mr. Merrell, a successful business career.

The Only Way One Man Can Woo Nature's Sweet Restorer. "No, I am not through with my day's work yet," said a Seventh street barber as he turned the key in the door of his shop a few nights ago. "Not through?" asked a bystander who had but a few minutes before left his chair. "No, sir," the barber continued. "I have a customer whom I have shaved every night for nearly three years. It is a fact, and this man wouldn't be able to sleep a wink tonight if I did not go and shave him—at least he thinks he couldn't sleep without it. "Funny, isn't it? For several years he suffered with nervous prostration, which brought on insomnia. The doctors—and he tried not a few—did him little good. During this time he let his beard grow until he had long flowing whiskers. "One day his wife asked him if he wouldn't feel better to have his whiskers shaved off. He assented, and I was called in. It was about 9 o'clock, after I had closed my shop for the day. I removed the whiskers and gave his head a good rubbing. That night he slept soundly—the first real sleep he had had for months. "The next night he suffered with wakefulness. The following morning he was just as bad. Finally in two or three days his wife again called me in to shave him. I did so, and that night he got a good sleep. "Finally I agreed to do the work for so much a month, and I am a regular caller at his home every night. I am the last one to see him. After I shave him and rub his head up for the day, he has had no insomnia since I began the nightly shaving. "No, it isn't because of any particular power I have over him. Any barber could do it, I suppose, but he won't have any but me. Yes, it is a bore sometimes when I want to go away, but he pays me enough to make it an object. I must hurry or he will be worrying."—Washington Star.

The Spelling Lesson. The following illustration of a child's spelling lesson and her apt conclusion in regard to the orthography of the English language is taken from the New York Times:

"Spell toes," said the mother, who was teaching her little daughter, 7 years old, to spell. "T-o-e-s," answered the child. "No, dear, that's not right. T-o-e-s spells toes."

"But it sounds like t-o-e-s." "I know it, but you cannot go by the sound."

"Then, in order to enforce the proposition, the mother called upon her daughter to spell frogs."

"F-r-o-g-s," said the child. "No; you're wrong again. This time we do the z and spell the word f-r-o-z-e."

"Huh!" exclaimed the child. "Now spell roses," said the mother. The child hesitated. Finally she said, "I don't know whether to say r-o-s-e or r-o-e-s."

"Spell it r-o-s-e," said the mother, "though there is another word pronounced just like it that's spelled r-o-e-s. That word is the name of the spawn of fishes."

The child looked perplexed. "Just one word more," said the mother. "Tell me how you spell blows."

"Well," said the little girl, who had been quite enough mortified, as she viewed it, from her mother and had suddenly made up her mind to pay back in kind, "I spell it b-l-o-w-s for breakfast, b-l-o-s for dinner and b-l-o-z-e for supper."

"I spell it b-l-o-w-s," said the mother. The child was silent for a minute as if wrapped in thought; then, looking up, she solemnly remarked, "I think, mamma, that the English language was made for persons very, very well educated."

Our Coming of Age.

It needs more than years to prove maturity. Deeds are the badge of manhood. Christian Endeavor is of age, measured by achievements as well as by the calendar. Only a few of its most striking successes can be noted here.

Christian Endeavor has given to three and a half millions of young people a higher ideal of usefulness than waiting until their fathers were dead to become active Christians. It has added half a score of the freshest and most valuable years of life to Christian service by beginning in the Junior society the training of the child for religious activity, just where the schools begin to educate him in knowledge. Thus Christian Endeavor will soon have created an entire new century out of what used to be lost.

Christian Endeavor has wiped a great many imaginary lines off the map of the world by its interdenominational, international, and interracial fellowship. It has added to the church hundreds of thousands of souls. It has enriched missionary treasuries by hundreds of thousands of dollars. It has helped to make the Bible the best selling book in the world. It has killed the once popular fallacy that a young Christian must be an insufferable prig. Christian Endeavor has put new emphasis on the humanities of religion. It has given thousands of Thanksgivings and Christmas dinners. It has set up fountains of drinking water and established coffee-rooms. It sends away hundreds of clothing, and goes into scores of prisons and hospitals, ministering to "these, my brethern."

Christian Endeavor is helping to raise the standard of citizenship. It has shown that religious fervor, focused on the causes as well as the prayer meetings, helps to sweep rascals out of the nests, and bring to the front the best types of sturdy Christian manhood.

Yes, young knights errant of the nineteenth century, you have won your spurs, but you will have to fight to keep them. You have earned a place in the ranks of the world redeeming forces, and cherish must be the heart that could grudge you a welcome. You cannot rest on your laurels. Your serious work begins now, and we believe you will take your opportunity seriously, and strike blows that will make heaven and earth rejoice.
