University Splendidly Supported and Wel Attended-Two Women's Colleges-Peeple Very Fond of Amusements.

Australia vas doubtless gained considerable advantages from the abnormal growth of its cities, writes Mr. F. Dolman. The chief gain, of course has been in intellectual life. The university, the library, and the news paper have in Sydney, Melbourne, and Adelaide a position and an influence in the national life which must have been much smaller with a less centional ogencies the newspaper is naturally the first to impress its power upon a visitor. The press of Melbourne and Sydney would not be unworthy of any country in the world. Melbourne has only two morning newspapers, but in journalistic excellence they have few rivals outside Lendon. One of the two is read and trusted by almost every working man in Victoria, and its proprietor-Mr. David Syme-has been nicknamed "King David" in recognition of the power which he wields in politics by means of it. But the Age- and it is typical in this respect of the other farmer, living near Hemford, N. S. Australian newspapers-does its duty by other interests than politics; literature, music, art, and science receive an amount of attention which does much to remove any sense of remoteness from European culture. It mainly by the newspapen press that the foundations of an Australian native literature were laid in the writ-
