GODS AS CHURCH BELLS.

A missionary in Travancore, India, saw one morning a native coming to his house with a heavy burden. On reaching it he laid on the ground a sack. Unfastening it, he emptied it of its contents—a number of idols. "What have you brought these here for?" asked the missionary. "I don't want them." "You have taught us that we do not want them, sir," said the native; "but we think they might be put to some good use. Could they not be melted down and formed into a bell to call us to church?" The hint was taken; they were sent to a bell founder and made into a bell, which now summons the native converts to praise and prayer.

THE WAY TO BE WELL.

The Blood Must Be Kept Rich and Pure and the Nerves Strong.

Good health is the most precious treasure any man or woman can have. But good health can only be had by keeping the blood rich and pure, and the nerves strong. If the blood is allowed to become weak and watery, the whole system is weakened and falls an easy prey to disease. There is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in keeping the blood rich and pure, and the nerves vigorous and strong. Every dose helps to create new blood, and by a fair use of the pills, pale, sickly people are made bright, active and strong. Here is proof. Mr. Robert Lee, New Westminster, B.C., says:—"Before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, my blood was in a very impure state, and as a result pimples that were very itchy, broke out all over my body. My appetite was feeble, and I was easily tired. My wife urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got half a dozen boxes. By the time I had used them I was completely restored to health, my skin was smooth and clear, and my appetite good."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not purge—they simply make pure, rich blood. That is why they cure such troubles as indigestion, neuralgia, rheumatism, anaemia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, scrofula, erysipelas, and the ailments so common to women, young and old. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A HUMAN SNAKE.

The doctors in Indianapolis are much puzzled over a case of a man who sheds his skin once a year. He has had the habit since he was an infant, and each year he has shed his skin and lost the nails of his fingers and toes. There is no pain in connection with it, but his temperature rises to about 104 degrees. The operation takes three weeks. The new skin is tender for a while, but very soon gains its normal hardness.

WEDDING AGENCIES.

The matrimonial agent does not thrive in Argentina. He first has to pay for a license, then he is made to disburse a tax on successful results, at so much per couple. Should any matrimonial contract turn out an utter failure, the agent may be arrested and sent to prison for not exercising needful care while negotiating the union of two of his clients.

ON THE EARTH'S AXIS.

A schoolmaster in a country district tells many amusing stories of answers given by rural children. The inspector dropped into the school unawares one day, and as a class was in the midst of its geography lesson, he thought he would test its knowledge by a few random questions. "Now, children," he said, "I will put one or two simple questions to you. I wonder," he added, "if anyone can tell me what the axis of the earth is?" "Immediately a hand went up, and the clever boy of the class answered in words which showed a close familiarity with the text-book: "An imaginary line passing from one Pole to the other, on which the earth revolves." "Quite right," replied the inspector; but wishing to test his knowledge more accurately he said, "Could you hang a hat on it?" "Yes, sir," came the answer, almost without premeditation. "Indeed!" exclaimed the inspector, "and what kind of a hat, pray?" "An imaginary hat, sir," was the reply.

THE GHOST THAT FAILED.

Brown is a very good fellow; but, alas! he has one bad habit. It is that of never reaching home until the small hours of the morning. But one day last week Mrs. B. hit upon a plan. If she could not persuade him out of the habit, perhaps she could frighten him out of it. And consequently, when he reached home that night he was confronted by a tall, white-shrouded figure, which glided towards him. "Wh-wh-w-what's that?" gasped poor Brown. "I am the family ghost!" replied a spectral voice. Brown heaved a sigh of relief. "Great Scott!" he said. "How you frightened me! I thought it was the missus!"

Sultan of Turkey

He is afraid of the dark. He is of a consumptive tendency. He is an inveterate cigarette smoker. He has four brothers and three sisters. He was born on September 22, 1842. He is exceedingly ambitious and loves power. His foster brother reads him to sleep at night. He drinks coffee at short intervals all day long. He has a deep-seated fear of death, and dreads illness. He has been on the throne of Turkey for twenty-six years. He is a good carpenter and takes pride in displaying his skill. He is superstitious and believes in fortune tellers and magicians. He amuses himself at clock making, and at times paints pictures. He has acquired mastery over his passion and leads a well-ordered daily life. He distrusts every one of the persons with whom he comes in daily contact. He is simple in his dress, and shows a marked preference for dark colors. He is an early riser, getting up winter and summer at five o'clock in the morning. He is an avaricious, and all his financial accounts are itemized to the last cent. He has five recognized sons, with the eldest of whom, Prince Selim, he is on bad terms. His meals are prepared in a little kitchen barred like a cell, and closed by an iron door. He loses the drama and attends frequent performances at the private theatre in the palace. He always carries a revolver with him, and is in constant fear of an assassin's attack. He believes firmly in the microbe theory of disease and takes every precaution to avoid contagion. He has the keenest dislike for all State ceremonies, and avoids them so far as his position will admit. He is very careful about his person, and bathes daily, and washes his face and hands at frequent intervals. He seldom goes outside the limits of his own palace, and his exercise consists of short walks in the royal park. He is a crack shot with a pistol, and has been seen to write his name on a wall twenty-five paces away with bullets. He is something of a musician, playing the piano with a moderate degree of talent. Popular airs are his favorites. He requires that all State documents and papers intended for his perusal shall first pass through a careful process of disinfection. His courtesy towards visitors of quality is always marked. He listens to the conversation with the closest attention and with great interest. He is fond of "penny-dreadful" literature, and has all the latest trash of the book world translated for his benefit and read aloud to him. He has issued standing orders that the palace be lighted brilliantly all night long, and his orchestra plays every evening until a very late hour. He has an excellent knowledge of chemistry, which he acquired in order to be able to make tests of food and drink in which he may suspect poison. He never rides in a closed carriage, for fear that he may not be able to jump out quickly enough in case of accident. His favorite vehicle is an open victoria. He is a hard worker, and keeps a corps of secretaries busy all day writing out his orders to his Ministers of State and subordinate officials in all parts of Europe. He eats alone and surrounds himself with cats and dogs, to which he occasionally throws pieces of the food before him in order to assure himself that it is not poisoned. He is exceedingly nervous, and at times, when a State crisis is impending, he has been known to remain awake for forty-eight hours at a stretch plotting and planning to meet the situation. He makes it a point to invite foreign actors and singers to appear before him, and often shows great liberality towards them after a performance, giving them rich jewelry and diamonds. GIANT UMBRELLAS. An African chief's umbrella is of greater importance than many people imagine, apart from its enormous size. Its loss in battle more than equals the loss of a standard of a European commander. Some of the umbrellas are of prodigious dimensions, being no less than 25 feet in diameter, with ribs 12 feet 6 inches long. They are made of lancewood, and the covering is of gorgeously colored chintz, in varied sections of crimson, yellow, and blue. The opening is performed by means of pulleys and ropes attached to the "runner," this operation requiring the services of three or four men. The pole, or handle, is of birch, and is about 14 feet or 15 feet high.

THE FIRST LAW OF NATURE.

Two Irish soldiers stationed in the West Indies were accustomed to bathe daily in a little bay which was generally supposed to be free from sharks. Though on good terms with each other, they were not what might be called fast friends. "One day, as they were swimming about one hundred yards from the shore, Pat observed Mike suddenly making for the land as hard as he could, without saying a word. Wondering what was the matter, Pat struck out vigorously after him and landed at his companion's heels. "Is there anything wrong with you?" inquired Pat, feelingly. "Nothin'—nothin' at all," replied the other. "Thin what did you make such a sudden retreat for an' lave me?" continued Pat. "Bedad," answered Mike, coolly, "I spied the fin av a big shark about twenty feet above an' I thought while he was playin' wid you it would give me time to reach the shore."

A NATION OF SMOKERS.

Although one often hears that the tobacco habit prevails universally in Spain it is impossible to know how general that habit is until one visits there. People smoke incessantly, under all conditions, at all hours and in all places—excepting the church. Men smoke in the railway carriages; they smoke in all the train cars; they smoke in all the minor theatres; they smoke in all the restaurants, in the hotel dining rooms, and of course, in the cafes. In the business office the merchant and his clerks smoke. In shops the shopman, while trying to sell goods to a lady, will stop to roll a cigarette, her face. You see conductors and drivers of train cars smoking. All the hackney cabmen smoke all the time, while even coachmen and footmen of private carriages sometimes produce a box of cigars and a pipe to smoke on, cigarettes in mouth, to whine for alms. If you ask for tickets at a railway office the clerk lays down his cigarette as he hands you the dingy bits of pasteboard. The innumerable pipes and smoke cigarettes all the time. The lower-class women, including the gypsy women, smoke freely on the streets.

REMARKABLE CURE OF DROPSY BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Montreal, May 18.—(Special)—The case of George Robertson, of 392 James street, this city, is looked upon by those interested in medical matters as one of the most interesting on record. Mr. Robertson was a sufferer from Dropsy and was so bad that he was unable to get out of bed in the morning. He could hardly put my feet on the floor, they were swollen to much from Dropsy. "My arms would swell at times to that I could not put my coat on. Before I had taken two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt greatly relieved. Seven boxes cured me completely. I also had Lumbago, but since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills I don't know what it is to be sick."

Dropsy, Lumbago and Rheumatism are all caused by diseased Kidneys. There can be no diseased Kidneys when Dodd's Kidney Pills are used.
