CURRENT NOTES

With curious lack of knowledge as to the past of science, commentators upon the life of Huxley fall into the singular error of declaring that he "established the theory of evolution" of which Darwin is declared to be the "author." If an assertion so widely made, and so absolutely be not inquired into at the moment of its birth a spurious myth will be added to popular faith concerning the progress of scientific investigation and its tentative results.

now in the midst of what is known as the "holiday season," trade all round is much in excess of what it was one year ago. There has been a weakening in the price of some commodities, but a more than compensating advance in others, and where there has been no actual increase quotations are reported as being well maintained. Among the adverse conditions are poorer wheat prospects, shipments of gold to Europe, less favourable United States Treasury returns, and some rather serious strikes.
