Steel Windmills

The "Ideal" for 1887, is by all odds the best in the market. Its first cost is very low, when you remember that it is a strictly High Grader, and the annual cost for maintenance and repairs is lower still. I have handled these mills for six years and have never yet made a repair on account of defect in material or poor workmanship.

Sermon preached in Christ Church by the Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M. A., to the Orangenemen, at their Annual Church Parade, July 9th, 1899.

Psalm 118 : 24. "This is the day which the Lord hath made : we will rejoice and be glad in it."
Apparently there are some people who do not think that there is any difference in the days of their life; they are inclined to believe that everything happens in the natural way without anyone to interfere or to direct. But when we consider the mighty works which have been wrought, when we look around us and see the wonders of the universe, when we come together to commemorate great events of the past, surely we cannot help but confess "that the heavens declare the glory of the Lord, and the firmament showeth forth his handy work." Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night teacheth knowledge; surely there is a God who maketh all things according to His blessed will. But there is the danger, my dear friends, that because of the invariable succession and constant re-appearance of these manifestations of God's omnipotence and wisdom, we might get so accustomed to them, that we lose the habit of referring to the author. We are apt to look upon God's mighty deeds as perhaps facts of history only, and forget to ascribe the whole to Him. And yet there are occasional displays of God's wondrous working, which strike the most thoughtless and apparel the most hardened. It is possible that weak mankind could be unaffected, when the tempest besets the mightiest of the works, when boasted navies are overwhelmed in the deep, when their glittering arms, which are prepared to strike down the poor, innocent defenders of their rights and of God's Holy Word, are seen to fall into the ditch, which they have prepared for others; when the glory of God thundereth with a mighty voice, which is full of majesty; when He shaketh the wilderness and divideth the flames of fire.

Such elemental tempests were often the instruments of God's Providence in behalf of His persecuted people. He rained down great stones from heaven on the enemies of His own children; even the stars appear to have fought in their conflagration against the usurper. And the present occurrence, preceding the Anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne under the pious and immortal King William III.; at once calls forth our gratitude, and encourages our confidence, that the Lord will continue to give strength, and bless His people with peace.

Now, to day, my brethren, I wish to lead you to give all the glory to God. Let our hearts be penetrated with the deepest reverence for Him, and the most humble thoughts of ourselves, and let us hold our confidence in Him who can do for us exceeding abundantly above all we can ask or think, through that Blessed Redeemer, whose Cross is the Wisdom of God, and the power of God for our salvation.

Oh that the Holy Spirit may search your heart, to realize His presence; oh that you may not have come here from mere curiosity, nor that this service may only be an habitual annual affair, but that you all, are here assembling together to ratify before God and man your gratitude towards Him, and that you may all get a saving sight of Christ Jesus, the King of kings and the Lord of lords. For this is surely a day which the Lord has made; therefore let us rejoice and be glad in it.

Now let us see what great reasons we have for being thankful to our God and King; I want to go back to the 10th century when Popery, that dreadful and blood thirsty tiger, overspread the whole world with superstition and idolatry: when traditions without number led our forefathers astray, turning them away from the light of the gospel, deprive some of our countrymen, of that blessed book, the Bible, wherein the way of salvation and the power of the Lord Jesus Christ alone are set forth.

Do you not know that even in this 19th century the idolatrous dogma of the immaculate conception of the Virgin Mary was invented; that myriads of saints and angels are made the agents of intercession at the throne of grace, yea, even objects of worship by the adherents of Rome. The Pope Himself claiming to be the Vicar of Christ and infallible in all his utterances, is the real anti-Christ of the Revelation. Dogmas like such have to be believed with out contradiction, under penalty of excommunication. Can it be denied that in former times the Inquisition put under insupportable torments those who refused to believe those superstitious dogmas: were they not all put to the most painful death, so that millions are now in their graves waiting for the general retribution of their sufferings, so unjustly and barbarously inflicted upon them. Who can look back without horror to the bloody night of Bartholomew in 1572, under the reign of Charles IX. of France, which horrible slaughter sacrificed 60,000 Protestants in the King dom. And in Rome, Pope Gregory XIII. ordered a jubilee with a procession to a church, and caused praises to be chanted to God for joy.

Who can reckon the innumerable caricatures used in their mass-service, as merely theatrical representations, en chanting the eye, and by their musical exhibitions and charms in their unbloody sacrifice fill the ear with melodies and symphonies; so that it may well be said, whosoever wishes to feed the ear and the eye may resort to the Papist (church); but you cannot find anything there for the heart. Who can conceive the many absurdities in the invention of purgatory, a fearable, to fill up the Priest's pocket with the money, and the speculation of selling indulgences for the yet uncommitted sins of their whole lives?
What a bulk of volumes were written in showing the false and unscriptural doctrine of trans-substantiation, where the most wretched and sinful Priest is enabled as a creature, to make his Creator from a small piece of paste in the form of a wafer. And how holy some of them claim to be, that they can perform more good works than they are in need of for themselves; yet in the supererogation of all these the Pope alone reserves the right to apply them to whom he pleases, and sells them by any quantity, whereas the scripture teaches us, if any servant has done all, he is in duty bound to call himself an unprofitable servant.

The Pope with his Priests not forgetting themselves in finding out the secrets of their people, for the furtherance of their own cause introduced anticlerical confession, that they might open their secret conspiracies against all offenders by means of their Jesuitical fashion. They even introduced amongst themselves the unnatural burden of celibacy to present their clergy, as they say, unpolluted, while they may and in some cases have committed, without restraint, the most shocking crimes contrary to the laws and precepts of God's Word.

What a foolish idea to drive the devil out of their houses with holy water blessed by the Priests, when, perhaps they carry the demon in their hearts under the roof of their habitations. This is as yet as it was in the dark ages of their church a strict law commanded by the infallible head of their church, the Pope.

Now, my brethren, I do not wish to sow seeds of hatred into your heart, but I wish to impress upon you the truth as we have it. You must know from what you have been delivered in order that you are able to appreciate it. There is a danger in the present day, to think lightly of great principles, and many Protestants in being over anxious to show toleration, are often led to deal slightly with great Reformation principles. I speak to you, Orangenemen, especially. Are you guarding the Protestantism of our great country? Are you consistent in your actions with your Protestant profession? You are, I may say, the safe guards of our country against Romish encroachments. Do you take heed that the government of our country and your representation before that government remain in true and faithful Protestant hands. It is a dangerous thing to let Rome have anything: for any true Roman Catholic cannot be loyal to our Queen, who is termed by the Church of Rome, "A rebel to our Lord, the Pope"; therefore, every loyal Oranemen must be opposed to our Protestant Sovereign or display to his Lord, the Pope.

Therefore I warn you, brethren, to guard those blood-bought Reformation principles. I do not wish, that while we, as Protestant Christians, have greater light, we should do any harm to those who do not believe differently from us, but rather by our good conversation, kindness and affection seek to attract them; to open their eyes before it is too late, and to make them believe God more than man, to take their refuge to the only Book of Life, the Bible, and their Divine Saviour who bought them and us with His precious blood and redeemed us, thereby making us free from the captivity of Satan, sin and hell. Let us be one in the name of the Spirit, in the bond of peace; let it not be said that Orangenemen are rude, but rather giving them good example of a truly virtuous and foregoing spirit. Always being faithful to God and to His Holy Word, worthy soldiers of the Great Captain of our salvation, we will stand by Him, or rather fall: we will keep forever the motto, "No surrender to Popery."

In closing let me just remark another thing. As I indicated at the beginning, there is the habit of attending these Church parades as an annual affair, a habit which is most detrimental to the spiritual life of our brethren. I want you to come here with the desire to see Jesus as your Saviour and friend of sinners. I want you to acknowledge yourselves as sinners in His sight. Realize the presence of God in our midst and do not think lightly of this service, for we must stand all before the Judgment seat, of God and have to give account of all we have done and said. I ask you, dear brethren, every one of you, are you a saved soul? Are you the one, dead in your home while your wife and children enjoy the peace and Salvation of God?

Oh, I beseech you, brethren, in the Name of my Master, accept the Lord Jesus and serve Him; do away with all formalism and all indifference in spiritual matters. Accept the Lord. A true Orangenemen should be a consecrated man or woman who has his heart bound to an organization which is to be the defender of Protestant Faith. I tell you that every day in the Lord's service grows brighter and happier because we know Whom we serve and that He will reward us with life everlasting.

Now may the power of God take possession of you, and the Holy Spirit enlighten you that you may all see your need of Christ and come to Him; then, and then only, this day will be a happy day in the sight of God, because sinners have been brought to the feet of Jesus, and His Name has been glorified.

Then He Proposed.

Unmoved, I saw her feather with the car
And trim the scull when I was but a lad.
Unmoved, I followed her across the floor
On boxwood wheels when skating was the fad.

I helped her bend the sturdy bow of yew,
Did not fear the arrows of her eyes,
I saw her mount the bike-in-bloomers, too—
Did not offer for her sake to die.

Croquet, lawn tennis, billiards, came in season,
But never touched—serrano my fancy drew
She shot, fished, ran, and still I kept my reason.
At last she took to golf—then I proposed.

Has the Courage of His Convictions.

In looking over some copies of The Globe we happened upon a despatch telling of the recent visit of the Toronto Army and Navy Veterans to Peterboro, the following extract from which will interest our readers. Some excitement was caused when Sergeant-Major Martin, late of the 21st Fusiliers, who was present with a number of the Veterans from Lindsay and district, in the course of his remarks referred to Dr. Sproule's speech in the house of commons, in which the Doctor referred contemptuously to the old soldiers. Sergeant-Major Martin spoke warmly in reply, and some one called out, "No politics here." The Veterans made it so warm for the interrupter that he subsided, and the Sergeant continuing, said he was a good conservative, but he did not propose to stand such talk as that of Dr. Sproule without making reply. The Sergeant himself is proof that the old soldier is not a failure in civil life. He is a business man in Lindsay, and has a medal and four bars for the Crimean campaign.

NOVEL CURE FOR INSOMNIA.

The Only Way One Man Can Woo Nature's Sweet Restorer.

"No, I am not through with my day's work yet," said a Seventh street barber as he turned the key in the door of his shop a few nights ago.

"Not through?" asked a bystander who had but a few minutes before left his chair.

"No, sir," the barber continued "I have a customer whom I have shaved every night for nearly three years. It's a fact, and that's not lying, that he has not slept a wink tonight if I did not go and shave him—at least he thinks he couldn't sleep without it."

"Funny, isn't it? For several years he has slept with nervous prostration, which brought on Insomnia. The doctors—and he tried not a few—did him little good. During this time he let his beard grow until he had long flowing whiskers.

"One day his wife asked him if he wouldn't feel better to have his whiskers shaved off. He assented, and I was called in. It was about 9 o'clock, after I had closed my shop for the day. I removed the whiskers and gave his head a good rubbing. That night he slept soundly—the first real sleep he had had for months.

"The next night he suffered with wakefulness and he came directly to bed. He had no insomnia since I began the nightly shaving.

"No, it isn't because of any particular power I have over him. Any barber could do it. I suppose he won't have any one but me. Yes, it is a bore sometimes when I want to go away; but he pays me enough to make it an object. I must hurry or he will be worrying."—Washington Star.

The Spelling Lesson.

The following illustration of a child's spelling lesson and her art conclusion in regard to the orthography of the English language is taken from the New York Times:

"Spell 'oes,'" said the mother, who was teaching her little daughter, 7 years old, to spell.

"T-o-z-e," answered the child.

"No, dear, that's not right. T-o-e-s spells toes."

"But it sounds like t-o-z-e."

"I know it, but you cannot go by the sound."

Then, in order to enforce the proposition, the mother called upon her daughter to spell 'fros'.

"F-r-o-s," said the child.

"No; you're wrong again. This time we do 't-o-z-e' and spell the word 'fro-z-e.'"

"Huh!" exclaimed the child.

"Now spell 'ros,'" said the mother.

The child hesitated. Finally she said, "I don't know whether to say 'r-o-z-e' or 'r-o-s-e.'"

"Spell 't-o-s-e,'" said the mother, "though there is another word pronounced just like that spelled 'r-o-s-e.' That word is the name of the spawn of fishes."

The child looked perplexed.

"Just one word more," said the mother.

"Tell me how you spell blows."

"Well," said the little girl, who had quite enough nonsense, as she viewed it, from her mother and had suddenly made up her mind to pay back in kind. "I spell it three ways. I spell it b-l-u-s-e for breakfast, b-l-o-s-s for dinner and b-l-i-z-z-e for supper."

"I spell it b-l-i-w-s," said the mother.

The child was silent for a minute as if wrapped in thought; then, looking up, she solemnly remarked, "I think, mamma, that the English language was made for persons very, very well educated."

"One or our race is gwine up fer hog stealin'."

"He stole de hog, did he?"

"Dat's what."

"En he let 'em ketch him?"

"Yes."

ONLY Thirty and Gray

How is this? Perhaps sleepless nights caused it, or grief, or sickness, or perhaps it was care. No matter what the cause, you cannot wish to look old at thirty.

Gray hair is starved hair. The hair bulbs have been deprived of proper food or proper nerve force.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Increases the circulation in the scalp, gives more power to the nerves, supplies missing elements to the hair bulbs.

Used according to directions, gray hair begins to show color in a few days. Soon it has all the softness and richness of youth and the color of early life returns.

Would you like our book on the Hair? We will gladly send it to you.

Write us!

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the Vigor, write the doctor about it. He may be able to suggest something of value to you. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.
